BUSINESS ASKS

WIN PROSPERITYUrges Government

BY HOWARD WOOD.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—American business, having composed its major differences of opinion, today asked for a free hand to bring about recovery and presented a program it believes will lead the nation back to prosperity.

Concluding three days and nights of intensive labor and bickering, the ninety picked industrial leaders composing this joint business conference for recovery presented its Magna Charta and prepared to give it united and continuing support through the establishment of a liaison organization in Washington to "cooperate" with the administration.

Ask to Be Let Alone.

Although phrasing their recommendations in conciliatory language, these manufacturers and business men have modified very little the demands recently voiced by such organizations as the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The essence of their recommendations is that the government should return to the traditional and proper functions of government and permit business to put men and capital back to work satisfying the vast pent-up demand for goods.

Acceptance of their plan, say the business men, would revive public confidence and reopen the normal flow of private buying and investing which alone can bring about good times.

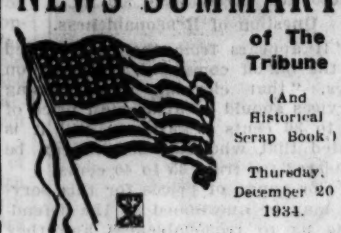

NRA Recommendations.

Their chief demands were expressed as follows:

1. Continuation of the NRA for one year from present expiration date, June 16, 1935. Favor legislation requiring every code to contain maximum hours, minimum wages, prohibition of child labor, in industries not covered by a code these provisions to be urged by "moral suasion." No code to be continued which results in a "burdenome or unfair" price level. Special legislation for codes for "natural resource industries." Development and submission and abandonment of codes to be voluntary in any industry. Approved codes to be binding upon all members of an industry.
 2. Stop increasing the national debt during the year beginning July 1, 1935.
 3. Balance the budget in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1936.
 4. "Stop 'Make Work' Projects." "Stop 'Make Work' projects" government construction projects, returning the relief problem to local and state governments as quickly as possible. The "dole" payments, where necessary, to be rates sufficiently low to discourage idleness.
 5. Establish a dollar of fixed and unvarying gold content as soon as possible. Arrange with principal nations to stabilize external exchanges.
 6. Amend the securities act of 1933 to permit the resumption of the flow of private capital into business.
 7. Scrap arbitrary limitation or undue restriction of the production, processing, or distribution of farm products.
 8. Limit government construction of dwellings to slum clearance and other projects that would not compete with private capital.
 9. "Stop Government Competition." Get the government out of socialistic schemes in which it competes with its own people.
 10. Expand foreign trade by establishing a stable currency, negotiating reciprocal trade agreements, and cooperating with foreign nations to remove artificial restrictions to the exchange of goods.
 11. Free the transportation systems so that they may develop and achieve maximum efficiency.
 12. Create a committee of business men to study unemployment insurance and old age pensions, but delay legislation until a sound plan can be evolved because these are not emergency measures.
 13. Oppose legislation for a mandatory 30 hour week.
 14. Prohibit sympathetic or general strikes or lockouts. Permit employers and employees to bargain collectively without coercion from any source.
 15. Encourage the program of the Federal Housing Administration.

WAR BRIDE GETS DIVORCE; SPURNS
FARE TO EUROPE

Mrs. Hetty Hymen Rutledge, 32 years old, 6828 Anthony avenue, German war bride, told Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday that she would like a divorce if she were to return to her native land.

She appeared on her separate maintenance suit against her husband, Archie, 35 years old, 6828 Anthony avenue, a civil engineer whom she married while he was with the American army of occupation in Germany after the war. She said they were happy from the time of their marriage in 1921 until September, 1933, when he bought a new automobile and with it got himself a new girl.

Rutledge's attorney, Norman Becker, who had filed a cross bill for divorce, offered her fare back to Germany if she would consent to a divorce. Her lawyer, Harry X. Cole, spurned the offer, whereupon Mrs. Rutledge told of her love for America.

At the court's suggestion her bill was amended to one for divorce. The judge granted the decree and ordered Rutledge to pay her $40 a month alimony for two years, and thereafter $25 a month for life, or until she remarries.

KILLER WHO ONCE
SAT IN ELECTRIC
CHAIR IS FREED

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 19.—(P)—A man who sat in the state prison electric chair for ten minutes and finally escaped death because prison officials could not decide who should throw the switch won his freedom today.

The state pardon board ordered a conditional pardon for E. M. Williams, Putnam county colored man, who was convicted of killing his wife. He will be released in a few days.

Williams was sentenced May 10, 1926, to electrocution. When the appointed date for his death arrived he was prepared for the chair by prison attendants. Then when he was seated J. S. Blitch, the prison superintendent, and the sheriff of Putnam county could not agree on who should throw the switch.

Williams was taken from the death chair and returned to a prison cell. The time for his electrocution had passed and he could not legally be executed. The state pardon board commuted his sentence then to life imprisonment.

Dust Storm Sweeps Over
Alaskan City; Bare of Snow

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Dec. 19.—(P)—A dust storm, the first in December in the history of the city, filled the air today as a stiff wind whipped over this area, bare of snow because of the recently unprecedented warm weather. The warm weather, however, was definitely over, with a temperature of three above zero today.

4.9 Inch Snow
a White Yule

(Picture on Back Page.) Chicago's snowstorm yesterday, which threatened during the morning to equal the proportions of the blizzard ten days ago, turned out to be an average winter snowfall. When the snow ceased falling shortly after 4 p. m. a depth of 4.9 inches was officially recorded at the weather bureau observatory on the University of Chicago campus.

Early predictions by the forecaster, C. A. Donnel, that a new storm was on the way from Montana were tempered by later reports from the northwest which indicated that any disturbance here today will be in the nature of occasional snow flurries, with little change in temperature. The city was promised a "white" Christmas, however, whether more snow falls or not.

Storm Heaviest Downstate.

Chicago missed the full force of the storm yesterday, but downstate areas were heavily blanketed. Southern Illinois had the heaviest fall of the season, with a maximum depth of 7 inches at Pana. The low pressure area, originating in the southwest, covered everything east of the Mississippi river, although precipitation in eastern and southern states took the form of rain.

Although holiday shoppers who pushed through loop streets, made sloppy by the quickly melting snow, bemoaned the storm because it retarded their progress, gardeners and farmers greeted the fall with rejoicing.

Subsidiary Is Moltened.

It was estimated that the three snowstorms here this month and the widespread precipitation of recent weeks through the farm belt had moistened parched subsoil to a depth of three or four feet.

Not only is the needed moisture beneficial to the 1935 field and garden crops but the steady covering of snow acts as a protective mulch for the winter crops of wheat and other grains.

Flu Closes 30 Schools in New Jersey Counties

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—About thirty public schools in New Jersey were closed today because of the spread of grippe, or influenza, particularly among pupils in the southern counties. Dr. Charles H. Elliott, state education commissioner, advised school superintendents of all counties to use their judgment whether to close schools tomorrow instead of today, depending on conditions.

COPS LEARN WHAT IT MEANS TO BE SHOT AND GASED

The detective bureau was gassed and shot up last night. One moment, in the supervising office on the third floor, everything was bright and cheery. Some fifty detectives were present some getting equipment to go out on squad car duty and others replacing equipment after coming in from the job.

Among the latter were Detectives Roger O'Dea and John Lynch. Together they entered a small vault off the big room. O'Dea put the two shotguns in a rack. Lynch tossed in a bag containing a tear gas bomb and a dozen or so shotgun shells.

Then it happened. The pin had jarred loose from the gas bomb and it went off, pouring clouds of the gas into the vault and out among the assembled detectives. In some manner the shotgun shells were discharged. Bang! Boom! Crash!

O'Dea and Lynch shot out of the vault and sprinted down the hall followed by a crowd of detectives with tears streaming down their cheeks from the gas.

The whole floor was filled with gas and abandoned for the night, because the smell was something terrible.

BULLDOG BITES
FIVE IN INVASION OF SCHOOLROOM

(Picture on Back Page.) A mongrel bulldog entered a third grade classroom of the Ryder elementary school, at 88th and Wallace streets yesterday and bit five of the twenty-five frightened children in the room.

Miss Genevieve Howard, 3246 South Peoria street, the teacher, courageously seized the dog and held him until two eighth grade pupils, William Stone and Donald Samer, carried him outside.

The school nurse cauterized the wounds and sent the five injured children home. They are Howard Mason, 8 years old, 8825 South Union avenue, bitten on arm; Anne Minehan, 10, of 8948 Emerald avenue, leg; Robert Biehl, 8, of 8600 South Union avenue, hand; Mildred Rehling, 7, of 8848 Parnell avenue, leg, and Corinne Friedl, 8, of 9014 Parnell avenue, leg.

Gresham police learned that the dog belonged to Donald Loney, 8938 Emerald avenue. The health department sent for the animal to determine whether he had rabies and turned him over to Capt. Patrick McCauley of the dog pound for fifteen days' observation.

MARTIN INSULL
TELLS THE JURYDenies Any Intention of Embezzling.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Picture on Back Page.) Martin J. Insull, former president of the Middle West Utilities company, will soon know the verdict of a Chicago jury on the charge of embezzlement brought against him by the state two years ago, while he was up in the Canadian woods meditating on the loss of his millions and the fall of the House of Insull.

In low voice, without any of the dramatic fervor of his elder brother Samuel, whose fortunes he followed since he was 18 years old, Mr. Insull submitted his fate to the jury in Judge Cornelius J. Harrington's Criminal court in an examination yesterday which lasted all afternoon and evening.

His cross-examination will be concluded this morning and the evidence in the case is expected to close today.

Some Storm Signals Go Up.

Something of the stormy Insull temperament came out in the cross-examination of his story of spending $344,720 of Middle West Utilities money to cover his personal brokerage account transactions. On the whole, however, his presentation of his defense was that of a calm and dispassionate philosopher and a pipe-smoking Englishman.

He declared there was no intent of embezzlement or fraud in his placing of the $344,720 in the brokerage account in exchange for speculative Insull stocks which the brokers would no longer keep as collateral. It was a bona fide sale of the stock, he maintained.

He wanted the jury to believe that the transaction was motivated chiefly by a desire to protect the Insull companies and their stockholders by averting the dumping of the stock on the market.

Clashes with Prosecutor.

Mr. Insull quibbled a bit in his passage with Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hara, the cross-examiner, on his technical right to spend the money in this way and in his insistence that it was not Middle West money alone but that of subsidiary companies as well, a syndicate having been formed to take the stock.

The defendant pounded his fist on the witness box rail at one heated point in the colloquy, losing his philosophic attitude for the moment. This was when the prosecutor asked him:

"Do you think the stockholder in the street thought that you were using $344,720 of Middle West money in your own brokerage account?"

"If he thought that he thought wrong and you know it," shouted Insull.

At another point, when the prosecutor raised his voice in a question, Mr. Insull struck out at him:

"You are getting excited. Mr. O'Hara."

Nettled About Extradition.

He became slightly nettled at questions regarding his prolonged stay in Canada and his long extradition fight to keep away from this Chicago jury. The campaign of former State's Attorney John A. Swanson for reelection in 1932 was brought into this part of the questioning. Insull said he had decided to return here before the political aspect of the situation was called to his attention, but that then he determined to fight it out to the end. The end was a jail cell and extradition.

His troubles began when he was caught in the great market effort of the Insull group to protect the stocks of their companies. His little flyer was, but a speck on that great sea of finance. That he should be brought to criminal book for it seemed to him amazing. He never had any thought or consciousness of wrongdoing.

This was his story, which wavered a bit under cross-examination, but which his attorneys think will free him as his brother was freed in the federal court.

Former Insull Aids in Court.

The courtroom was fairly well occupied, with several of the participants in the Samuel Insull trial among the audience, when the moment arrived for Martin to testify. Dressed in dark blue, glasses shining on his long nose, he began his narrative in an even, low tone, marked with a decided British accent.

He was somewhat restless, as all the Insulls are, tossing his arms about and crossing and recrossing his long

Town Awaits
Hauptmann
Trial and Gold

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) Flemington, N. J., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Two weeks from today the century-old courthouse in this rustic village of 2,000 will hold the curious attention of most of the civilized world. Here, on Jan. 2, will begin the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Flemington will take on the appearance of a boom town in the gold rush period during the following weeks. Its population will be augmented by the presence of more than three hundred newspaper writers [although there are only press seats in the courtroom for 150], hundreds of telegraph operators, lawyers, witnesses, messengers, and the thousands of curious attracted by the international publicity given the proceedings.

Prices Already Start Up.

Already the simple village folk have upped prices for food and lodging in anticipation of that swarm of visitors. No price code is needed for the fortunate possessors of an extra room and bed. They are asking [and getting] $30 a week for a small room equipped with one cot. The one hundred rooms of the only hotel have been reserved for months.

The din of hammer and saw resounds on Main street as the hotdog stands spring up. Several enterprising citizens have applied for beer and liquor licenses, and an extra man has been hired for the Union hotel bar. The souvenir sellers are reconnoitering for advantageous positions outside the courthouse and the new jail, where the future center of it all, a taciturn, gloomy little alien, sits in the constant glare of electric lights, watched by silent guards.

Build Press Seats.

In the courtroom long stands of white pine have been erected on three sides. The newsmen for whom these accommodations were built will be wedged in tightly on narrow wooden seats, only eighteen inches per man. Many a portly journalist is groaning at the prospect. In a small attic above the courtroom are jammed the batteries of telegraph instruments, sixty-five senders in all, over which on some days close to a million words will be poured to the press of the world.

The scores of writers for whom no seats have been provided have been clamoring loudly for accommodations. If they are finally admitted to the courtroom there will be only a few seats for the public. Places have already been set aside for members of the Hunterdon Bar association and for friends of the prosecuting attorneys and the court. Photographers and radio men have been barred from the courtroom while court is in session.

Legal Hippodrome Forecast.

The trial itself promises to take on the nature of a legal hippodrome. There are many unusual aspects to this case, not the least of which is the report, widespread and met with only feeble denials by those concerned, that the fees of the chief defense attorney are being paid by a New York newspaper, which hopes to collect its reward in the form of exclusive tidbits of information during the hearing.

This question of attorney's fees has aroused much interest. Hauptmann's first attorney, James M. Fennell, withdrew by request in favor of Edward J. Reilly, a veteran criminal lawyer.

Machine Guns Begin Chatter.

The third attack hurled the ranks of soldiers backward still farther, and into the courthouse itself. Then the mounted machine guns went into action.

From the doorway they sprayed bullets into the advancing mob. The crowd halted for a moment and, taking advantage of the hesitation, the militiamen charged, resorting to their bayonets.

When the battle had ceased Raleigh Edwards, 39 years old, a house painter, and an unidentified white man were dead, bayoneted through the stomach. Pat Lawless, said to be a relative of the girl in the case, was shot through the head, and Gilbert Freeman was shot through the body. Both were reported dying.

Five Others Wounded.

Five others also lay wounded on the battlefield and the wounds of most of them were said to be serious.

Inside the courthouse Judge Coleman had halted the trial when the mob made its first attack. He called a recess, but when the second and third attacks came he withdrew a juror and declared a mistrial, fearing the mob would storm the courtroom and take the prisoner from the dock.

Harris was dressed in the uniform, his face covered by the gas mask, and he was snatched through the roaring

BALKED, RIOTERS
DYNAMITE, BURN
COURTHOUSE

Shelbyville, Tenn., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Southern National Guardsmen, with bayonets and bullets, killed two white men here today and wounded seven others in a pitched battle fought in and around the courthouse to save the life of a colored youth. He was on trial for raping a 14 year old white girl.

Two of the wounded men are said to be dying.

When the prisoner was taken from the courthouse disguised in the uniform of a soldier, wearing a gas mask, and the mob learned it had been tricked, the rioting started anew.

Blind and Burn Courthouse.

Flames and dynamite were used to level the $150,000 Bedford county courthouse. Four trucks used by the Guardsmen were overturned, saturated with gasoline, and burned.

While Gov. Hill McAllister and his aides worked frantically by telephone to mobilize 500 more state troops to occupy the town, groups of men stalked the streets, firing random shots into the air, hurling imprecations against the colored population and Guardsmen alike, and threatening to invade the colored quarter of town with pistol, knife, and club.

Feeling against the rapist, E. K. Harris, 22 years old, had been running so high in Shelbyville since his arrest for the crime that officials had taken him to Nashville.

Today he was brought back, authorities believing he could be guarded safely by the 110 National Guardsmen who had been assigned to the town for the trial. The case was called before Judge T. L. Coleman.

Start Talking Evidence.

A jury was chosen and the taking of evidence begun. The mob outside, muttering threats, but not yet at the point of action, had grown to some 500 in numbers.

Militiamen, with bayonets fixed, lined before the doorway and machine guns were mounted in windows.

The mob surged forward in the first of its three bloody attacks. Rifle butts and tear gas bombs were brought into play and the crowd was repulsed. Augmented by more recruits, the crowd, its spirit aroused by the first clash, came forward again.

The first line of Guardsmen yielded and the rioters reached the door of the building. This time dynamites led the attack and began digging at the foundations of the building to place their explosive, but were driven back.

Machine Guns Begin Chatter.

The third attack hurled the ranks of soldiers backward still farther, and into the courthouse itself. Then the mounted machine guns went into action.

From the doorway they sprayed bullets into the advancing mob. The crowd halted for a moment and, taking advantage of the hesitation, the militiamen charged, resorting to their bayonets.

crowd in an automobile with several soldiers.

In a few moments the balance of the Guardsmen, augmented by sixty-five cavalrymen who had been sent after the first attack on the courthouse, marched outside to their camp. The raging mob hurled insults and stones as they passed.

When it was learned that Harris had eluded them the rioters took their vengeance on the courthouse. Apparently gasoline or kerosene was sprinkled about the halls and stairways and the building touched off at half a dozen points.

Firemen who sought to combat the flames were hampered by the rioters. The trucks of the firemen were burned and a police guard was hastily flung about the municipal water plant.

Mobilize New Troops.

As the courthouse burned the din of shouting and the roar of flames were punctuated by occasional blasts as sticks of dynamite hurled into the building earlier were detonated.

Word of the new disorder was flashed to Gov. McAllister at once and he began the work of mobilizing more guardsmen.

"We thought," he said, "that when we got the prisoner away we would be all right, but they have started rioting again. I have ordered the troops to prevent any further acts such as the burning of the courthouse."

Month After Arrest.

Late tonight, while the new army of militiamen was being hurried toward Shelbyville, the mob still milled about the ruins of the courthouse, still angry and still crying for the blood of the rapist. The colored population had hidden itself at home after earlier rough treatment on the streets. Threats were heard late tonight to burn out the colored quarter, but it was believed the arrival of the troops would be in time to prevent further damage and bloodshed.

Today's riots followed by just a month upon disorders which occurred the day of Harris' arrest, Nov. 13.

The girl victim was attacked about 1 p. m. while temporarily excused from classes, and a few minutes after she had left the building.

Harris was arrested in Shelbyville in the evening. A mob began forming and officers left with Harris for Murfreesboro, about 50 miles away.

They had reached there, however, when the sheriff was notified that citizens were en route to Nashville to storm the jail. It was decided to take Harris on to Nashville.

Calls It Pitiful Sight.

The way the mob marched against the bullets and bayonets was described by Deputy Sheriff John E. Gant as "one of the most pitiful sights I ever saw."

"They just walked into the bullets, right into the faces of the guns," he said. He asserted that most of them were "crazy drunk."

"The local force and the guardsmen used every precaution in the world to prevent any one being hurt. The mob just kept pushing the guardsmen until they had to take action."

QUAKE FISSIONS ENGULF EARTH IN HONDURAS AREA

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Earthquakes in the Copan district have opened great fissures throughout the Santa Rita region into which huge patches of earth are steadily disappearing, the governor of Santa Rosa reports today.

The devastated region is being shaken day after day by shocks. Largest fissures were opened in the vicinity of the Cerro Negro, El Carrizal and El Barrancón mountains. The governor said residents of the region are kept in almost continuous panic by tremendous underground explosions occurring intermittently.

Truck of Eggs Gets Stuck in Snow; Thieves Move It

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 23; recovered, 21; stripped, none [from police records for the 24 hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

"How did they do it?" lamented Fred C. Zersen, of Wheeling, as he gazed at an empty space yesterday at the curb in front of Schenck's pharmacy, 1 Chicago avenue, Oak Park.

"I pulled up here to deliver three dozen eggs, and my three and a half ton truck stuck in the snow," explained Zersen. "I couldn't get the truck free, so I went into the drug store for a cup of coffee. Finally, when I came out the truck was gone with the thirty two egg crates, but I couldn't move the truck, but the thieves did."

Illinois Escapes Death in Colorado Gas Chamber

Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Charles E. Graham, 41, confessed slayer, was found "not guilty by reason of insanity" by a jury here today.

Graham, one time resident of Alton, Ill., was convicted last spring of killing Mrs. Verne Glacier and George Morris in a squalid shack which they shared here.

He was sentenced to death in the lethal gas chamber, but saved when the State Supreme court ordered a second trial.

Ex-Broker Is Started Back to California; Faces Prison

Earl K. Fleming, 39 years old, was started back to Los Angeles last night in the custody of a California deputy sheriff and an assistant state attorney.

Fleming, once owner of two brokerage houses in Los Angeles, is under a two to twenty year prison sentence there for larceny. He jumped a $25,000 bond and came to Chicago, posing as J. C. Collins and operating the Colonial Finance and Loan company at 29 South La Salle street.

U.S. Men Stay in Halifax

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 19.—The nine men saved from the sinking British ship Usworth last week remained here today as the Conard White Star liner Ascania, their rescuer, sailed for New York. The nine sailors, all that survived of a crew of 24, were picked up by the Ascania about 600 miles off the Azores.

John Goodwin, 32 years old, a former Detroit city fireman, was held to the federal grand jury yesterday in $1,500 bond by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of stealing mail.

STEPS FROM BUS INTO CAR'S PATH; DIES OF INJURIES

Michael Jandrich, 50 years old, 148 22d avenue, Melrose Park, was fatally injured by an automobile yesterday when he stepped from a bus in Lake street three-quarters of a mile west of Mannheim road. He died in the West Lake hospital in Melrose Park.

Henry E. Wheat, 60 years old, 852 North Parkside avenue, a Chicago and North Western railway conductor, driver of the car, was released by Melrose Park police under bond, with instructions to appear at an inquest.

The death of Jandrich and two others yesterday raised the 1934 Cook county traffic toll to 1,208. The other victims:

Jeanette Schneider, 6 years old, 2904 Washington avenue, Wilmette. Died in the Evanston hospital, where she was taken Tuesday after she had been struck by an automobile at Ridge and Lake avenues, Wilmette.

The driver of the car, Carl L. Braun, head of the Braun Brothers Oil company of Wilmette, who lives at 9118 La Crosse avenue, Niles Center, was released.

John Slager, 45 years old, 2358 Indiana avenue, a printer. Died in the Evanston hospital, where he was taken Tuesday after he had been struck by an automobile at Cottage Grove avenue and 39th street.

William T. Hagen, 36 years old, 2415 Cortland street, driver of the car, was not held.

FUGITIVE LIFER, RECAPTURED, IS GRANTED PARDON

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—C. D. Cooper, alias Ben Jones, who escaped from the South Carolina penitentiary nine years ago and had led a model life since then, was pardoned today by Gov. I. C. Blackwood.

Cooper was arrested early this year at Los Angeles, where he had married and begun life anew as Ben Jones. He had been sentenced to serve a life term in the slaying of Nick Dulcia, a taxi driver, near Bennettsville, S. C., about 15 years ago.

The clemency, one of several granted by the governor in a Christmas pardoning program, restored Cooper's citizenship as well as terminated the life sentence.

Fleming, once owner of two brokerage houses in Los Angeles, is under a two to twenty year prison sentence there for larceny. He jumped a $25,000 bond and came to Chicago, posing as J. C. Collins and operating the Colonial Finance and Loan company at 29 South La Salle street.

Illinois Escapes Death in Colorado Gas Chamber

Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Charles E. Graham, 41, confessed slayer, was found "not guilty by reason of insanity" by a jury here today.

Graham, one time resident of Alton, Ill., was convicted last spring of killing Mrs. Verne Glacier and George Morris in a squalid shack which they shared here.

He was sentenced to death in the lethal gas chamber, but saved when the State Supreme court ordered a second trial.

Earl K. Fleming, 39 years old, was started back to Los Angeles last night in the custody of a California deputy sheriff and an assistant state attorney.

Fleming, once owner of two brokerage houses in Los Angeles, is under a two to twenty year prison sentence there for larceny. He jumped a $25,000 bond and came to Chicago, posing as J. C. Collins and operating the Colonial Finance and Loan company at 29 South La Salle street.

U.S. Men Stay in Halifax

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 19.—The nine men saved from the sinking British ship Usworth last week remained here today as the Conard White Star liner Ascania, their rescuer, sailed for New York. The nine sailors, all that survived of a crew of 24, were picked up by the Ascania about 600 miles off the Azores.

PASSENGER SHIP SINKS IN HARBOR CRASH; SAVE 280

Dutch Steamer Rammed by Portuguese Craft.

OPORTO, Portugal, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Swift working seamen today removed 122 passengers from the Dutch steamer Orania just before she sank in Leixoes harbor after colliding with the Portuguese freighter Loanda. The crew of 138 were also able to leave the ship safely.

The Orania listed heavily to port as the passengers were being disembarked. Efforts were made to beach the vessel, but she sank in the harbor, lying on her side half submerged.

The freighter was entering the harbor at full speed when she crashed into the anchored Orania.

Ship's Side Torn Open.

The Dutch ship's side was torn open from top to bottom and passengers were hurled helter-skelter by the impact.

Commander Laurens Maars of the Orania quickly organized the disembarking of the passengers, using the lifeboats on the port side. Such was the haste in leaving the ship that most of the passengers left the greater part of their belongings behind.

A series of small explosions started in the engine room shortly after the passengers were removed and the crew also left the ship hurriedly.

The Loanda, which was entering port at great speed to avoid heavy seas, was only slightly damaged.

Big Welcome for Sisto Rescuers.

HALFBOURG, Germany, Dec. 19.—This city prepared today to give a rousing welcome to the German liner Usworth which reaches port here late Friday or early Saturday with the crew of sixteen rescued last night from the sinking Norwegian freighter Sisto.

Great enthusiasm was displayed over the feat of the New York's German lifeboat crew in successfully battling a raging sea to transfer the Norwegian sailors from their disabled ship. One local insurance company donated $1,200 for the rescuers.

The account of the New York's German disabled race to the stricken freighter, disabled early yesterday in a terrific storm about 650 miles north of the Azores, was told by radio today by Commander Fritz Kruse, commander of the rescue liner. He said he got the SOS at 2 p. m. yesterday.

The Story of Rescue.

"The New York steamed back in a raging sea and a northwesterly gale, reaching the Sisto at 10 p. m.," he continued. The Aurania, the Europa, the Gordstein, and others successively appeared on the scene and the salvaging procedure was agreed upon.

"At 10:30 p. m. the Sisto asked that the crew be taken off. The Aurania was asked to pour oil on the Sisto's weather side, while the Europa concentrated searchlights and the New York, approaching to lee, launched a lifeboat with the second officer and ten sailors.

"After two hours of the hardest work the Sisto seamen were saved. One by one they jumped overboard, were picked up by the lifeboat, and by 2 a. m. all sixteen of them were uninjured aboard the New York, which then continued its voyage. The wreck is still drifting and is a danger to navigation."

Usworth's Men Stay in Halifax.

GEN. HERRERA SEIZED AT N. Y. HOSPITAL AT REQUEST OF CUBANS

New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Gen. Alberto Herrera, member of the Cuban cabinet during President Gerardo Machado's regime, was arrested today at the French hospital on an extradition warrant issued here last May at the request of the Cuban consul general. The warrant charges murder.

That Gen. Herrera was in the hospital had been revealed earlier by Francis A. O'Neill, who appeared before Gen. W. C. Cotten, United States commissioner, to ask for a dismissal of the warrant on the ground that it charged a political crime.

Mr. O'Neill said his client was suffering from a fractured skull as a result of having been hit by an automobile last Friday.

Commissioner Cotten adjourned argument on the motion until Jan. 19. Deputies were assigned to guard the prisoner during his stay at the hospital.

The murder charge relates to the killing of 20 persons when Cuban soldiers fired into crowds celebrating a false report of Gen. Machado's resignation on Aug. 7, 1933.

At that time Gen. Herrera was secretary of war and navy. He served as provisional president for a few hours when Gen. Machado abdicated five days later.

N. Y. TO FIND OUT WHETHER CRIME IS BUT SKIN DEEP

New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The department of correction launched a drive today to test the modern theory that a "beautiful" prisoner never repeats.

Hereafter, Commissioner Austin McCormick disclosed, first offenders who desire it will be treated by plastic surgery to correct any defects in their physiognomies.

McCormick said he would test the theory that many persons become anti-social and commit crime because of their unfortunate physical appearance hinders them socially and in getting jobs.

"It's been done occasionally in the federal service," the commissioner said. "You find a case every now and then of some man with a busted nose or disfiguring scar who looks like a broken down pug, and who complains that he can't get a job because of his appearance. He may be a decent fellow, but employers won't have him."

Hardened criminals who might want to get in on the plan are not eligible, he said.

Letter from Vanderbilt Girl to Mother

Copy of letter written by Gloria Vanderbilt to her mother, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and made public in New York along with the child's testimony in custody case.

MRS. WHITNEY READY TO PAY BILLS FOR GLORIA

Mother to Tell Court Soon of Expenses.

New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—The guardians of 10 year old Gloria Vanderbilt told Surrogate James A. Foley today that they had been informed that Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney would bear all the expenses of the child's upbringing and education as long as Gloria is in her custody.

At the same time the co-guardians, Thomas B. Gilchrist and George W. Wickham, called on Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, the child's mother, to disclose what resources she has independent of the estate left for her daughter by the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt. The child will spend Christmas with her mother, and Mrs. Vanderbilt is keeping secret details of her celebration.

Draw $48,000 in Year.

Last year the court was informed that Mrs. Vanderbilt had no resources other than her infant daughter's income and it was understood that the $48,000 withdrawn from income of Gloria's inheritance was as much for her mother's maintenance as for the child's. Mrs. Whitney has been caring for the child since 1932 at her own expense.

The petition filed today said the guardians had been informed Mrs. Whitney would continue to bear all the expenses of providing a home for Gloria except for medical, surgical, and dental care. That Dr. William St. Lawrence estimated would not exceed $1,500. The guardians said they had asked Mrs. Vanderbilt for a statement of her requirements for the support of her daughter in 1933, but had not received that information.

On Dec. 23, by order of the surrogate, Mrs. Vanderbilt will be required to estimate how much of the income she will need for herself and the amount she will need for her daughter.

Resources for Child.

In their petition the guardians reviewed the litigation over the child's custody and pointed out that Mrs. Whitney had been given custody of the child five days a week. Gloria's personal property, the guardians said, consists of cash and bonds with a book value of $2,957,357. In addition Gloria is to receive more than $750,000 under the will of her paternal grandmother, Alice G. Vanderbilt, who died last April. The guardians said they had received $125,788 in income from the estate and expect an additional $900 before the end of the year.

LIFE SENTENCES FOR KIDNAPERS OF EX-EDITOR

Miami, Fla., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Life sentences were meted out here today to four men who pleaded guilty to kidnapping Dr. Santiago Claret, former Cuban editor.

Indictments charging the men, who included Dr. Claret's chauffeur, with kidnapping for ransom. Punishable by death in Florida, were returned by the grand jury yesterday.

Throwing themselves upon the mercy of the court, the men pleaded guilty this morning. The state, because Dr. Claret was not injured, did not press for the maximum penalty.

The prisoners were named in the indictments as Roy Gray, formerly of Cairo, Ga., and Dr. Claret's chauffeur at the time of the abduction; his brother, Fred Gray, Sam Garelick and W. R. Millard.

CLEANERS' PRICE FIXING WRIT SET ASIDE ON APPEAL

Cut Raters Win Fight on Klarkowski Order.

The Appellate court dissolved yesterday a temporary injunction issued on Oct. 11 by Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski restraining cleaners and dyers in Chicago from charging less than a minimum scale set by the court for cleaning garments. The scale was 35 cents a garment if delivered, or 69 cents on a cash and carry basis.

The opinion of the higher court, written by Presiding Judge Oscar Hebel with the concurrence of Justices Francis E. Wilson and Ross C. Hall, did not deny the price-fixing power of a court. It merely held that the defendants in the original injunction case were entitled to a full hearing before any prices were set.

Question of Reasonableness.

"It appears from the facts stated in the bill of complaint," the opinion says, "that cleaning and pressing services should be at a retail price of 70 to 80 cents a garment; still it is stated that wholesale service can be rendered for from 35 to 40 cents."

"The range of prices for this service may be questioned by the defendants as to reasonableness and they have the right to be heard. The question of reasonable price should be passed upon only at the final hearing."

The injunction proceedings to fix prices were the latest step to achieve stability in Chicago's cleaning and dyeing industry, which has been ridden for years by price wars and violence, and at one time was subjected to serious invasions by gangsters and general racketeering prices.

The Background of the Situation.

Shortly before the injunction was obtained the Chicago Cleaners and Dyers association, which employs union labor and has attempted to keep price scales up, shut down the plants of all its members, locking out the union help. The unions in the industry then picketed and closed all the non-union plants, tying the whole industry up for more than a week.

Peace was finally achieved by agreement of all the cleaners to the price scale later embodied in the injunction, and the injunction was sought to strengthen this price agreement.

Twenty-two cleaning plants were made defendants in the injunction action. The leaders among them have done most of their business with chain shops which had been the principal price cutters in the industry before the lockout, and it was they who appealed from Judge Klarkowski's ruling and obtained its reversal yesterday.

"FIRESIDE" TALK OF ROOSEVELT TO BE CANCELED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt indicated today that his long heralded "fireside" talk to the nation, originally scheduled for delivery some time before Christmas, would be canceled. He explained that work on his annual message to congress, to be delivered on Jan. 3, kept him too busy to devote any time to a radio address.

There is still a possibility that he will make a radio talk before congress meets, but it is not probable, the President added.

Mr. Roosevelt also disclosed that his annual message will be comparatively short, confined to broad legislative principles and that individual messages will be made at later dates in connection with specific administration proposals. It is expected that he will deliver his message to congress in person.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, when asked today at Secretary Wallace's press conference whether he was in favor of the Bankhead act, replied smilingly:

"Sometimes a child is not planned for and perhaps not wanted, but you grow to love it just the same."

Wallace and Davis opposed passage of the act in congress last spring.

BAR COMEDIANS ROAST NEW DEAL IN ANNUAL SHOW

and Other Democrats.

Members of the Chicago Bar association put on grease paint and loosed a few jokes at the New Dealers last night at the association's annual entertainment, a musical comedy entitled "Christmas Spirits, 1934." The show was directed by Homer H. Cooper, who, with Chester R. Davis and Don Kenneth Jones, wrote the book. The comedy was staged before 650 members of the association in its quarters in the Burnham building. It will be repeated tonight.

John D. Black, former president of the association, stole the show with a characterization of Huey Long, until the arrival on the scene of Charles Cranston Spray, as Mrs. Roosevelt, who added much to the general gaiety.

The curtain rises.
After a prolog, in which George Washington (Samuel Adams), Thomas Jefferson (George D. Miller), and Benjamin Franklin (James P. Harrod) read the preamble to the Constitution, the scene opened with the members of the cabinet waiting for a meeting with President Roosevelt.

Madam Secretary Perkins (Frank J. Link) declared she thought Attorney General Cummings (Franklin E. Vaughan) was the press agent for John Dillinger. A dispute as to the location of Latvia brought the statement from Secretary Morgenthau (W. R. T. Ewen) that it was a city in Wisconsin where his agents had an engagement to shoot two gangsters.

Huey Long arrived and took charge of proceedings in the President's absence. He congratulated Jim Farley (Francis X. Busch), saying: "Any guy what can get a government auditor to top $64,000,000 off the ledger so he can show an operating profit in post-offices can set up plus in my alley all night."

Jokes Carols a Bit.
To Secretary Ickes (Attorney Davis) he remarked: "You're a hell of a Democrat," which brought the reply, "That's what the Republicans in Illinois say." After Ickes explained that he fitted himself to dispense the PWA millions by mastering Indian giving from the Indians, he launched into song, to the tune of "The Yellow Submarine," "I'm always honest, they say: Projects are good or no pay; But when at election, Our side needs protection, I'll find a way."

Throughout the evening Secretary Ickes met repeated requests for money from Mayor Kelly (Warren B. Buckley), who was cumulatively reinforced by Patrick A. Nash (Clarence R. Conklin), James E. McCabe (Morton J. Barnard), and Gov. Horner (Howard Hayes) before his plea was granted.

On the final arrival of the President (D. K. Jones), it developed that the meeting was called to discuss the Constitution, which the cabinet members complained interfered with their plans. The President assured them that he had the Constitution always before him, on a table in his office, but when Vice President Garner (Allan T. Gilbert), who appeared throughout the evening as a frock coated office boy, went to fetch it, it proved to be an Old Ironsides model.

"The Only Defender of the Constitution," proved to be a gagged character who carried a sign reading "Forgotten Man" on one side, and "Taxpayer" on the reverse. He produced the only copy available, which the President, trying to show how it could be stretched, tore in two. But the authors wrote a happy ending to their show by having the President remark to Donald Richberg (Ralph D. Shanes), "Henceforth we must stick to the Constitution, and Don, we'll turn to the right."

SHERIFF BELIEVES MRS. SCHAFFNER DEAD IN BAY

as Dog Quits.

Carmel, Cal., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—The hunt for Mrs. Elliot B. Schaffner, 34, Chicago society matron and member of the nationally known family of clothing manufacturers, was still pressed tonight although a police trained dog had found her trail led to the ocean shore and there ended. Sheriff Carl H. Abbott said he believed she had been drowned and he ordered planes over Monterey bay to look for the body.

Mrs. Schaffner has been missing since yesterday morning. Then it was discovered she had left her home here apparently clad only in her night clothes, a fur coat, and a pair of slippers.

Friends Fear Kidnaping.
Although authorities said a friend of Mrs. Schaffner's reported hearing her threaten suicide while at the ocean side a few days ago, they were considering the possibility that she had been kidnapped or had wandered away and become lost.

The abduction theory entered the widening search following the report that a window screen had been found torn from Mrs. Schaffner's home. The missing woman's Negro cook, Bert Dorsey, said she had not been "in her right mind" for the last two weeks and expressed the belief that she had nearly wandered away. He said the door through which she had apparently left the house sometime between midnight and dawn had been opened from the inside.

Returns from Hospital.
Mrs. Schaffner returned to her home only Monday from a 10-day stay in a Monterey hospital. It was said she had gone there for a rest. Dorsey said he had summoned Dr. Herman Adler of Berkeley, who had ordered his employer sent to the hospital.

Her trail was picked up between the house and the ocean shore by one of the pair of Doberman Pinschers brought here by plane from Berkeley. The dog followed the trail to the beach. There the trail apparently ended.

Mrs. Schaffner's husband, Joseph H. Schaffner, a director of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, was hastening here by train tonight from Wyoming. There bad weather forced down the plane in which he had set out from Chicago.

MYSTERY BOMB BLAST STARTLES PATRONS IN CAFE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Twenty patrons in the Drive buffet, 212 North Wabash avenue, were startled last night when a dynamite bomb was exploded at the alley door of the Ceylon building, in which the restaurant is situated. No one was injured, but Fred Monaco, 2050 Pierce avenue, attendant in the garage of the Pure Oil building, across the alley, was knocked down by the blast as he passed the doorway. Monaco said a man hurried past him before the explosion.

The blast tore a small hole in the masonry by the door which opens on a freight elevator. Police planned to question the building management to determine if there was any labor trouble. Harold Davis, proprietor of the buffet, said he had been having no labor disputes.

Income Tax Returns of War Industry Heads Destroyed

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Senate munitions probes disclosed today that the wartime income tax returns of several men prominent in the nation's industries mobilization had been destroyed by the internal revenue bureau, including those of Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board.

In addition it received evidence that many of those who held the responsibility of buying governmental supplies during that great conflict were directly interested in companies producing such materials.

The disclosures caused a stir in more than one government quarter. At the treasury, however, a spokesman said the destruction of old income tax returns was authorized by law.

1917 Return on File.
Some of the larger returns usually are retained. It was said officially, but no explanation was forthcoming on why Baruch's 1917 return was still on file after the next two years' returns had been destroyed.

Committee investigators reported that while Baruch's returns for 1917 before he assumed his chairmanship were on file at the bureau, those for 1918 and 1919 had been destroyed. Baruch, a persistent campaigner for "taking the profit out of war," is head of the presidential committee recently appointed to study this problem.

Other missing returns were those of Robert S. Lovett, Daniel Willard, Benedict Crowell, and Robert S. Brookings, all members of the war industries board, together with those of Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordnance at the outbreak of the war, and Lieut. Col. William Williams of the ordnance department. Crowell also was assistant secretary of war.

Testimony was introduced that Lieut. Col. Williams had been a stock holder in the du Pont company and had signed contracts with the Delaware concern totaling almost $50,000.

SEES 600,000 IN CALIFORNIA AS MENTAL CASES

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Dr. Paul Popenoe, human relations scientist, startled an assemblage of California school teachers today with the prediction that 600,000 of the present population of California are doomed either to be adduced insane during their lifetime or to suffer a mental breakdown which will make such action advisable. This figure does not include those already adjudged insane.

Dr. Popenoe, who is a physician and eugenic birth control advocate, urged sterilization of the insane and feeble-minded. He insisted that California's sterilization law, already in effect for 25 years, must be even more rigidly enforced, although, with 10,000 operations performed since 1909, this state leads the nation in practical and experimental sterilization.

SIFT NEW STORY THAT DILLINGER PAID FOR ESCAPE

U.S. Agents Deny Report; Prison Awaits Burns.

(Picture on back page.) Coincident with the failure of a Brooklyn, N. Y., policeman to link Joseph Burns, Dillinger gangster, with the $427,000 money wagon holdup in Brooklyn last August, new reports were spread concerning Dillinger's wooden gun break from the Crown Point jail March 3, 1934.

The new crop of stories of Dillinger—which had not been authenticated last night—did not, however, strengthen charges against Burns and it appeared probable that he would be sent back to Michigan City within a few days to resume serving his life sentence. Burns escaped from the Indiana penitentiary with nine others on Sept. 25, 1933. He is being held by postal authorities.

Echo of Political Fight.

Most of the "new" information has been hinted at or printed before. It is regarded as the outcrop of a political situation in Indiana brought about during the recent senatorial campaign by Gov. McNutt's promise to go to the bottom of the jail-break. The climax of this promise was the arrest and splitting away of several jail employees just before election, in which McNutt's candidate, Sherman Minton, defeated United States Senator Arthur Robinson. The latest emanations are still linked with politics, it was suggested.

In Washington, justice department officials were inclined to laugh at the new story. One of them said that many rumors had been heard on the Dillinger case, but that investigation had not disclosed evidence sufficient to warrant indictments.

Linked to Maloy Robbery.

But out of the welter of rumors and denials it appeared last night that a solution of the $52,000 robbery of the summer home of Thomas E. Maloy, business agent for the motion picture operators' union, might be found. There were reports that Burns and Richard Day, another who escaped from Michigan City, had been identified by Thurman Ralston, town marshal of Long Beach, Ind., as two of the five men who invaded Maloy's summer home near Michigan City Oct. 25 and escaped with $37,000 in cash and $15,000 worth of jewelry.

Ralston is expected to view Burns today. Ralston was a guard at the Indiana penitentiary while both Burns and Day were prisoners there. He was said to be certain that they were among the Maloy robbers.

This charge, however, probably would not affect Burns' return to the prison, for, inasmuch as he is already under a life sentence there, another conviction would not increase his stay behind bars.

Machine Gun Traced.

It also was reported that the machine gun taken from Burns' south side apartment last Sunday had been used in a South Carolina postal robbery committed by the Touhy gang. Basil [The Owl] Baughart, associate of the Touhy's, is in prison for that crime.

The postal inspectors are said to have learned from Burns that Tommy Touhy, brother of Roger, the leader of the gang, is near death from tuberculosis and paralysis. He previously had been reported as wasting away from the former disease, but Burns' story was that he has become ex-trely emaciated and cannot live much longer.

Meanwhile, the latest Dillinger "escape" story did show that agents of the division of investigation, department of justice, have been investigating the escape since Nov. 5, United States Attorney James E. Fleming of Fort Wayne, federal prosecutor for northern Indiana, said that on that date he conferred in Chicago with Agents Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis—since slain by "Baby Face" Nelson—and that Washington immediately began investigating the escape. The only federal "angle" was the theft of Sheriff Holly's car and its transportation interstate into Illinois.

Deny 'Wholesale Indictments.'

As rumored here, Dillinger was to have paid $11,000, but only about half that sum reached the "proper" sources, an unidentified middleman appropriating the remainder. That act later came to Dillinger's attention, it was said, and he wrote a biting note to the culprit.

The assertion was made that what money changed hands was delivered in a Crown Point jail, but that lacked confirmation.

Another declaration that "wholesale indictments, including a few Indiana notables," were to be returned shortly was denied by United States Attorney Fleming.

The federal agents have made no report to me, and, naturally, any indictments would be based on what evidence they gather," he said.

Arthur O'Leary, former investigator for Attorney Louis Piquett, Dillinger's lawyer, and Pearl Hellman Frasnano were credited with being sources of part of the new information. According to the rumors, Postal Inspectors John McWhorter and John McCarthy had all these facts and others, not yet disclosed, in their possession. The two inspectors, however, said they knew nothing about the stories.

Their chief, Walter Johnson, added a firm affirmation. "We are not investigating Dillinger's escape or anything else connected with him," Johnson said. "Our duties are the apprehension of mail robbers. We arrested Burns because we thought he would tie up with an eastern job. Apparently he does not."

Supervising Police Captain John Stege was also linked with the new story. He also denied knowledge of it. This made it practically unanimous save for word from J. Edward Barce, deputy attorney general of Indiana, who talked to Burns after his arrest.

"News to Me"—Barce.

Barce, in Indianapolis, first declined to talk about the story. Any announcement must come from the governor, he declared. Gov. McNutt said he would have something to say "at the proper time."

Later, however, Barce declared that the story was "news to me." "I never heard such a story nor that amount [$11,000] mentioned. And if there are any indictments to be returned I don't know about that."

O'Leary is being held at the Waukegan jail as a government prisoner after pleading guilty to aiding Piquett harbor Dillinger. He called Agent McKey at the department of justice last night and declared that he had had nothing to do with the story and wished that fact immediately made known for he feared for the safety of his family if the assertion went unchallenged.

GOV. MERRIAM NOT HER FIANCE, JUDGE INSISTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Superior Judge Georgia Bullock, pioneer woman of the Los Angeles law courts, tonight announced in firm tones that she was not engaged to be married in the near future to Gov. Frank E. Merriam of California.

"It has gotten so that my own family hardly believe my denials, and ask me about it whenever I come home from court," Judge Bullock said. "Besides that, I am getting fat mail. But I wish to deny that I am betrothed to the governor. I do understand that he will be married shortly, but not to me."

Gov. Merriam is a widower.

SANTA TO GIVE PARENTS TO 18 AT ORPHANAGE

Christmas Eve Departures Increase at St. Vincent's

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A rushing Christmas business in adoptions at St. Vincent's orphanage, more than 20 per cent beyond that of last year, was reported yesterday by Miss Bernadine Healy, head of the orphanage's social service department.

On Christmas eve eighteen babies between the ages of three months and 2½ years are to find parents in their Christmas stockings. On that night, their layettes packed and themselves bundled into woolly coats, they'll be whisked away to their new homes into which they are to be legally adopted at the end of six months.

Some of the applications were made in preparation for the big event of Christmas eve as early as June, Miss Healy said. "In the last few weeks the prospective foster fathers and mothers have been haunting the orphanage."

Others to Be Remembered.

The children in St. Vincent's not so fortunate as to get new parents for Christmas will get plenty of toys, Santa Claus, Christmas trees, and ice cream. Yesterday the ladies auxiliary of the Loyal Order of Moose called in person to deliver 60 dolls and other toys which are to be distributed Christmas eve.

Today, however, will be the big Christmas party for the orphans, the annual one given by a group of society women who compose the St. Vincent's Crib society. All the little babies will be on good behavior and the older ones will be dressed in their Sunday frocks, for it is rumored that Santa Claus will arrive with a toy for every one, and there is to be ice cream and cake. Many of the more substantial toys for use in the play-rooms are always given at this party, such as tricycles, doll buggies, and rocking horses.

Other Events of Season.

In another part of the city today children of the Haven school, 1473 South Wabash avenue, will sit down to a Christmas dinner as the guests of the South Central Kiwanis club, and later will enjoy a Christmas tree party. There will be turkey dinners for 300, plus fruit and candy.

Students of Lane Technical High school, according to their Christmas custom, were preparing yesterday to distribute 300 baskets to the needy tomorrow.

Conviction of Klutas Pal for Machine Gun Upheld

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield upheld yesterday the conviction of Earl McMahon, alias Jimmy Glennon, pal of the slain Theodore [Handsome Jack] Klutas, on a charge of possessing a machine gun. McMahon was found guilty last March 12 by Judge James F. Fardy in the Cook County Criminal court in the first case under the new state law which prohibits possession of a machine gun to all persons except law enforcing officers. He was sentenced to a term of one to five years in the penitentiary.

M. W. LITTLETON, FAMED LAWYER, DIES IN EAST

Noted as Orator; Aided Harry K. Thaw.

New York, Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Martin W. Littleton Sr., New York lawyer, a former representative in congress, died at his home at Plandome, L. I., tonight, after an illness of a week. He was in his 63d year. Death was due to a heart attack.

Littleton figured in many sensation cases. He was chief counsel for the defense in the second trial of Harry K. Thaw in which the slayer of Stanford White was found not guilty on the grounds of insanity. Thaw was sent to an asylum but later escaped. Defender of Sinclair.

Littleton also served as counsel for Harry F. Sinclair in the Teapot Dome trial, for Charles W. Morse, the shipping magnate, and for Truman H. Newberry, who was excluded from the senate on the charge of spending too much money in the Michigan primary of 1918.

Littleton, half-brother of the former Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., was born in Boone county, Tenn. Mr. Littleton leaves as survivors his widow, Mrs. Maud Wilson Littleton, and a son, Martin Littleton Jr., assistant district attorney of Nassau county.

Famed as an Orator.

Celebrated alike as one of the leading lawyers and one of the great orators of the nation, Mr. Littleton rose from obscurity almost solely through his own, unaided efforts. He came from a long line of Tennessee mountaineers.

His father had served as a federal officer during the civil war, but returned to his southern home at its close. The lad was born on a battlefield of the conflict between the states—Campbell Station, near Knoxville.

At the age of 11, the lad, with only the education he had been able to acquire alone, left his father's home and struck out for himself. He worked his way across the plains of Texas and up into Panhandle country.

Guided Into Legal Work.

While he was working on the roads of Parker county, Texas, he attracted the attention of the prosecuting attorney, who offered him a position as clerk in his office. Only two years later, at the age of 20, he was admitted to the bar and a short time thereafter he became assistant prosecutor.

Four years later he came to this city. His first political work came in 1900 when he toured the state making speeches with Senator David B. Hill. He became a national political figure in 1904 when he presented the name of Alton B. Parker to the Democratic national convention in St. Louis.

In 1910 he was chosen by the Democrats to run for the house of representatives from the First New York district, which included the Oyster Bay home of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. He defeated the Republican incumbent by some 6,000 votes.

Later he went to congress and finally returned to his long practice of law.

GOOD FELLOWS OF OTHER YEARS JOIN NEW DRIVE

Ex-Editor's Message Urges Support.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

"Once a Good Fellow, always a Good Fellow."

This is a saying coined many years ago during one of the earlier Christmas campaigns by THE TRIBUNE and this year's Good Fellow drive is verifying it. Its truth is emphasized again in a letter received at headquarters, 1 South Dearborn street, from a former Good Fellow editor, Thomas J. Wren.

Because his message is directed to those who have enrolled in this year's movement and to those who should, it is reproduced here.

"Dear Good Fellow Editor: "I am enlisting today in the 1934 annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE campaign which was launched some years ago for the sole purpose of preventing the tragedy of the empty stockings for children of the poor on Christmas morning."

Enterprise—Not a Charity.

"To me the Good Fellow movement is an enterprise and cannot be construed as a charity. It is bereft of all the red tape that usually binds the distribution of kindness to the needy. "Throughout the years THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Good Fellow has been like a sturdy ship of the clipper day build, has sailed the seas and defied the stormy elements. This good ship may be pictured as leaving the Arctic late each fall season bound for Chicago. It leaves from the land of the Eskimo, where life itself is a struggle for existence. It has sailed the troughy seas year in and year out, loaded to capacity with those thousands of small toys which gladden the hearts of the tenement children on Christmas day."

"For myself and several friends, I

Christmas Almost Here.

It will be Christmas morning very soon. Already the mail man is bringing in the gifts of the season. But to many homes in Chicago there will not even be a Christmas tree. It is to these families that the Good Fellows ask you to go on Monday or Christmas day, bearing a basket of food, candy, and toys. There still is plenty of time to make a thorough investigation yourself in addition to that which THE TRIBUNE'S Clearing bureau gives you of the recipient family.

Call Superior 0100 or fill in the Good Fellow coupon for your family. You are welcome to visit the Good Fellow department at 1 South Dearborn street. There you may read, if you wish, the thousands of letters pleading for Christmas cheer. In the spirit of Mr. Wren's letter the good ship, Good Fellow, must continue to sail heavily laden with good things for the poor families. Won't you join its crew?

200 POLICE WILL AID LOOP TRAFFIC DURING CAROLS

Coroner Learns Day Late of CCC Fatal Accident

Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county learned yesterday that Nels Jepsen, 33 years old, a Civilian Conservation corps worker, had died on Tuesday as the result of an accident on Dec. 13 while working on the Skokie valley drainage project. Dr. Taylor said the army medical men at Fort Sheridan, where the boy died, neglected to inform him of the death as they are required to do by law. Dr. Taylor held an inquest yesterday at which witnesses testified that the boy was fatally hurt when a wheelbarrow slipped while he was pushing it across a plank over a ditch.

NAVY TALKS END; SIR JOHN SIMON HITS JAP STAND

with U. S. Viewpoint.

BY JOHN STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Dec. 19.—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, tonight criticized the Japanese insistence upon naval equality with Great Britain and the United States and clearly indicated that the latter two nations stand solidly together against granting such equality.

"The British view," he declared, "is—and I think it is also the American view—that equality in security is not necessarily reached by an arrangement allowing the three powers equality in naval armaments."

Sir John made his statement in a speech broadcast here and in the United States a few hours after the three power naval conversations here had been adjourned indefinitely. The conversations ended without coming to any concrete results.

Hopes to Renew Talks.
The foreign secretary expressed the "firm hope" of the British government that the meetings might be renewed in two or three months' time. Great Britain greatly regretted Japan's decision to give notice of its intention to terminate the Washington treaty, he said, but he pointed out that the Japanese are acting within their rights and that the matter should not be taken "too tragically," because there still remain two years in which to try to arrive at a new agreement. The Washington treaty will run two years after notice of abrogation is given. Sir John compared Japan's action to that of a man giving a prescribed notice to terminate a lease or other form of agreement.

"He may do this," the foreign secretary pointed out, "without the intention of ending relations between himself and others and only as a step to discussing the negotiation of terms for the future."

Would Be a Calamity.
It would be "a fearful calamity for the world," Sir John continued, if in the future there were no treaties limiting both the total size of navies and the maximum size of the different types of ships.

"For these treaties in the past have been the most successful of all efforts for disarmament," he said. "They have saved every country concerned millions in money and have contributed to a sense of security and cooperation for peace in a way which makes us determined to do everything in our power to preserve such a system hereafter."

Referring to the Japanese proposal for a "common upper limit" of naval tonnage, Sir John said: "While we understand that it is not a necessary result of this proposal that Japan itself would proceed to build up to this common maximum limit, it wishes to establish the right to do so when it thinks fit." Great Britain does not favor such an arrangement, he said, insisting that with a greater range of responsibilities and a vast extent of sea communications, Great Britain needs a larger navy than Japan in order to preserve in practice the equality of security.

Text of Communique.
The text of the communique which ended the London conversations follows:

"The naval conversations which started last June and after recess have been proceeding since Oct. 23 are agreed by the representatives of all three governments to have served a useful purpose."

"Three conversations, initiated under the London naval treaty of 1930, became broadened in scope in the light of proposals and suggestions subsequently made. Every aspect of the naval problem has been discussed between the parties frankly, fully, and amicably."

"It was never the purpose of these preliminary conversations to reach any hard and fast conclusions—the sole purpose was to prepare the ground for future negotiations and agreement. The French and Italian governments, who are also signatories of the present naval treaties and were associated with the discussions in the summer, have been informed of all developments."

Still Favor Limitation.
"Although the three governments represented in these conversations are in favor of the continuation of naval limitation with such reduction as can be agreed upon by all the powers concerned, the principles and methods for achieving this in the future remain to be determined."

"Now that respective views have been made known and fully discussed, the conversations have reached a stage when it is felt there should be adjournment in order that the delegates may resume personal contact with their governments and the resulting situation can be fully analyzed and further considered."

"It has thereupon been agreed to adjourn the conversations at this point."

"The governments concerned in the London conversations will keep in close touch with each other and the other governments which are parties to the London and Washington naval treaties."

"The adjournment will also give his Majesty's government in the United Kingdom an opportunity for further consultation with the governments of the dominions."

"It is hoped in view of the preparatory work accomplished during the conversations which already have taken place the situation will so develop as to justify a subsequent meeting as soon as an opportune moment

Balance in Pacific Rests on Philippines, Senator Asserts

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Belief the Philippine problem forms possibly "the most important one facing this and the next congress" was expressed here today by Senator Ernest Gibson (Rep., Vt.).

He pointed out the balance of power in the Pacific was involved in the prospective establishment of a Philippine republic about ten years hence. The senator was much interested in stories of Japanese inroads on Philippine-American trade.

Complain of Tariffs.
As a member of the senatorial commission investigating possible changes in the Philippine independence act he heard a delegation of importers assert the American textile trade with the islands had been virtually ruined within a year because of insufficient island tariffs.

Senator Gibson said it possible he would visit Davao, southernmost island of the Mindanao group, where Japanese control hemp production and trade.

arrives. In that event the government of the United Kingdom, which initiated the present conversations, will take appropriate steps."

"U. S. Will Be Defended."
Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Swanson, commenting today on the action of the Japanese privy council in unanimously advising the mikado to abrogate the Washington naval treaty, said:

"We will do what is necessary for proper defense of America and its commerce and its industries."

Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) said the Japanese are acting within their rights and that the matter should not be taken "too tragically," because there still remain two years in which to try to arrive at a new agreement. The Washington treaty will run two years after notice of abrogation is given. Sir John compared Japan's action to that of a man giving a prescribed notice to terminate a lease or other form of agreement.

"He may do this," the foreign secretary pointed out, "without the intention of ending relations between himself and others and only as a step to discussing the negotiation of terms for the future."

Would Be a Calamity.
It would be "a fearful calamity for the world," Sir John continued, if in the future there were no treaties limiting both the total size of navies and the maximum size of the different types of ships.

"For these treaties in the past have been the most successful of all efforts for disarmament," he said. "They have saved every country concerned millions in money and have contributed to a sense of security and cooperation for peace in a way which makes us determined to do everything in our power to preserve such a system hereafter."

Referring to the Japanese proposal for a "common upper limit" of naval tonnage, Sir John said: "While we understand that it is not a necessary result of this proposal that Japan itself would proceed to build up to this common maximum limit, it wishes to establish the right to do so when it thinks fit."

Great Britain does not favor such an arrangement, he said, insisting that with a greater range of responsibilities and a vast extent of sea communications, Great Britain needs a larger navy than Japan in order to preserve in practice the equality of security.

Text of Communique.
The text of the communique which ended the London conversations follows:

"The naval conversations which started last June and after recess have been proceeding since Oct. 23 are agreed by the representatives of all three governments to have served a useful purpose."

"Three conversations, initiated under the London naval treaty of 1930, became broadened in scope in the light of proposals and suggestions subsequently made. Every aspect of the naval problem has been discussed between the parties frankly, fully, and amicably."

"It was never the purpose of these preliminary conversations to reach any hard and fast conclusions—the sole purpose was to prepare the ground for future negotiations and agreement. The French and Italian governments, who are also signatories of the present naval treaties and were associated with the discussions in the summer, have been informed of all developments."

Still Favor Limitation.
"Although the three governments represented in these conversations are in favor of the continuation of naval limitation with such reduction as can be agreed upon by all the powers concerned, the principles and methods for achieving this in the future remain to be determined."

"Now that respective views have been made known and fully discussed, the conversations have reached a stage when it is felt there should be adjournment in order that the delegates may resume personal contact with their governments and the resulting situation can be fully analyzed and further considered."

"It has thereupon been agreed to adjourn the conversations at this point."

"The governments concerned in the London conversations will keep in close touch with each other and the other governments which are parties to the London and Washington naval treaties."

"The adjournment will also give his Majesty's government in the United Kingdom an opportunity for further consultation with the governments of the dominions."

"It is hoped in view of the preparatory work accomplished during the conversations which already have taken place the situation will so develop as to justify a subsequent meeting as soon as an opportune moment

The four members of the senatorial commission—Senators Millard Tydings of Maryland, Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, William G. McAdoo of California, and Gibson—plan to leave for the states via the Suez canal Dec. 27, Senator Gibson said.

Disfavor 3 Year Period.
"I do not believe the sentiment of the mission favors shortening the decade transition period to three years as proposed by Senator King" (Dem., Utah), Gibson said.

The same change was urged by Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of the Philippine insurrection at the beginning of the century, but there has been little evidence of a strong sentiment among the islanders favoring such a change.

While he voted for the Tydings-McDuffie independence act, the senator said he doubted congress had the authority to relinquish American sovereignty to the islands. He conceded Philippines were ready for independence politically.

COMPOSER OF 'MERRY WIDOW,' FRANZ LEHAR, 'PURCHASES' BARONY

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 19.—Franz Lehar, world famous musical comedy composer, whose works include 'The Merry Widow,' soon will become a baron as a result of the newly established friendship between Austria and Hungary.

In accordance with the request of the Austrian government, Hungary will create Lehar Baron Komarom, Komarom being the town in Czechoslovakia where the composer was born. At that time it was in Hungary.

The strange request came about this way: The Karszag music publishing house and the Theater an der Wien, where 'The Merry Widow' was first presented 30 years ago, were taken over by the Credit Anstalt, banking institution here, which is state controlled.

Lehar, it is now revealed, had a claim of one million schillings (the schilling is quoted at 18.86 cents) against the music publishing house for royalties alleged to be owing him from America. He agreed, however, in a compromise with the Credit Anstalt to accept a baronetcy in relinquishment of his claim. And, since titles may not be granted in Austria, the Vienna government asked its Budapest friend to make Lehar, who has retained his Hungarian citizenship, a baron.

Husband of Sister Sues
Ben Bernie for $100,000
New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—A $100,000 alienation of affections suit has been filed against Ben Bernie, orchestra leader, in the Supreme court, it was revealed today. He is charged by Charles Mulhauser with persuading his wife, Bernie's sister, to leave him.

JAPAN IS DIVIDED OVER ABROGATION OF NAVAL TREATY

People Uneasy; Fearful of Reaction in U. S.

BY JOHN POWELL.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
TOKIO, Dec. 19.—A high official of Japan's foreign office, long experienced in the diplomacy of Nippon's neighboring states, today expressed the opinion that abrogation of the Washington naval treaty of 1922 would bring a period of stability in the far east.

He likened the situation to the removal of a troublesome tooth. He said there is abundant evidence available now that Japan's military group has achieved its long held ambition, the empire's policies are likely to become more moderate in its dealings with both China and Russia, and that the intensive militarization of Manchukuo since the occupation in 1931 will be changed to a policy of industrialization and economic development under the new ambassador-commander, Gen. Jiro Minami, who left for Hankow [Changchun] today.

Civilian Circles Uneasy.
But while foreign office officials profess calmness and optimism regarding the outcome of the Washington treaty abrogation, which received the unanimous approval of the privy council today in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, considerable uneasiness is evidenced in civilian circles, where the question is frequently asked: "What is America likely to do?" or "What will be the reaction of the American people?"

There is no questioning the fact that disruption of the long friendly treaty relationship between Japan and the United States produced a profound impression, leaving a void which it is feared is likely to aggravate the situation, which has become increasingly complicated in recent years.

The same newspapers which reported the privy council's step toward abrogation of the treaty, contained dispatches telling of the practical breakdown of negotiations with the Netherlands over trade relations between Japan and the Dutch East Indies, which have been in progress for the past six months.

New Trouble With Russia.
Aside from Japan's troublesome relations with the Soviet union over the purchase of the Chinese Eastern railway, now approaching a settlement, Japanese diplomats and business men are preparing for another tussle with the Russians over the fishery question.

In recent months the Russians, due to their own military industrialization program in Siberia, have been reducing their sales of oil and timber to Japan. This apparently was responsible for the recent suggestion here that Japan should press the

ARGENTINE ANTI-WAR PACT NOW RATIFIED BY THIRTY NATIONS

(Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.)
BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19.—Thirty nations have ratified the Argentine anti-war pact, according to an announcement by Carlos Saavedra Lamas, foreign minister, made on receipt of notification of ratification by Portugal and the Balkan states.

The pact has been ratified by all twenty-one American nations as the result of an agreement at Montevideo last December and by nine European nations, Austria, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Jugoslavia, Portugal, Rumania, Spain, and Turkey.

The accord condemns aggression, outlaws violence in the settlement of territorial questions, and declares that the signatories will not recognize territorial arrangements not peacefully arrived at, nor the occupation or acquisition of territory by force.

As Admiral Comments.
But the Japanese military leaders, of both the army and the navy, through intensive and widespread propaganda, have convinced themselves and apparently the majority of the people of their ability to solve all issues without outside help.

Vice Admiral Hajime Matsuhita, a member of the naval general staff, writing in the latest issue of the magazine Contemporary Japan, said: "We Japanese consider it absolutely necessary to protect our acquired rights in the Orient and to carry on an entirely free and justifiable trade in the markets we have established there. Hence, our navy must necessarily be such as to exercise complete command of the seas of the Orient under all circumstances."

"The Japanese are determined to maintain their claims, and are fully prepared for the risks, economic and political, of such maintenance."

MIAMI-CHICAGO PLANE SERVICE TO START TODAY

Links Midwest by Air to South America.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Miami, Fla., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Douglas airlines of Eastern Air lines are poised at 38th street airport here tonight for the takeoff on the opening tomorrow of the first regular air passenger, mail and express schedules between El Estero bay and Chicago. The opening of the new service will not only link Florida resorts and the middle west but also will connect with Pan American's system around South America.

Although all has been prepared for the inaugural trip and a special plane load of Florida newspaper publishers and public officials are to make a one-stop flight to Chicago as guests of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, vice president of Eastern Air, reports of "zero, zero" weather in Chicago have led operations officers to announce that the ships may not go out until Friday.

Expect Clearing Weather.
Florida newspapers tonight are headlining the reports that Chicago is snowbound by a terrific blizzard which has stopped all air and surface transportation. However, Capt. Rickenbacker, familiar with the fallings of the local weather prophets and in possession of accurate information concerning the probable movement of the storm at Chicago, says that the flights will not be definitely canceled until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The special trip with the Miami newspaper publishers and several Chicago newspaper men, who made the pre-inaugural southbound flight on Tuesday, is intended to set a record for the route which never before has been flown by scheduled passenger ships. With a "break" from the weather, Capt. Rickenbacker who will "command" the plane said it should be done in seven hours.

The southbound flight with stops at Louisville and Atlanta, demonstrated the impracticability of using a fast, modern transport designed to cruise at 30,000 to 35,000 feet on "short haul" lines. The average speed of the Douglas, which is capable of cruising at its optimum altitude at 190 miles an hour, was at 145 miles an hour on Tuesday.

Explains Effect on Speed.
"The Douglas has engines super-charged to deliver 710 horse power at 12,500 feet, Capt. Rickenbacker explained. "The air is thinner there and the cruising speed jumps up. But on short jumps such as Chicago to Louisville, Louisville to Atlanta, Atlanta to Jacksonville and thence to Miami, we lose so much time climbing up to altitude that it's not worth while. So we cruise at about 60 per cent throttle at 4,000 feet and we can't get better than 160 miles an hour in level flight without ruining the motors."

The traffic from Chicago to Miami is expected largely to be resort bound passengers. Northern flights are expected to be supported to a great extent by engineers and oil company officials from South American countries who are heading into the "states." Pan-American officials say they do more than half a million dollars' worth of business annually with such passengers.

START SERVICE TODAY.
Regular two way air service between Chicago and Miami, over the trail blazed on Tuesday by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, will be inaugurated today by Eastern Air Lines. There will be one flight in each direction daily.

At 1:15 p. m. today a fourteen passenger Douglas Transport plane will take off from the Chicago airport. It will make stops at Louisville, Atlanta, and Jacksonville, arriving in Miami at 10:35 p. m. Chicago time.

SECRET HEARING TESTING BUTLER'S 'FASCIST' CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Evidence as to whether money might have been used to influence the 1933 American Legion convention to endorse the gold standard was sought today by the house committee studying un-American activities.

The committee, in executive session, turned from its inquiry of communism to confer for more than two hours with Albert G. Christman about money reportedly given by him to Gerald C. MacGuire.

MacGuire, an employee in a New York brokerage firm, also was interesting to the committee because of charges by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler that MacGuire suggested the examining chief become "Fascist leader of the United States. MacGuire was described by the committee as having been interested in a "committee for a sound dollar" and to have been in Chicago when the Legion endorsed the gold standard.

While the committee hearing proceeded at the capitol, the American Federation of Labor in session downtown, moved to scotch reports that the federation was interested in a call for a "national congress for unemployment and social insurance."

U. S. MEN SEIZE 'TWO GUN TEXAS' AND FIND DOPE

"Two Gun Texas," alias Earl Carter, 32 years old, a reputed bad man, was arrested yesterday by United States secret service agents in his room at 1803 South Wabash avenue, for questioning as a counterfeiting suspect. The agents broke down the door and caught Carter as he dropped from a window to the ground outside. A search of the room revealed no counterfeiting evidence, but agents found an ounce of morphine and two of opium. Carter will be turned over to the narcotic bureau for prosecution, Capt. Callaghan said.

Harry Burns, 30 years old, a paroled convict from Joliet prison, was found in the room. Burns will be sent back to prison to complete a six year robbery term.

Duchess of York Buys a Sample of Duke's Knitting

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—With no explanation as to whether it was wifely loyalty or good judgment the duchess of York today stepped into the headquarters of the "National Knitting Appeal" and bought a sample of her husband's handiwork. What she chose was a soft woolen scarf which the second son of the king had knitted with his own hand. The duchess, like her husband, is backing the "appeal's" campaign for 100,000 garments for the unemployed.

BLAME FINANCES IN SUICIDE.
A verdict of "suicide while despondent over financial worries" was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death Tuesday of William Oakes, 52 years old, attorney, who shot himself in his office in a music store at 3018 East 91st street and died in South Chicago hospital.

FIND FRAGMENTS BELIEVED PART OF ULM'S PLANE

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Pieces of wood resembling parts of an airplane, possibly that in which Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm and two companions disappeared Dec. 4, were found today off Niihau Island, northwestern-most of the Hawaiian group. The fragments appeared to be part of an airplane strut and a piece of veneer board about seven feet long.

The finder, Aylmer Robinson, delivered the pieces to Lieut. Russell Scott of the United States army. Scott flew with them to Lake field, where they were examined by army authorities. This was the first discovery of anything resembling parts of an airplane since the Star of Australia disappeared. Robinson noticed the pieces while walking along the shore of the island and descended a rocky cliff to reach them.

Army and navy authorities, while not expressing final opinion, indicated doubt that the parts found came from Ulm's plane. However, today's find fitted in with most theories of Ulm's disappearance—that he had overshot the islands to the northwest. The news was received here as the coast guard cutter Itasca was steaming toward Palmyra, 600 miles south of here, after making a fruitless search of Johnston Island, to the southwest, and the nearby ocean area. The schooner Lanikai also was preparing to sail, to go past Niihau and on to the northwest toward Midway Island.

I'M NOT A THIEF, MARTIN INSULL TELLS THE JURY

Gives His Story on Stand in Embezzlement Trial.

legs. At times he leaned his elbow on the witness box rail and talked to the jurors in a conversational way.

He gave his name as Martin John and said he lived at Morocco, Ind. Later he explained that this was the home of his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Rafferty, the only home he now has.

Tells Story of His Life.

Under the questioning of his attorney, John E. Northrup, he told the story of his life. He was born, he said, in Redding, Berkshire county, England, on Feb. 18, 1869. After a common school education and work as an office boy and junior clerk for the Consolidated Telephone company of London, he decided to take the advice of his elder brother, Samuel, and come to America as the land of greater opportunity.

Samuel was working with Thomas Edison at Schenectady, N. Y. Young Martin joined his brother there and went to work in the Edison machine works as a laborer. After a year or more of this Samuel offered to pay his way through the engineering school at Cornell university.

During summer vacations for the next four years he worked in various cities laying cables and tubes and in 1892 worked on the lighting system at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago. He was graduated from Cornell in 1893.

He was married, he said, 40 years ago last Thursday, which would be the year after he left college.

Helps Form Middle West.

After college he entered the electrical supply business. Then the brother who had directed his life again sent for him and took him into the utilities business in Chicago.

His first operations in this field were in charge of the Indiana properties with headquarters at New Albany. In 1912 the Insulls decided to branch out in a big way and the Middle West Utilities company was organized. Martin said he was made vice president at a salary of $10,000.

It was his job to extend and develop the system and he devoted his entire time to this.

In 1924 he was made president of the company at a salary of $65,000. He also drew $15,000 from the Central and Southwest Utilities company, $10,000 a year from the New England Public Service company, and $10,000 a year from the Northwest Utilities company. He was a director of many other companies.

Describes Holding Companies.

Mr. Insull then described the organization of the Insull holding companies, Corporation Securities and Insull Utility Investments, Inc., of which he was a director.

It was stock of these two companies that was drawn out of the brokerage account and turned over to the Middle West syndicate for the $344,720.

Q—Did you follow the general movements in stocks and securities in 1930 and 1931? A—Yes.

Q—What was the trend in 1931? A—There was a rise early in the spring, then it fell off, there was a rise in the summer and in September [just before the time of the transaction in this case] there was a decided drop.

Q—After the drop in stocks in September did you have any feeling as to what the future would bring? A—I thought the worst was over.

Tells of Flexner Dealings.

Attorney Northrup then took up with the witness the extent of his business dealings with Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company, in whose name the brokerage account was carried.

Mr. Insull told of the various stock, bond and real estate transactions in which he had operated with Flexner as a partner. These dealings in stocks and bonds were carried in an account with the brokerage concern of Paul H. Davis & Co., he said.

Q—Were you away prior to Saturday, Oct. 3, 1931 [two days before the syndicate was formed in which Insull unloaded his stocks]? A—Yes. I returned to my office from a trip on the morning of Oct. 3. I received a message to get in touch with Flexner.

Mr. Insull said Flexner told him of the warning of the brokers that they would sell out the account unless some collateral other than Insull stocks was supplied.

Q—Did you give the subject of the account any thought? A—Yes, considerable thought. I thought not only of

Notes of the Insull Trial

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Samuel Insull visited the Criminal Court building yesterday long enough to have a few minutes' parley with his brother, Martin, during afternoon recess. "Well, good-by, Martin. Will you phone me?" he said in parting, with a debonair wave of the hand. "Good-by, Sammy," replied Martin, turning back to the courtroom.

Aaron Levy, 6523 Newgard avenue, who was one of the two alternate jurors in the recent mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull and sixteen others in the federal court, was a courtroom spectator in the afternoon. He sat with his fingers interlocked and a serious frown on his face, just as he sat throughout his terms in the federal jury box.

Harold L. Stuart, wearing his inevitable white carnation and a dark brown suit, and Frank Shrader, his tailoring in brown on a par in distinction, were spectators throughout the day. Both were co-defendants with Samuel Insull in the mail fraud case.

No relative was among the audience

my own interest, but of the company and the stockholders. I knew it would be detrimental to the company and the stockholders if the stock was sold on the market.

Says He Saw a Profit.

Q—Did you feel that the price of the stock was very low at the time? A—Yes, I thought a syndicate could make some money out of it.

"I told Flexner I might find some way to take care of the matter and I would give him my answer Monday morning," the witness continued.

Q—Did you think of any way to handle the situation? A—Yes, the thought came to me that the best solution was to arrange a syndicate to take over the stock. I sent for Oliver McCormick, treasurer of the Middle West company, and told him of my thought. I told him the best price of the stock was very low and I thought a syndicate could make some money out of it. I asked him to figure out some scheme over Sunday and report to me Monday morning.

Q—Did you own the stock which was up for collateral? A—I owned about one-third of it.

Q—Who owned the remainder? A—Sam Insull.

Denies Any Covering Up.

Q—When you talked to McCormick did you tell him that you wanted the transaction concealed or covered up? A—Absolutely not.

Mr. Insull disclosed that he had consulted his brother on the transaction. He talked to Samuel, he said, on Monday morning.

Q—What did your brother say? A—He said it was too bad to lose the stock. I told him it could not be helped, that we could get it back later by purchasing it in the market. I told him I felt sure the market would rise. He told me, "All right, go ahead."

The witness then told of McCormick's outlining a syndicate plan on Monday morning.

Q—How did you regard this transaction? A—As a bona fide sale.

Q—And did you believe you had complete and sufficient authority to act as you did? A—Absolutely.

Q—Did you have any intent to en-which heard the gentle rise and fall of Martin Insull's well bred voice as he testified. His wife, who stuck by him loyally throughout his long exile in Canada, is ill.

In the first intermission Mr. Insull walked over and greeted an attractive woman in a dark green suit and hat trimmed in gray tulle, who sat in the second row of spectators. "Hello, Margaret," he said as he took her hand. She was Miss Margaret Murphy of 708 Kent road, Kenilworth, who said she had "known and admired Mr. Insull for 20 years for his absolute honesty." She formerly worked for him as a secretary in the legal department of Middle West Utilities.

Following every word and homely gesture of Attorney John E. Northrup, chief defense counsel, who frequently locked his thumbs in his armpits as he put his questions to witnesses, was a little gray haired, bright eyed woman in a black, his wife. "We had a little money in Insull stock, as most people did," she said, "but it was just like everything else at the time. I don't know why we should complain about losing on it."

Q—Did you have any consciousness of guilt that caused you to remain in Canada? A—Absolutely not.

"Cross-examine," said Mr. Northrup with an air of triumph.

O'Hara Begins Cross-Examination.

Prosecutor O'Hara began this task at 8 p. m.

Q—Are you an American citizen? A—I am not. I am a citizen of England.

Q—You felt that politics actuated the indictment? A—Yes.

Q—Why didn't you come back when the political campaign was over? A—I had started to oppose extradition and proposed to fight it out.

Q—Did you feel that because you are English you could not get a square deal here? A—It never entered my head. I have lived too long in America.

Mr. O'Hara swung to the responsibility of officers and directors of corporations.

Q—You received weekly financial statements of your corporations, did you not? A—Yes.

Q—And you could tell from a glance if the stocks were dropping or increasing in value? A—Yes.

Q—And you knew the stocks were

On it, however, because his wife became ill.

Q—When you left for Canada did you do so because of any consciousness of guilt or any feeling of wrongdoing? A—Absolutely not.

Insull said he had intended to return to Chicago after his indictment on the embezzlement charge. When he heard that he was being made a political issue in the campaign for State's attorney between Swanson and Thomas J. Courtney he changed his mind, he said. His lawyers, he testified, advised him not to come back fearing the heat of a political campaign.

Visited by a Prosecutor.

In Orlita, Insull said, he was awakened at 4:30 one morning by Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton from Chicago.

"He said he wanted me to come back to Chicago by airplane," Insull testified. "I told him I was not going to. I told him he had the devil of a nerve calling me at that hour and he could take his policemen and leave."

The next step, he said, was the notification by his attorneys that there was a Canadian warrant for him. He surrendered next day and was committed to jail in Toronto. That was in October, 1932. There was a series of court hearings before his extradition was finally ordered on March 16, 1933.

Q—Did you have any consciousness of guilt that caused you to remain in Canada? A—Absolutely not.

"Cross-examine," said Mr. Northrup with an air of triumph.

Spending.

of the more voluminous reports presented by the subcommittee and adopted by the general conference this afternoon.

Assurance of cooperation with the government insofar as it exercises the "proper responsibilities of leadership" was given by the conference in the report.

"In making this survey," it states, "the conference has been actuated solely by the desire to direct attention to the difficulties business has encountered in the path of recovery and the condition of which it necessarily must take cognizance."

All Must Cooperate.

"It has done this with the full realization that the task is one which calls for unselfish cooperation of all and that the government, in exercising the proper responsibilities of leadership, is entitled to their whole-hearted support."

"It has, therefore, approached its task with the conviction that patience and tolerance are requisite to the reconciliation of divergent views and the concentration of national effort upon the great purpose—the revival of the normal processes of industry and trade."

"The conference is of the opinion that this end can be achieved to the common advantage of industry, agriculture, and labor and to the benefit of the nation as a whole. "The need for goods and equipment of every description necessary to the continuance of our economic progress and the maintenance of these high standards of living to which America has become accustomed is daily growing more pressing. There is ample work to be done to require the employment of all labor now idle and the use of all the capital that may be available."

Battle Centers on NRA.

The biggest battle of the conference centered around the statement of policy regarding the NRA. The NRA plank, arrived at only after the oil of compromise had been poured by Owen D. Young, who had just arrived from Washington, was expressed in a four-point recommendation as quoted above.

Industries where conservation of natural resources is a matter of public concern, the conference finds, may require specific code treatment differing from that given ordinary manufacturing industries, but no explanation is given as to what that different treatment should be. The oil industry was not specifically mentioned, but was believed to be back of this demand.

Only those businesses engaged in interstate commerce should be affected by the recommended extension of the NRA legislation, the conference says. On the subject of relief the conference has softened the subcommittee's recommendation for a direct "dole" by dodging that issue almost entirely and backing into the subject by recommending abandonment of all "make work" government projects. The only mention of a dole lies in the statement that direct relief should be always materially lower than the rates paid for work on government relief projects. A further recommendation is that wages on work relief projects be enough lower than wages paid for similar work in private industry to supply incentive to engage in private employment. "Useful construction" by the government is endorsed as the only type of work relief approved by the conference.

"The creation of public works for the purpose of providing relief," says the conference, "invites waste and definitely defers a balanced budget." The recommendation was agreed upon after experts had told the delegates that relief through make-work schemes cost double the amount of a direct dole.

Local Control Urged.

All forms of relief, said the conference report, should be under local agencies and, where practicable, should be granted in connection with properly organized employment exchanges whose first endeavor should be to supply work in private industry.

The business men were adamant in their resistance to unemployment insurance through legislation at any early date. The adoption of such schemes without careful study, they warned, might hamper industry's big job of bringing about recovery. They asked delay, but expressed willingness to start studying the problem immediately in the attempt to put these things on a sound business basis. "Unsound legislation at this time," the report states, "would prejudice the possibility of obtaining a satisfactory solution in the future."

The same thought apparently motivated the recommendations on the subject of labor.

"Labor cannot share what is not produced," the report states. "Arbitrary determination and limitation of hours and wages as proposed in such measures as thirty hour bills ignore this fundamental principle. Such limitations decrease the opportunity for employment by unnecessarily increasing the cost to the consumer."

The test of what is in the public interest, it states, should apply to the acts of employees as well as employers. Sympathetic or general strikes or lockouts, blacklists, and boycotts, the conference declares, should be barred.

It asks that employees be permitted freedom in determining the form of any organization for the purpose of collective bargaining and that there be no coercion from any source.

The conference demands that the banks be privately owned and managed and that the control of primary and reserve credit be independent of governmental domination.

Would Change Banks' Buying.

It is understood that the complete report of the subcommittee on business financing demands that commercial banks be permitted, through an amendment of the securities act, to buy bonds at original offerings and that they be allowed to lend to underwriting syndicates to facilitate the flow of private capital.

The administrative policies of the new securities and exchange commission are commended as sound and "encouraging."

The government's program of removing marginal farm land from cultivation is guardedly endorsed, but the conference recommends that it should be done under the department of agriculture. Limitation of farm products is attacked, but specific control measures may be all right temporarily, the report says, provided they are enforced by a "strongly predominant" percentage of producers.

Chief among the fundamental conditions needed for recovery in the durable goods industries, the business phases sufficiently soft to insure their being accepted by the administration as a gesture of cooperation rather than a blast of criticism.

Ames Heads "Liaison" Group.

C. B. Ames, chairman of the conference and chairman of the board of the Texas company, Robert L. Lund, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Mr. Strawn, Chicago attorney and former chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will head the new "liaison" group, called the business conference committee.

Headquarters will be in Washington. The other members will be "delegated representatives to be appointed by such national organizations" as the National Association of Manufacturers and Chamber of Commerce groups which called this week's conference determined to be "sufficiently representative of the type of business activity involved."

"This committee," says a resolution passed late today, "is to function [1] in furthering the principles adopted at the conference; [2] in offering a means of crystallizing business opinion for cooperation; and [3] in developing ways and means of enlarging the representative character of this conference for further meetings."

Mr. Ames and George Mead, president of Mead corporation, New York, would call upon President Roosevelt tomorrow to inform him of the action taken at the White Sulphur Springs conference.

RESCUES MINER AND IS HELD ON KIDNAP CHARGE

Henderson, Ky., Dec. 19.—(AP)—John Wyant, 28, who rescued another coal miner in a mine explosion late yesterday, was arrested today charged with complicity in the kidnaping of 2-year-old Verna Lavon Hollingsworth whose mother already had been jailed at Urbana, Ill., in the same case.

Wyant and Mrs. Lola Mae Hollingsworth were charged at Urbana with having forcibly taken the child last July 8, after its father, James Harold Hollingsworth, had been awarded custody by a court in Urbana.

The child was found today near Spottsville, where Wyant had been living, and Sheriff C. W. Roth of Urbana arrived this afternoon to take Wyant and the child back.

Wyant's identity became known to Sheriff J. T. Reed here as a result of the explosion which killed William Tate and nearly caused the deaths of several others. Wyant was given credit for having carried another miner, Stewart Griffith, to safety after Griffith had been overcome by fumes.

SLAYER AGREES TO PLEAD GUILTY.

Greeley, Colo., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Sheriff W. W. Wyatt said today Leonard Hoggis, 24, former Minnesota convict, had agreed to plead guilty to a murder charge for the slaying of his employer, Albert E. Osterick, 55-year-old rancher.

COFFIN OF SLAIN DEPUTY IN HIS HOME 13 YEARS

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 19.—(Special)—Deputy Sheriff Leamon Martin, slain by two prisoners he was taking to headquarters, will be buried in a coffin he has had in his home for 13 years.

Charged with his murder are Emmil Taylor, 23, and Vernon Lilly, 22, who were captured today after a skirmish with state police. Taylor, who was wounded in an arm, said that Lilly beat the officer to death with the latter's own gun and then threw his body into a ditch near Beckley, where it was found late yesterday. The coffin was bought by the state police department for Martin 13 years ago when, as a trooper, he was wounded and believed killed in making an arrest. When Martin recovered, the department asked him what was to be done with the coffin. "Let me have it," Capt. Cooper quoted Martin as having said. "I'll need it some day."

NRA TO PUNISH THOSE WHO FIRE COMPLAINANTS

Rumley to Head Chicago Compliance Work.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—A drive to jail or fine all employers who fire employees for complaining to the NRA about code violations has been started by the New Dealers, Sol A. Rosenblatt, director of compliance, announced today.

Two criminal suits in Illinois—one against the Hamilton Ross, Inc., Chicago, and one against the Moline Iron works, Moline—inspired the campaign, Rosenblatt said. Criminal information against both of these companies was filed in federal district courts by the NRA on Dec. 8.

Clear Johnson Firm.

NRA officials took special pains to point out that the Moline Iron works was in no way connected with the Moline Plow company, with which Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, was connected.

At the same time that he announced the new drive Rosenblatt appointed Cornelius F. Rumley, Detroit engineer, to head the NRA's "crack-down" work in the Chicago area. Rumley, who has been head of the national compliance council at NRA, will become compliance director for the sixth district, comprising Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Missouri. His headquarters will be in Chicago.

Six Month Maximum.

Under the new compliance drive employers may be jailed for as much as six months or fined as much as $500 or both for discharging employees who have complained to the NRA about code violations. Each day the discharged employee is out of work is a separate violation, Rosenblatt said.

Rosenblatt explained the new "crack-down" as a means of shielding workers who inform the government on the violations of their employers. Hundreds of thousands of complaints about wage, hour, and working condition violations have poured in on the NRA from workers since the beginning of the Blue Eagle regime, Rosenblatt disclosed today that on Dec. 8 there were pending 15,026 complaints of alleged wage and hour violations in addition to 2,740 complaints of alleged infraction of trade practice provisions of codes.

Text of Order.

Rosenblatt's threat to jail and fine employers is based on an executive order issued last May 15 by President Roosevelt. It read:

"By virtue of and pursuant to the authority vested in me under title 1 of the national industrial recovery act of June 16, 1933, and in order to effectuate the purposes of said title 1, I hereby prescribe the following rule and regulation:

"No employer subject to a code of fair competition approved under said title shall dismiss or demote any employee for making a complaint or giving evidence with respect to an alleged violation of the provisions of any code of fair competition approved under said title.

"All persons are hereby informed that section 10-A of the national industrial recovery act prescribes a fine not to exceed $500 or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both, for violation of any rule or regulation prescribed under the authority of said section 10-A."

SISTER TESTIFIES TO COZZI ALIBI IN JAIL POISON CASE

CRIMINAL COURT.

Stanley Raldis, Leo Galias, William Alsis, and John Moxon, indicted and sentenced to one to twenty years each in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

The prosecution rested its case yesterday in the murder trial of Lawrence Cozzi, 25 years old, in the Criminal court of Judge Walter P. Steffen. Cozzi is charged with delivering to the county jail on Sept. 26, 1933, a poisoned sandwich which caused the death of a prisoner, Rocco Pisano.

Cozzi's sister, Martha Cozzi, 19 years old, 1430 Flournoy street, testified her brother was with a carnival in the south at the time of the poisoning and offered as evidence letters written to her. The defense will introduce more character and alibi witnesses today.

As the prosecution wound up its case Cluverius O'Rourke, a prisoner, pointed out Cozzi as the man who delivered the sandwiches to the jail receiving cage. On Tuesday Cozzi was similarly identified by Miss Georgianna Marks, 19 years old, who was visiting O'Rourke at the time, and by Charles Engelmeier, a guard.

The poisoned lunch was meant for Harold Clifford, who was about to testify in an assault case involving a friend of Cozzi. Clifford shared it with his cellmates. Pisano died, Nick Genaris, Fred Woods, and Clifford told on the stand yesterday how they were made ill.

R. DOUGLAS STUART OF CHICAGO TO HEAD NRA ADVISORY BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Confirmation of reports that R. Douglas Stuart, Chicago, vice president of the Quaker Oats company, is slated to become the next chairman of the NRA's industrial advisory board was received today.

Mr. Stuart will assume the chairmanship of the board on Jan. 1. His appointment is to be announced soon by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

As head of the board Mr. Stuart will become industry's spokesman in the NRA organization. He may become one of the members of the central advisory council, which passes on all major NRA matters, and which is composed of representatives of the industrial, consumer, and labor advisory boards.

Mr. Stuart will succeed George H. Mend, president of the Mead corporation of New York, who has served as head of the advisory board since mid-summer.

For some time Mr. Stuart has been a member of Secretary Roper's business and industrial planning council, an organization of business men created by Roper to make long time plans for industrial progress. Roper has always chosen the chairman of the board from this council.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR ILLINOIS JOB INSURANCE LAW

A campaign for Illinois unemployment insurance legislation was planned yesterday at a meeting held in the Hotel Sherman under the auspices of the social insurance committee of the City club. It was agreed to urge Gov. Horner to indorse unemployment insurance in his message to the next legislature.

There has not been a single reference to legislation of a social nature in any of the five messages the governor has given the legislature during his term of office," said R. G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor. "Gov. Horner should be urged to make some kind of pronouncement that will put him in step with President Roosevelt on social measures."

Prof. Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago led the discussion, sketching the various possibilities of an insurance bill.

Chairman William G. Loye of the club's committee said a special committee will start at once to draft a bill.

ETHIOPIA ASSAILS ITALY AGAIN FOR ARMED 'INVASION'

Sends New Protest Note to League of Nations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 19.—Emperor Haile Selassie's Ethiopian government launched another attack on Italy through the league of nations today.

In its second note of protest Abyssinia repeated charges that Premier Mussolini's colonial troops had illegally occupied a section of Ethiopian territory adjacent to Italian Somaliland. The African empire asserted that Italy has been guilty of "aggression" and has refused to allow an international commission to fix a frontier line for Abyssinia and Somaliland.

Basis of Protest.

The protest was based on a clash which occurred recently at Ualual, near the border. Ethiopia insists that the Italian garrison there opened fire upon an Ethiopian detachment. Italy, on the other hand, maintains that a band of armed Ethiopians attacked the garrison without provocation. Thirty-five Italians and 110 Ethiopians were reported killed or wounded in the fighting.

Today's communication elaborated upon the Ethiopian version. An Italian army officer, it was declared, blew his whistle as the signal for the attack. The note continued:

"Suddenly airplanes dropped bombs and a tank fired machine guns. The Ethiopian machine guns were still under cover and not in battle positions. All officers and soldiers with the exception of sentries were in their tents."

Previous Encounter.

In a previous encounter between Italian and Ethiopian interests, which have been jealously guarding their respective frontiers and racing to strengthen their armed forces, one Italian consular guard was killed and two guards were injured. This was followed by an apology and payment of an indemnity by the Abyssinian government.

Following the first protest to the league by Ethiopia, Italy indicated it would refuse to submit the dispute to arbitration and went on to say that it might act "on its own" to clear up the situation in Africa.

Wed After Drinking, Bride Wins Annulment

After hearing testimony that Miss Agnes Smart, 27 years old, 424 Taylor avenue, Oak Park, had been drinking just before she married James Rigney at Crown Point, Ind., after a brief acquaintance, Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday granted her petition for an annulment. A sister, Margaret Smart, 8 Jackson boulevard, Oak Park, testified Agnes met Rigney at a party in Margaret's home and eloped with him after drinking several highballs.

PEACE IN THE PACIFIC.

The Japanese privy council has advised the emperor to abrogate the Washington naval treaty and it is taken for granted that without doubt notice shortly will be given and that the naval agreement will end at the close of 1936. Thereupon, if no other agreement be reached, the nations will be free to build warships as they see fit.

In 1922 and in the preceding years following the world war, Japanese intentions were in doubt and there was something like a war scare. There were many rumors that Japan would seek an occasion to attack the United States in the Philippines, and that its naval ally, Great Britain, alarmed by the growing menace of American naval superiority, would have no objections.

Everybody was in debt to America, and most of the powerful nations were angered. They didn't like what the United States had done in the handling of the peace. They were quite over any feeling of gratitude for American military aid in the war, and were beginning to despise it. Shylock was a popular term abroad for Uncle Sam, and he, having tried to do some good, found anybody assumed good could be done, found himself not the most popular Boy Scout but Public Enemy No. 1.

The course decided upon by the American government was to pull in its horns, check its naval expansion, stop construction on the most powerful of its ships in building, scrap others, reassure Great Britain, encourage the abrogation of the Japanese-British naval alliance, and produce peace by sacrifice and soft words. Some Americans thought this a case of good judgment, others a case of cold feet. It began the recession of the United States from its outposts in the far east, outlined the abandonment of the Philippines, and indicated that America would go back to a frontier with Hawaii as the outpost stronghold. Future years will tell whether this was good or bad. It appears now as an accomplished fact except for the dangerous interim during which the United States is virtually powerless in the Philippines but is still there.

Such was the effect upon America. The effect on Japan has been to promote aggressiveness. As the United States withdrew, Japan advanced. It can be agreed that the Japanese moved forward in a domain which, if the case were reversed, Americans might recognize as their sphere of influence—that is, calling Manchuria, China and Shanghai Vera Cruz. As the Japanese advanced aroused protests, the Japanese resentment grew and peculiarities of their national pride or realities in their situation, or both, caused them to view the naval ratios, in which they were 3 to 5, as an intolerable national humiliation and danger.

With the merits of this contention we have nothing much more to do. Japan had already taken a position from which diplomacy failed to dislodge it and the whole situation said it would be folly to try other measures. The one thing of supreme importance for Americans to consider is that a war with Japan offers no perceivable benefits which even success would bring in compensation for the effort. As consequences are now to be observed, the attempt at peace by international agreement has failed of its purpose. It does not follow that other methods will be futile.

America is able to provide everything necessary for its defense and can do so without arousing just suspicion of its intentions. Economic considerations all argue for peace and good understanding. If the naval agreement was an irritation, it is well out of the way. All the damage it could do the United States has been done. It has put America in what is now accepted as its position in the far east. The limitations which the treaty put upon American defense will be removed. American diplomacy has a task ahead of it, but nothing in the abrogation of the treaty need complicate the problem.

AFTER THE BANKHEAD REFERENDUM.

The cotton growers have voted overwhelmingly in favor of keeping the Bankhead law. That law imposes a tax the effect of which is to restrict production. Lessened production has led inevitably to a decline in the demand for labor in the cotton fields, at the gins, and in the warehouses. Estimates vary, but there seems to be no doubt that the number thrown out of work by the Bankhead law is not less than 200,000 and it may be much larger.

Most of this army of former renters, sharecroppers and laborers is now being supported on emergency relief at the expense of the federal taxpayers, few of whom live in the cotton states. The owners of cotton lands are the beneficiaries of the Bankhead scheme (and also of the government's loans which have pegged the price of cotton at the present profitable figure). If 300,000 breadwinners have been thrown on relief and each of them gets only $100 a year, the total cost of the Bankhead law to the taxpayers is not less than 20 million dollars a year. In all probability the cost is far higher.

Whatever the figure may be, the bill should be paid by the beneficiaries of the scheme who have made this outlay for relief necessary. This year the cotton belt could avoid its responsibility by pleading that the Bankhead act was foisted on the south without adequate consultation. Now that the cotton growers have expressed their hearty approval of the law, the excuse is gone.

The Federal Emergency Relief administration should, therefore, give the cotton states a few months in which to make provision for the Bankhead act's victims and when the period of grace has passed, all federal relief activities in the cotton belt should be discontinued. As the cotton planters have deliberately chosen to create unemployment in their communities and have profited by so doing, they cannot avoid the moral duty to support those whose livelihoods have been destroyed.

THE OLD NEW DEAL.

Arthur Guitea is prosecuted by the New Deal department of justice, but the law involved is a statute of 1922. He is accused of evading the requirement of the grain futures act for reports of transactions over a certain volume. It's the New Deal but an old law.

The New Deal did not get its start out of nowhere in March, 1933. It had grandfathers who in turn had their old men. Mr. Hoover may think that Mr. Roosevelt has produced a revolution and he may not like that revolution, but the succession was logical. Mr. Hoover was a good deal of what Mr. Roosevelt is more. The Topies just groined up.

Under Mr. Roosevelt the department of agriculture switched from the Hoover farm board to the Wallace-Tupwell cotton plop-up and cornhog program. Memory can be refreshed to recall that there was a furious attack upon the Hoover bureaucracy justified by the expansiveness and expense of that growing federal institution.

The system was open to ridicule and it was full of abuses. Public men of sound judgment were raising the alarm against federal encroachments and interference, against the rise of the federal administrator and the Washington Santa Claus and the burden of costs and taxes. Origins are not lack a little way, but a long way.

TVA has been hatching ever since Woodrow Wilson began pouring concrete at Muscle Shoals. Mr. Hoover's Boulder dam contained everything needed to inspire the go-getters of the Grand Coulee, the Lamp river, the Texas Colorado, the Casper-Alcove, and other PWA progeny of Mr. Ickes.

The federal trade commission is a creation of 1914 and, although Mr. Tutkell, Mr. Rieberg, and other New Dealers were not Washington celebrities then, here was a federal body full of promise of what was to come, set up to regulate competition, to investigate corporations engaged in interstate commerce and to supervise export trade associations. The NRA had only to study it and find even in dissimilarity the general purpose of government to be executed.

The New Deal is the ripening of a socialist crop long seeded and fertilized when it ought to have been plowed under.

ROOF LANDINGS FOR PLANES.

The report of the national resources board, headed by Secretary Ickes, to President Roosevelt emphasizes the alleged need for planned transportation. Coordinator Eastman is also working along the same theory, although his efforts relate more to operation, while Mr. Ickes talks of super-highways and super-waterways. In his opinion, if roads were properly planned, constructed, and maintained, many branch lines of railway could be torn up—the substitution of the new for the old; or it is the old for the new?

Do we know enough to embark on a nation-wide transportation plan? Mr. McCutcheon gave us the answer in a recent cartoon. Most of us can recall our first view of the embryonic airplane, but practically nobody foresaw its commercial value. It was regarded as something new to replace the familiar balloon ascension and parachute jump at Fourth of July celebrations. But in 1924 it takes no Jules Verne to conjure up the airplane of the future. The suburbanite at Libertyville, Hinsdale, or Homewood will back his folding winged plane from his garage, throw the necessary lever to transfer direct drive from propeller to wheels, taxi to a nearby square or vacant lot and ascend almost vertically. Arriving at the loop within a few minutes, he will alight in the same manner on some flat topped building or parking lot. Provide him with thinking of roofing railway yards to provide mid-city landing fields and parking places for aircraft.

Junk? By no means. These developments are just around the corner, bringing prosperity with them if politics will only lift its heavy hand from the industry. Commercial aviation is the proving laboratory and producer of revenue for the aircraft industry where research will conquer the problems of vertical ascension and footproof operation necessary for the development of the inevitable flivver planes that will abridge the shorter distances.

Perhaps we will require less highways as well as railways in 1944.

Editorial of the Day

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES RESTRICTED.

Two interesting items appeared on the financial pages of the newspapers.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will pay off ninety million dollars of obligations. But instead of public offerings of high class securities to raise the money the company will borrow from the banks and issue debentures to be held by the Rockefeller Foundation. An official announcement of the company stated that no public offerings would be made because of the time element involved in complying with provision of the new securities act.

The second announcement was the private sale of eighteen million dollars utility bonds by the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light, and Power company to six insurance companies.

Under the present scheme of security regulation it is not illegal for a company to place an unregistered issue of securities privately with banking institutions, insurance companies, and the like so long as they are intended to remain with the original purchasers and not sold to the public.

Legislation intended to punish the crook has apparently clamped the lid down so tight that it has made it impractical for the honest to offer some of the best of securities to the general public. Let us hope that theory and practice can be so harmonized that the small investor will not be shut out of a chance to share in the best offerings of sound companies simply because they find it impractical or impossible to comply with the red tape of corrective legislation.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE TAIL WAGGERS TALK IT OVER.

Hoot Mon, the Scotch Terrier, called the meeting to order.

"We have come together," said Chairdog Hoot Mon, "to have a powwow, or perhaps I might better say a bowwow, on what we can best do to prevent any more of our brethren being cut up alive for the edification of medical students. Here we are, fellow hounds, celebrated as being man's best friend, and yet—"

"Maybe that's the trouble," barked Sir Reginald Beagle. "A human being usually throws down his best friend."

"The trouble is," said Tommy Atkins, the w. k. Sealyham, "that we have no organized publicity. Lots of beautiful things have been written about us, but only our own friends among the humans read 'em. We should gather these things together and scatter them far and wide for all to read—even medical students and the professors. They might finally decide they could get along all right with their numerous charts, manikins, skeletons, books, diagrams and the dissecting of dead bodies if they only used their imagination a little. After a while they might decide that vivisection is merely a survival of a cruel, hideous old custom."

All the dogs present clapped their paws and wagged their tails in appreciation of Mister Atkins' well chosen words, and Gump Vogelsang, the Alredale, said he would like to read a verse from Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, "The Power of the Dog," which he accordingly did.

"Buy a pup and your money will buy Love unflinching that cannot lie— Perfect passion and worship fed By a kick in the ribs or a pat on the head. Nevertheless it is hardly fair To risk your heart for a dog to tear."

"I think," said Tuffy FitzHenry, the Boston Bull, "that in quoting that verse of Mr. Kipling's poem we should not forget to add the last stanza, so there would be no misunderstanding. In speaking of the natural death of a little dog—and, ah, how few of us these days, what with the vivisectionists and the automobile, ever come to a natural death—the poet says:

"When the body that lived at your single will, When the whimper of welcome is stilled (how still), When the spirit that answered your every mood Is gone—wherever it goes—for good, You will discover how much you care, And will give your heart to a dog to tear!"

"Fellow tail waggors," said Skipper Fisher, the Wire Haired, "I think the idea of having the wonderful things that have been written about us more widely disseminated is a good one. I do not wish to seem dogmatic, but I suggest that, among the other things that go out in our appeal, a verse from J. T. Trowbridge's poem, 'The Travelers,' be included. It is something, I remember, like this:

"We are two travelers, Roger and I. Roger's my dog—Come here, you scamp! Jump for the gentleman—mind your eye! Over the table—look out for the lamp!— The rogue is growing a little old Five years we've tramped through wind and weather. And slept outdoors when nights were cold, And ate and drank and—starved—together."

"I would also suggest," said Whiskers Alredale Smith, "that we include in the collection the 'Eulogy on the Dog,' by Senator George Graham Vest:

"Gentlemen of the jury: The one unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog."

"And I should like to remind you," observed Millicent, the Pekinese, "of what Mark Twain said in 'Pudd'nhead Wilson's Calendar':

"If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. That is the principal difference between a dog and a man."

"And on the back page of our little book of doggerel," put in Towser Colie Collins, "I would like that verse from St. John Lucas' 'To a Dog':

"But in some canine Paradise Your wraith, I know, rebukes the moon, And quaters every plain and hill, Seeking its master . . . As for me, This prayer at least the gods fulfill, That when I pass the flood and see Old Charon on the Stygian coast Take toll of all the shades who land Your little faithful barking ghost May leap to lick my phantom hand."

"And now," said the chairman, "before we adjourn I ask you one and all to sit in a circle and join in singing our favorite ballad, 'Old Dog Tray.'"

So all the big and little tail waggors sat in a circle and sang their favorite song:

"Old dog Tray's ever faithful: Grief cannot drive him away; He is gentle, he is kind—I shall never, never find A better friend than old dog Tray."

IT'S A GOOD THING the typesetting machine was invented before they commenced to hand out those $1,000,000 and $100,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 national recovery plans down in Washington. With the old style hand set type there wouldn't today be left a cipher in the whole United States of America.

AH, YOU ARE indeed lucky! The snow yesterday must have kept back the eager crowds anxious to buy the Linebook of 1934. So there'll probably be some left today. But you had better shove along; you can't always count on the snow helping you out.

BONE INFECTION.

BONES, joints, and tendons (the structures that attach muscles to bones) are strong but at the same time delicate parts of the body. They will not brook insult without retaliation, not will they forgive easily. When injury or disease comes along these structures take their time in healing and may incapacitate their possessor for a long period.

Bones may not only be broken or crushed, but they may be infected with bacteria. When infection begins in the bone marrow the disease is known as osteomyelitis.

A large percentage of cases give a history of injury shortly before the onset of the disease. In the diagnosis acute rheumatism must be ruled out, as the pain is felt in the neighborhood of one of the joints (not in the bone itself) the hip, the elbow, or the ankle. A recent case must be taken in the diagnosis because early recognition followed by proper treatment will curtail a long illness and reduce the destruction of bone. If the abscess in the bone is not detected and if an adequate opening is not made to permit the escape of pus, the infection will burrow through the bone tissue and the coverings of the bone and accumulate in the muscles.

Bacteria often reach the bone through the blood and usually come from some focus elsewhere in the body. When they arrive near the line of growth (epiphysis), they may grow rapidly and start their orgy of destruction. The staphylococcus is the most common organism. At the onset there may be delirium, great prostration, chills, severe headache, vomiting, and considerable pain. The temperature is in the up-and-down type, often rising to 104 degrees F. The affected part is exceedingly tender and the slightest movement causes pain. At first there may be no swelling, and the X-ray will not show the beginning abscess in the bone.

The only method of treatment is prompt operation. This usually consists in exposing the bone and providing an opening sufficiently large to evacuate the pus. Rarely will cases of osteomyelitis heal quickly. The acute stage, as a rule, becomes chronic and may continue for months or even years. The condition is usually accompanied by the discharge of dead bone and the formation of new bone in the infected area. Now and then, if the patient gains in strength and resistance, the discharge may cease and the wound heal, only to break out again.

Attempts have been made to sterilize the infected parts with strong antiseptics, and to chase away every particle of diseased bone. Chlorine in the form of sodium chloride has been used. With recent years a new plan has met with some success. W. H. and N. E. Taylor used salt solution under pressure to lift the wound completely, dilute the bacteria, and bring about cleansing and healing. The fluid is changed at approximately one-hour intervals. They report that swelling and tenderness disappear under this method and that the discharge of thick pus changes to clear serum within a few days.

Another distinct advance is the plan of treatment devised by H. W. Orr, who packs the opened wound with sterile petroleum gauze. This is covered with a sterilized gauze and a plaster cast is applied to prevent the slightest movement. As a rule, renewal of the dressings is not required under ten days or two weeks, or even longer. In this procedure there is no opportunity for reinfection, and the resistance and the strength of the patient are relied upon to forward healing. If the fever does not subside it is probable that drainage is inadequate and that a deeper opening is the one needed. In the Orr treatment the presence of pus is utterly disregarded. Although the wound is foul the patient will generally give no signs of temperature or toxemia, and healing takes place with remarkable rapidity.

CHRISTMAS PERILS.

I. B. G. writes: For several years I have been reading of deaths of children from accidental burns. Many of these occur at Christmas time when flimsy decorations such as the Chinese boys or girls are consumed for holiday plays. What can be done to decrease such fire hazards?

REPLY.

Charles F. Fabst calls attention to the value of a solution of ammonium phosphate that may be used for the purpose of fireproofing children's costumes, draperies, and the cotton wadding father uses in his role of Santa Claus. The solution is made by dissolving one pound of ammonium phosphate in two quarts of cold water. The fabrics are soaked for five minutes and then allowed to dry. The substance is not poisonous and has no more effect upon fabrics than cold water itself.

DIABETES SYMPTOMS.

L. S. writes:

1. What are the first signs of diabetes?
2. Is it likely that trouble with the toes is a sign of diabetes?

REPLY.

1. Thirst, excretion of a large amount of pale urine, drowsiness, sweetish odor of the breath, sugar in the urine.
2. Diabetes is subject to gangrene (obliteration of blood vessels). This is usually first observed as a tiny spot on one of the toes, that gradually becomes darker and finally involves the entire toe.

THE CAUSE OF BALDNESS IS NOT KNOWN

Many causes have been named for baldness—tight hats, washing the hair too much, washing the hair too little, heredity, occupation, "head work," and many more. Medical men have studied these proposed causes and have found that there is no cause that seems to apply to all cases. One medical writer concludes by saying that no one knows what causes baldness. CAN ILLINOIS BE DIVIDED?

Chicago, Dec. 17.—The ordinance of 1871 limits the division of the Northwest territory into not more than five states. Therefore it is not legally possible to divide Illinois into two separate states.

The only legal way to separate Cook county from the rest of Illinois is to move the Wisconsin state line 76 miles south or to move the Indiana state line 26 miles west. Either change may be preferable to the continuous refusal of the Illinois assembly to obey the constitution on account of jealousy of Chicago.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—About a year ago I called at the offices of the United States civil service commission for information regarding a position with the government, a position for which I thought seven years of army service would render me fit. I was told I would have to wait until a competitive examination was announced, when I could take my chance along with the rest of the competitors.

Since that time an acquaintance of mine, through political influence, secured such a position on a temporary appointment. A few weeks ago this same party boasted that he now had a permanent position under United States civil service rules! And this, even though he never took an examination.

In other words, I, because of a lack of drag, am obliged to wait for the announcement of a competitive examination, while the party referred to, with influence behind him, can get a civil service job without any formality.

Will somebody clarify the situation, please?

UNCOMPLETED BUILDING.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—[Friend of the People]—I wonder if something can be done toward either tearing down or boarding up completely the old building next door to our property on Woodlawn avenue, in defiance of city ordinances, this building has remained unboarded and open for years. It is a haven for all sorts of questionable characters.

R. G.

This is a three story and English basement building, 50x137x40 feet, for which a permit was issued on Nov. 9, 1923, but building was never completed on account of the depression. Roof is on and partitions set, building is structurally safe, but windows and doors were never installed and is in this condition since work was stopped in 1929. Contractors were notified to board up all doors and window openings to keep out intruders on July 16, 1934, but work was not done, and the matter was placed in the law department for prosecution Aug. 1, 1934. Condition remains the same up to date.

ACT TO KEEP CITY IN FRONT AS HOST TO CONVENTIONS

Trade Leaders at Lunch Launch Campaign.

Chicago yesterday launched a new civic effort that has for its aim the retention of the prestige achieved through two years of A Century of Progress and the attraction to the city of an increased share of the nation's conventions and business.

Before several thousand persons, including leaders in business, religion, education, and politics, who gathered in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House for luncheon, the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Greater Chicago Hotel Association announced plans for capitalizing on Chicago's assets and augmenting the business gains due to the World's Fair.

Bureau to Be Established.

The plans of the two associations call for the establishment of a Greater Chicago Convention bureau to promote and advertise advantages which Chicago offers to conventions and visitors. The bureau will keep in touch with the 3,500 groups in the country which hold conventions, with the purpose of obtaining for the city as many conventions as possible.

G. R. Schaeffer, advertising manager of Marshall Field & Co., outlined reasons for Chicago's popularity as a convention city.

"Chicago," he said, "has first class accommodations for more than 400,000 visitors. It has fifteen meeting places of the major type, including space for the largest of exhibitions, and facilities in hotels for smaller conventions. The city is the terminal for 33 railway lines. It has 30 bus transportation systems, nine lake steamship lines, and many highways, and is the aviation center."

Low Rail Rates Called Factor.

"All forms of recreation are available. Because low railroad rates can be obtained, it is the natural convention city."

Mr. Schaeffer estimated that the two political conventions of 1932 left ten million dollars in Chicago; that visitors to the Fair and to conventions spent 450 million dollars in 1933 and 300 million dollars in 1934. He estimated that Christmas business on State street this year would be from 20 to 25 per cent ahead of 1933.

Mayor Kelly declared that Chicago is known to millions as a hospitable and charitable city. His announcement that Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund had reached its goal of $200,000 was greeted with cheers.

Mayor Predicts 'New Era.'

"Chicago will not be stopped," the mayor said, "in its march toward future greatness. A new era is at hand and you, who are the new minute men, are on the job working to the end that Chicago shall achieve its destiny as the greatest city of the world."

An announcement that Chicago's hotel executives, under the chairmanship of Frank Bering of the Hotel Sherman, have underwritten a special fund to expand the work of the commerce body's convention bureau, was made by William M. Ellis, vice president of the Association of Commerce.

Other speakers were Mrs. Martin Kent Northern, formerly of the World's Fair staff, and Mr. Bering. The latter explained the work of the enlarged convention bureau. Harold C. Cheney, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Association of Commerce, was toastmaster.

ROY A. MAYPOLE WINNER IN FIGHT ON EXTRADITION

Roy A. Maypole, cousin of State Senator George M. Maypole (Dem., Chicago), yesterday won his fight to avoid extradition to Cleveland on charges of conspiracy to commit arson through an order handed down by the Illinois Supreme court at Springfield. Maypole appealed last spring from an order of Judge Harry B. Miller of the Criminal court denying him freedom on a habeas corpus writ in extradition proceedings. The Supreme court, reversing Judge Miller, held that the Ohio authorities had failed to contradict Maypole's testimony that he was not known under the alias Henry Burke under which they sought to obtain custody of him. Maypole was accused of complicity in a plot to burn a $1,000,000 warehouse in Cleveland in 1931.

BLAZING PLANE AND SNOW BALK DEATHBED DASH

A blazing airplane was one of a series of mishaps yesterday in the futile attempt of Alfred Reilly and his sister, Miss Grace, of Sunnyside, N. Y., to reach the bedside here in the Surf hotel of their dying mother, Mrs. Helen Reilly, 61 years old, Tuesday night in Newark, N. J., they boarded a Curtiss Condor sleeper plane of the American Air Lines to make the emergency trip to Chicago. At 3:25 a. m. yesterday, when landing at Buffalo, N. Y., the plane burst into flame, presumably from a back-firing motor.

Aroused by Miss May Robeck of Chicago, stewardess, the Reillys, the only passengers on the plane, got out safely, along with John Deater of Newark, N. J., pilot, and O. J. Brown of Chicago, copilot.

The Reillys then boarded another Chicago bound plane, only to be notified, when a few minutes out of Detroit, that because of snow and unfavorable flying conditions the plane had been ordered grounded in Detroit. In Detroit they took a train, which arrived in Chicago at 5:30 o'clock last night, six and a half hours after their mother died of heart disease.

HEARING TODAY IN BUS SLAYINGS; GUARDS ORDERED

Judge John C. Lewis's Criminal courtroom will be staffed with extra bailiffs today at resumption of a hearing on petitions for change of venue in the trial of William Taber and Joseph Kehoe, street car union officials, and twenty-seven other defendants charged with murder and conspiracy growing out of bus strike violence.

At the first hearing session yesterday Judge Lewis ordered all defendants, including those who have turned state's evidence, to be present today to file any change of venue petitions intended. The order was issued despite Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley's objection that there might be "fireworks," hence the extra bailiffs.

Taber and Kehoe were indicted for the fatal shooting of James Kelly, bus dispatcher, who was dragged from a southbound street car at Cicero and Grand avenues the night of Sept. 26 by two men and shot. The two officials were granted separate trials. The other defendants were charged with conspiracy in that crime, as well as the murder of Mrs. Mary Kennard, who died after being struck in the head with a ball bearing as she rode on a south side bus.

EIGHT DIRECTORS OF HORSE SHOW SUED FOR $35,000

A suit to compel eight directors of the World's Fair Horse Show association, which held polo games and a horse show from Oct. 21 to 23, 1933, to pay their shares of $35,000 in debts allegedly incurred, was filed yesterday in the Superior court in behalf of ten creditors.

Named as defendants are Prince Michael Cantacuzene, M. A. Kern, Daniel A. Orth, George B. Nelson, Porter Fox, Fred Mills, R. D. Nordheimer, and Harley Heyl. The association was named in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings in Federal court last Feb. 1, with liabilities of $35,544, and assets of $2,999.

The present suit charges that the directors, in July of 1933, assented to the incurring of debts of $67,000, which was in excess of the capital and value of assets of the association. Attorney Alfred S. Singer, representing the creditors, mostly printing concerns, said that some of the directors have offered to pay their part of the liability, but that the recalcitrance of a few has made the suit necessary.

CONVICTION HERE AFFIRMED.

The Illinois Supreme court affirmed yesterday the conviction in the Cook County Criminal court of Roy McArthur, 29 years old, formerly an employee of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club of Winnetka, on charges of automobile theft.

ACT TO WEED OUT DUPLICATIONS IN PERSONALTY TAX

Clark Gets $4,835 from County for Job.

The county board yesterday gave Assessor John S. Clark an appropriation of $4,835 for weeding out erroneous and duplicate assessments from the Cook county personal property roll. Mr. Clark told the board that there are approximately 100,000 duplicate assessments in the million on the roll. A large number of these grow from the assessments made on automobiles from the state license lists, which are not properly coordinated with other assessments against the same property owners.

Weeding out the duplicate assessments will save four county offices—those of the assessor, board of tax appeals, county clerk, and county treasurer—an estimated annual minimum of $20,865 in clerical hire and postage alone, the board was told. Mr. Clark added that this was only the primary saving, and that secondary gains would be far greater.

Pacifying the Taxpayers.

"Many of these duplicate bills," he said, "may become the basis of fruitless suits by the state's attorney. Even more important is their effect on the taxpayers. The taxpayer who receives two or more bills when he should have received only one, is more than likely to become so angry that he will refuse to pay any of them unless he is sued."

The duplicate assessments will be weeded out by arranging all of the 1,000,000 or more personal property assessments in an alphabetical list, on which duplications will immediately become apparent. They are now listed alphabetically by districts, of which there are 438 in the city of Chicago alone.

Company to Do Job.

The appropriation approved by the board was for listing of the assessments by the Buckley-Dement company, which has promised to finish the work within ten days, starting today. The assessor found that his own employees could make up the alphabetical list at slightly less cost, but that it would take them forty days.

The new alphabetical list will be in the form of a card index. The cards will be printed to form a four year personal property record card for each taxpayer in the county.

J. Alton Lauren, in charge of individual personal property assessments for the last three years, and J. Richard Petrie, in charge of corporation assessments for the same period, resigned yesterday. Assessor Clark said that both resignations were voluntary. Mr. Lauren today will become principal land appraiser for the three Chicago housing projects of the Public Works administration at a salary of $5,200.

PLANT THROWS MAN BENEATH TRAIN AND SUITS WINS $25,000

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP)—A $25,000 damage award to a railway switchman, whose feet were crushed when an umbrella plant seized one of them and threw him beneath the wheels of cars, was upheld in the Appellate court today.

The switchman, Alex J. Haskins, lost one foot from amputation and the other was severely crippled in the accident, which occurred at Numania siding, Nev.

The Southern Pacific railroad contended the plant was merely a weed and that jumping into it was negligence on the part of the switchman.

The court held the plant was a "dangerous obstruction" and set forth that the plant has a tensile strength of from 5 to 100 pounds.

MOVES TO BAR 'RUNNERS' FROM CRIMINAL COURT

Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court, launching a drive to keep "runners" from operating in the Criminal Courts building, issued a warrant yesterday for William Henry Hinton, 40 years old, colored, on a charge of practicing law without a license.

The chief justice's action followed the arraignment of Mike Lipschultz, alias Schulte, 55 years old, on a charge of receiving bonds stolen in a $42,000 robbery of a Wallingford, Conn., bank.

Lipschultz pointed out Hinton to Chief Justice Sullivan as the attorney who would represent him. Hinton denied this, whereupon Lipschultz produced a receipt for $25 he had paid Hinton in the county jail to arrange his release on bond. Hinton declared he was only preparing the case for another lawyer.

Hinton is a licensed lawyer in Michigan and Nebraska and therefore is entitled to practice in the federal courts.

Chief Justice Sullivan dictated a letter to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson asking cooperation in a plan to prevent certain types of lawyers licensed in other states from coming to Illinois to take advantage of their federal court privileges.

Hinton's bond was set at $5,000.

4 STATES FIGHT CHANNEL SALE TO U. S.; DELAY PLAN

Unexpected Attack May Block Congress Vote.

The sanitary district yesterday laid before the war department its arguments for the sale of the main channel, the Calumet-Sag channel, and the Little Calumet river improvements to the federal government for approximately $30,000,000 in a public meeting at the Postoffice building. Representatives of four other lake states appeared unexpectedly at the hearing and assailed the proposal.

The hearing was called by Lieut. Col. Donald H. Connolly, army district engineer for the Chicago area, in conformity to a congressional requirement that the war department bring its recommendations on the project before the house rivers and harbors committee during the next session.

Opposition of the four states, Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota, forced a continuation of the hearing to Jan. 15. This delay may prevent the war department from placing its recommendations before the house committee during the next congressional session, Col. Connolly said.

Officials Lead Fight.

Leading opposition to the plan was R. T. Jackson of Cleveland, special counsel for the four states in the Lake Michigan diversion case which the sanitary district lost in 1930. He was supported by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson of Minnesota, Gerald K. O'Brien, Michigan deputy attorney general, and Herbert H. Naujoks, Wisconsin assistant attorney general. Charles E. McManus, assistant attorney general for New York, also appeared but did not take part in the hearing.

The position of the sanitary district was outlined by Ross A. Woodhull, president of the district board.

"We believe that the federal government should purchase the sanitary district channels for navigation purposes," Mr. Woodhull said. "The federal government since 1898 has recognized that the route now followed by the sanitary district channels is the logical one for a lake to gulf waterway. In 1930 the federal government took over the full responsibility for such a waterway by assuming control of the channels built by the district."

"These channels were built by the taxpayers of the sanitary district primarily for dilution of sewage. However, they were built larger than necessary for sewage purposes, because the district saw that they followed a natural waterway route and that should provide transportation as well as drainage facilities."

"Our construction plans were in every instance approved by the federal government. The sanitary district was actually serving as an agent of the government in building a navigation system. We were taking a burden the government should rightfully bear."

"We were satisfied to do this, since the channels served us for sewage purposes. In 1930, however, a Supreme court decision ordered a reduction in the amount of water we may take from Lake Michigan to the point where the channels are almost valueless for sewage purposes. They retain, however, their full value for navigation purposes."

Lack Money for Sewerage.

"The court ordered us to build an expensive sewage treatment system, and we lack money to complete that project."

"It is now time that the federal government assume its waterway obligation in this area. The government has taken control of the channels as a part of the Illinois waterway system. At the same time the sanitary district is denied the use of the channel by court order. The government virtually has said, 'You can build a great channel, but you can't use it.' The government can and should use it."

"We pledge any money to be received from this sale for use in the sewage treatment program ordered by the court. It is a matter of equity and fairness for the government to purchase this canal."

Precedents Are Cited.

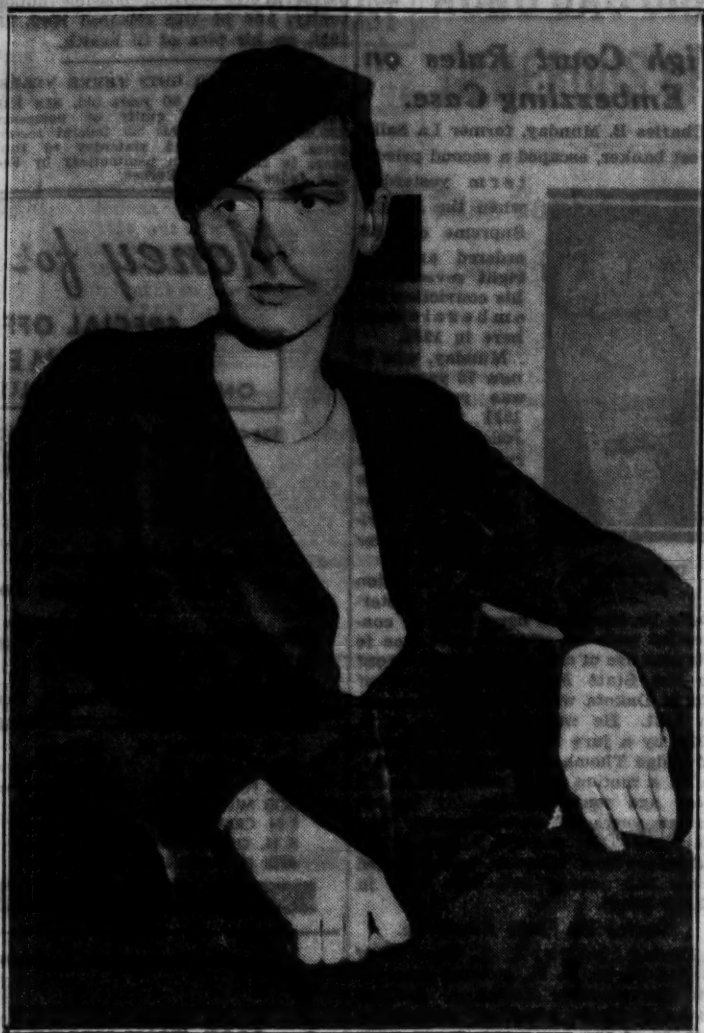

The sanitary district brief recited the history of government interest in Illinois waterways, asserting that the government has always considered the channels nationally valuable from a military and economic view. The brief sets forth numerous instances of federal purchase of private canals. It estimated the reproduction costs of the channels, bridges, and lands as follows:

Main channel	$20,545,204
Calumet-Sag	18,531,565
Chicago river (main branch improvements)	18,895,982
Alumet river (improvements)	836,173

Total $58,808,724

A group of navigation and waterway improvement interests headed by Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Mississippi Valley association, supported the sanitary district position, and marshaled other facts to show

Declare Jane Emery Newton Sane

SANITARY BOARD HAS $33,000,000 WORKS PROGRAM FOR 1935

The sanitary district will appropriate $33,000,000 for construction to start in 1935, and will complete $19,500,000 of the work during the year, according to Ross A. Woodhull, president of the district board. He estimated the district's corporate fund budget at $4,930,579 yesterday. The finance committee expects to present its completed draft of the budget to the board on Dec. 26.

The $33,000,000 construction program calls for completing the Calumet sewage treatment plant, 104th street and Cottage Grove avenue, and starting the $13,000,000 southwest side treatment works in Stickney and the $12,000,000 southwest side intercepting sewer, which will drain the Packingtown area.

"These projects, with the completion of the west side and Calumet intercepting sewers, comprise the largest amount of work ever undertaken by the district in a single year," Mr. Woodhull asserted.

"During 1934, he said, sanitary district construction, which was made possible by a Public Works administration loan and grant of $15,000,000, totaled $8,039,000 and provided work for 10,000 men."

that the government has an admitted responsibility in the waterway and that it would be unjust to local taxpayers to require them to continue its maintenance, or to fail to reimburse them for its construction.

Worth Much to U. S.

"The channels are worth much to the United States and little to the taxpayers who spent $100,000,000 for them," Randolph declared. "The attitude of the federal government in permitting the state and district to build ship and drainage canals and then denying them the use of the waterways for drainage, their sole value to the district as such, is virtually a seduction of the state of Illinois. It's time the government claimed its child."

Following the presentation of the Sanitary district case, Jackson, who also represented Attorney General John W. Bricker of Ohio, called for a continuation to permit the lake states to file briefs. "The Sanitary district sent us no copies of its brief," he said. "We did not know that the lake states were interested in this proposal," Woodhull replied. "The lake states in the past have shown up only in their efforts to saddle on the Sanitary district their Lake Diversion program. Now they've got that and we want this sale to carry out that program. I can't see what further interest those states should have in this case."

Charge Ruse to Dodge Order.

"The attempt of the Sanitary district to sell these channels to the federal government seems to us a deliberate attempt to avoid the requirements of the Supreme court regarding lake diversion," Attorney General Peterson said. "If the channels change hands, then the decree of the

GIRL RED SANE; HELD TO TRIAL IN RENTERS' COURT

Admits She Has Made "a Mess" of Her Life.

Mrs. Jane Emery Newton, former University of Michigan co-ed and wife of a colored communist, was released on bond yesterday afternoon after she had been adjudged sane in a hearing before Judge Win G. Knoch of Naperville, sitting in the Psychopathic court. A charge of disorderly conduct is pending in the Renters' court and a bond of $400 was set to insure her appearance for a hearing of the charge before Judge Cecil C. Smith tomorrow.

After her bond had been approved by Judge Smith, the comely young woman, whose father is Col. John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., real estate dealer and former national commander of the American legion, declared that she had no plans for the future as she left the courtroom.

Thinks of Baby First.

"The first thing I will do is to find my baby and arrange to get my husband out of jail," she said.

Her husband, Herbert, who was arrested with her on a disorderly charge when they moved their furniture back into an apartment at 615 Oakwood boulevard after bailiffs had evicted them, will be arraigned in the Jury court today.

In the hearing before Judge Knoch, Mrs. Newton was represented by Attorney Marvin J. Bas, a former classmate at the Grand Rapids High school, who discovered her sordid plight in the Renters' court last week.

Her Life "A Mess."

When questioned she admitted that she had made "a mess of her life."

"Do you believe that your example, if followed, would help the world?" Judge Knoch asked.

"No, my life as it now stands is not an example. I have tried, but I have made many mistakes," was her almost inaudible answer.

Sitting with Judge Knoch in an advisory capacity were County Judges Edmund K. Jarecki, Dr. James Whitney Hall, and Dr. Henry Gahagan, psychiatrists.

FLORIDA GARDEN LEADER FIGHTS ROADWAY SIGNS

Plans a Law Against Billboards.

BY HAL FOUST.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Mrs. Walter Wylie, president of the St. Petersburg Garden club, announced today that a bill will be introduced in the legislature next month to protect the highways from commercial placards that obscure the beauties of the landscape. She has just completed a survey finding approximately 2,800 outdoor advertisements on the roads within fifty miles of this resort city.

The revival of winter travel this season has been attended by an increase in the number of billboards along the tourist routes. Mrs. Wylie described these signs as "untidy and unnecessary," as "detrimental to the beauty of the highways."

Florida's Special Claims.

Florida has more than ordinary interest in protecting the scenery along its highways. In other states the main objection to the billboards is that they detract from the resident motorists' enjoyment of their investment in public pavements. In this state, with a tourist trade of primary importance, the blatant signs are as much a threat against economic welfare as the boll weevil in the cotton belt or the hessian fly in the citrus groves.

This year Florida is entertaining more winter visitors from the north than during the boom era. The state chamber of commerce estimates that the revenue from this entertainment will approximate 700 million dollars.

Most Arrive by Motor.

The majority of these visitors are arriving by automobile. In St. Petersburg the proportion coming by motor is estimated by the chamber of commerce at 75 per cent.

Whether these visitors will return again next winter depends somewhat on the pleasantness or unpleasantness of the travel over the highways. Nature was kind to Florida in this respect. Palms and beaches, pine woods draped with Spanish moss, and glimpses of the blue Atlantic or the gulf repay tourists for their time and money spent on winter vacations here. When these views are blotted by billboards the tourists are short changed.

5 DAY CHRISTMAS
TRUCE DECLARED
IN SAAR DISTRICTNazis and Foes Pledged to Forget Quarrels.

[Copyright: 1934. By the Associated Press.]

SAARBRÜCKEN, Saar Basin Territory, Dec. 19.—A Christmas truce to preserve tranquility in the Saar territory over the holiday was declared today by the league of nations plebiscite commission.

Both Nazis and anti-Nazis were pledged to keep the peace from Dec. 23 to Dec. 27, hold no meetings and forget the imminence of the Jan. 13 plebiscite to determine the future sovereignty of the Saar. The plebiscite commission forbade the display of all flags and insignia.

The truce was declared as 200 British Tommies, advance contingent of the international patrol force, occupied their billets.

Warn Girls Against Romances.
Nazis, regarding the troops' arrival without demonstration, warned the young women of the Saar against forming any romantic attachment for the foreign soldiers. The Nazis who sold the Saar girls not "to kiss or be too friendly with the foreign troops."

"Photographs of Saar girls on the streets with English officers," the Nazi press said, "may seriously incite the Saarlanders are becoming chummy with the troops."

Nazis were asking the young women to follow a straight and narrow path through self-discipline.

The English soldiers brought with them a carload of tea and plenty of footballs to keep themselves amused while awaiting duty's call.

The first contingent of Italian troops was expected early tomorrow, while the entire force of British, Italian, Dutch, and Swedish soldiers is due by Dec. 22.

Duce Warns His Troops.
ROME, Dec. 19.—Premier Mussolini delivered a stern warning today to more than 1,000 Italian troops who left Rome this afternoon to aid in policing the Saar that their conduct "must be absolutely irreproachable."

If Duce reviewed the troops in the barracks parade ground before their departure, he told the men the league of nations had invited Italy to participate in the policing of the Saar during the plebiscite.

"It is a delicate and important task," he said, "but I am certain you will uphold the glorious tradition of the Italian army."

The Italian contingent is composed of grenadiers and Carabinieri National police. The grenadiers include several machine gun units.

Propose World Police Force.
GENEVA, Dec. 19.—(A)—The idea of an international police force was advanced in Geneva today following reports of a move in Washington for virtual abandonment of the doctrine of "freedom of the seas" in time of war and certain rights of neutrality.

Such a force would be similar to the league of nations' "international army" moving into the Saar to insure order during the Jan. 13 plebiscite.

"The league is trying to put force behind the law, instead of behind the lawbreaker," said one delegate. "Some day the league may have an international air force as well as a police force and the projected American policy will be helpful to league activities."

The proposed shift in the United States' traditional non-policy was held in league quarters as likely to be of immeasurable help in preventing and restraining war. Geneva thinks such a step would remove England's fear of complications with the United States over neutral rights and would give England greater freedom to participate in league blockades against aggressor nations.

LINDBERGH TRIALCase Opens Jan. 2, but Prices Rise Now.

Hauptmann's Funds Tied Up.
Immediately thereafter the internal revenue bureau tied up the Hauptmann funds, which consisted of $12,150 on deposit in a New York brokerage house in the name of Mrs. Hauptmann and $5,000 similarly deposited in Hauptmann's name.

The government claims a total of $9,210 in unpaid income taxes from the Hauptmanns for the years 1932 and 1933.

Reilly is not pictured by those who know him as the sort of lawyer who would enter this case purely for the publicity which he might be given. He likes to see his name in the papers, but he is a successful barrister with an income who would hesitate to devote his talents for a couple of months to a case without some assurance of cash in return.

Hauptmann insists that the money in his and his wife's accounts are the results of frugal savings over a period of years. The state points out that he was unemployed almost continually after the collection of the $50,000 ransom early in 1932 until his capture several months ago. About $15,000 in ransom money was found in Hauptmann's possession.

He claims to his story that this money was given him by his friend, Isidor Fisch, who died in Germany.

Defense Assails Jail Methods.
Hauptmann's incarceration under a twenty-four hour guard has been the cause of much blistering comment by the defense attorneys. He wears no shoes, jacks, necktie, or belt. He eats from cardboard plates with cardboard utensils. A guard watches every morsel he eats. If he walks up and down a guard walks with him, eyes every step, but never speaking a word. The lights in his cell are never extinguished.

Mrs. Hauptmann is permitted to visit her husband three times a week. On one day she may bring her 1 year old son to see him through a fine meshed wire. Mrs. Hauptmann and the baby live in the village in a house 200 yards from the jail. A girl reporter occupies an adjoining room so that none of the wife's actions may escape the press.

Like a Stage Drama.
So similar to a stage drama appears this murder trial that the cast of characters may be presented as on a program as follows:

THE CHARGE.—That Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. died of a fracture of the skull on March 3, 1932, as the result of external violence caused by Hauptmann during a kidnapping from the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N. J.

THE DEFENDANT.—Hauptmann, a German alien with a criminal record as a robber and holdup man abroad, who insists upon his innocence.

THE PRESIDING JUDGE.—Thomas

U. S. GIRL USED BY NAZIS IN FIGHT ON JEWISH DOCTORClaim He Told Her Not to Study in Germany.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, Dec. 19.—An anonymous "American girl student" appeared today in the columns of the official Nazi organ, Der Angriff, to bolster the newspaper's renewed anti-Jewish campaign.

Basing its assertions on a story alleged to have been told by the girl, the paper attacked Dr. Fritz Meyer, one of Germany's most widely known physicians. Despite the anti-Jewish campaign, Dr. Meyer has hitherto retained a flourishing practice in Germany.

Der Angriff published this headline: "Jewish Doctor Agitates Against Germany During Consultation."

"Bad Taste."
In the article following it was stated that an American girl consulted him, telling him she wanted to study in Germany. Dr. Meyer is alleged to have replied:

"That would show bad taste." Friends could not reach Dr. Meyer tonight and it is assumed that he was taken into "protective custody." The police would make no statement regarding his whereabouts.

Dr. Meyer's full address was published in Der Angriff in the same way as was that of Reichsbank Director Koepfen several weeks ago. In Koepfen's case a mob demonstrated in front of his home until he was arrested.

Orders Book Note Search.
Dr. Meyer in the last year has had several offers to practice in foreign countries, but has turned them all down "to remain in the land of his birth."

The "national department for literature," a subdepartment of the national chamber of culture controlled by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, sent a circular today to all private libraries in Germany urging them to search all books dealing with National Socialism for possible annotations made by the borrowers.

W. Trenchard, 71 year old dean of the Supreme court of New Jersey, a stern enforcer of courtroom discipline.

THE PROSECUTING WITNESS.—Col. Lindbergh, father of the murdered child, world famous aviator, hero of the first solo flight from New York to Paris.

THE ATTORNEYS.—Attorney General David T. Wilentz, smooth and dapper, a prosecutor with poise and courtroom presence; Reilly, bluff and hearty, the sort of defense lawyer who jokes with the jury.

THE JURY.—To be selected from a panel of 65 women and 85 men, mostly farmers and housewives. Sentiment in the county appears to be slightly sympathetic toward Hauptmann.

FRATERNIZED WITNESSES.—Dr. John F. Condon, known as "Jasie," who handed over the $50,000 ransom given him by Lindbergh to a man in a cemetery; Is quoted as saying: "What I will say will make America's hair turn." An eccentric educator, a puzzle to both sides; Betty Gow, who put the Lindbergh child to bed the night of the kidnapping and returned two hours later to find him gone, the window open and the floor muddy; she is returning from Scotland to testify.

One hundred witnesses are to be called for the state. About fifty will testify for the defense. The trial is expected to last for six weeks or more.

EX-CONVICT FINED $5.
Allan La Mar, 47 years old, 612 Wrightwood avenue, an ex-convict, was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct yesterday by Judge Justice F. McCarthy in the Town Hall court after police who found valuables stored in the apartment were unable to link him with any theft.

REVERSAL SAVES
BANKER MUNDAY
FROM PRISONHigh Court Rules on Embezzling Case.

Charles B. Munday, former La Salle street banker, escaped a second prison term yesterday when the Illinois Supreme court ordered an outright reversal of his conviction for embezzlement here in 1933.

Munday, who is now 73 years old, was released in 1931 from the Joliet penitentiary, where he had served for his part in the William E. Lorimer bank failures in June, 1914.

The conviction on which yesterday's reversal was based was in connection with the alleged conversion to his own use of a $1,100 check made out to the State Mill and Elevator of North Dakota while he was its agent in 1931. He was convicted Nov. 3, 1932, by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who overruled a motion for a new trial and a year ago sentenced Munday to one to ten years for embezzlement. The Supreme court granted a writ of supersedeas and Munday was released from the county jail last June in $5,000 bonds.

Denies He Made Admission.
During the trial O. L. Spencer of Grand Forks, N. D., general manager of the elevator company, testified Munday had admitted embezzling $29,000 of the company's funds while he was its Chicago agent.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Munday denied the "admission" and charged that the company owed him $16,000 in unpaid commissions. He insisted from the first that he had been wrongfully convicted.

In its reversal the high court ruled that there was nothing in the testimony to show that the money involved in the trial had been converted to Munday's personal use.

Blamed in Bank Failure.
Munday's earlier prison sentence followed his unsuccessful six years' fight to escape prison. He had been vice president of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, parent of the Broadway State bank, the Ashland-Twelfth Street bank, and the Illinois State bank. When they closed they had aggregate deposits of nearly $8,500,000.

Lorimer, head of the bank organization, was acquitted by a jury that held the banks were wrecked by the acts of Munday. Munday applied for parole at the earliest possible opportunity, and he was released Nov. 15, 1931, on his plea of ill health.

COUNTERFEITER GETS THREE YEARS.
Stanley Warwick, 30 years old, 818 East 81st street, found guilty of possessing $39,000 in counterfeit $5 federal reserve notes, was sentenced yesterday to three years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Hitler Lifts Hans Frank

BERLIN, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler appointed Hans Frank, reich commissioner of justice, as minister without portfolio today. Hitler sent Frank, who is only 34 years old, a letter thanking him for his "great work for German justice and national well-being" (view of life). Frank has been a Nazi leader since 1929 and is known especially for his reform plan for German jurisprudence.

NEW DEAL MAY HELP N. Y. BUILD POWER SYSTEM

La Guardia Encouraged by President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Tentative arrangements whereby the Public Works Administration will finance a municipal power project for New York City were made here today when Mayor La Guardia of New York City conferred with President Roosevelt and later with PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The alacrity with which the administration threw its support to La Guardia in his fight with the private utilities was regarded as the President's answer to Thomas N. McCarter, head of the Edison Electric Institute, who suggested in vain that the government collaborate with private business and agree to a friendly test of the TVA power program in the Supreme court.

Come on President's Invitation.
La Guardia and Maurice P. Davidson, New York commissioner of water supply, gas, and electricity, came to the White House today at the invitation of the President, made yesterday after the city authorities had rejected bids of private utilities to furnish electricity next year. In announcing the invitation, the White House suggested that if rates paid by the city and the federal government in New York were excessive, the same situation might be in turn in other large cities.

Thus the private utilities, in bidding for power not only have been told there will be no compromise in the Tennessee valley, but are now threatened with federally financed competition in New York and other large cities where the government is a power customer.

The New York City officials conferred with the President at length, discussing the question of rates paid by both governments, and then were directed to see Secretary Ickes. La Guardia emerged from Ickes' office saying he had received "reasonable assurance" that the municipal plant would be financed. He said the proposed plant would cost about 7 million dollars, and that a transmission system would cost 100 million dollars.

Ickes later said he would be inclined to put New York's application on the "preferred list," adding that he told La Guardia to file a formal application. Ickes said the amount suggested as a loan and grant "to help" in the construction of the project was 15 million dollars.

Buy or Build.
President Roosevelt said at his press conference today that the question of rates paid for power for public use was a business proposition, and that a city, or the government, should decide, just as a factory owner would, whether it is cheaper to buy power or build a plant. Asked about McCarter's appeal for cooperation, which contained a defense of utility rates, the President said he didn't think McCarter's attitude represented that of other utility chiefs with whom he had talked.

CHARLES CUSACK CHARGES WIFE WITH LARCENY

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Charles Edmund Cusack, wealthy member of a Chicago family, and a deputy sheriff left today by plane for Deming, N. M., in an effort to apprehend Mrs. Cusack, charged by her husband with grand theft.

Mrs. Cusack was accused in a warrant of taking oil paintings, valuable silver, and other household articles belonging to her husband. He said she was en route to Cuero, Tex., by train despite a court order which would have given him custody of their three sons over the coming week-end. He expressed belief the children were with her.

A contempt of court citation also has been issued against Mrs. Cusack on the charge of taking the children out of the state in violation of a court order. Superior Judge Isaac Paché canceled all previous orders giving Mrs. Cusack custody of the children at any time. Formerly she had the children weekdays and the father had them week-ends.

The Cusacks' hotly contested divorce action here several months ago ended when the court refused to grant either a decree.

MACY'S LETTER ASKS GAS CHIEF'S GENEROUS CHECK

Cites Good G. O. P. Prospects in N. Y. Nov. 6.

New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—At the same time he was attacking the utilities and the "powering," W. Kingsland Macy, former chairman of the Republican state committee, was pleading for a "generous check" as a campaign contribution from George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas company. That was brought out today at the second of the hearings of the joint legislative committee investigating public utilities.

Mr. Macy's plea was made in a letter written on last Aug. 13. He then was chairman of the state committee. That was just at the opening of the fall governorship campaign.

Sees Bright Prospects.
The first sentence in Mr. Macy's letter, "Our party has the best opportunity in many years to achieve a straight victory," brought laughter from members of the investigating committee as well as from those in the audience.

"I didn't quite get that. What did you say?" John E. Mack, counsel to the committee, asked as Charles L. McCann of the committee's counsel began reading Mr. Macy's letter, which said:

"Dear Mr. Cortelyou: 'Our party has the best opportunity in many years to achieve a state victory. Our constant fight for good government, strengthened by fusion victory in New York City, has advanced our party position in the state. The Republican gains were made despite the handicap of a heavy indebtedness with which the committee had been saddled before I was elected chairman three and a half years ago. Party Debts Reduced.

"I believe that nothing will contribute more than the final clearing away at this time of the past indebtedness in order that the party may enter upon this fall's campaign free and clear. The inherited load of $170,000 has been cut by approximately $100,000 and the running expenses of the state committee have been reduced very materially. Our campaign to raise $105,000 would accomplish the object sought.

"Realizing the difficulties of the times Mr. Ziegler and I have endeavored to effect an organization that would reach into every part of the state, so that the burden would not fall too heavily upon any one section. The leaders mentioned on this letterhead who are their respective areas have undertaken to cooperate in evidence of the importance of this effort as a party service of the first order.

"The undertaking is a difficult one, but with every one putting a shoulder to the wheel Mr. Ziegler and I feel confident of success and I appeal to you to give consideration to what the party has accomplished in this state and what it is seeking to accomplish in the cause of good government, with the hope that you will be one to aid us with a generous check now. It may be made payable to me or to William Ziegler Jr., treasurer, Republican state committee."

Further Quiz Coming.
The investigating committee also turned its attention today to the activities of the Consolidated Gas company, which controls gas and electric service almost completely in this city, and a letter was produced in which the company's counsel told of preparing a rate form "in part to conceal and gloss over, and in part to fortify, an increase in rates commingled with a charge in form."

On these cold December mornings Mrs. Hester White, of Waukegan refused to get up and light a fire to warm the house for her husband, Willie White, 40, she charges, he beat her. This alleged cruelty yesterday caused Mrs. White to file suit for divorce in the Circuit court of Lake county. The Whites have been married six years and have three children.

WRIGHT FREED IN LOOP HOTEL CHECK CHARGE

Warren E. Wright, 45 years old, of Jacksonville, Ill., candidate for congress from the Twentieth district in the election last month, was freed on a charge of defrauding an innkeeper by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State street court yesterday.

Wright was arrested on a warrant sworn by officials of the Hotel Morrison, who charged Wright had passed a worthless check for $110 at the hotel two years ago. Through his attorney, Harold T. Halpenny, Wright charged the arrest was a political move to defeat his candidacy. He said the check was not honored because the bank on which it was drawn closed after he wrote it. He has already repaid $50 of the amount, he said. Judge Gorman ruled the check had been issued more than two years ago and that therefore no action could be taken under the Illinois statute of limitations.

HUEY OBTAINS FULL CONTROL OF BATON ROUGE

To Rule City and County Machinery.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long today made himself virtual emperor of the parish of East Baton Rouge. The state capital and Louisiana State university are located in that section. The government of the city of Baton Rouge and of the parish (the latter like the county in other states) will be vested in a board of "police jurors" appointed by the governor.

Like Little Washington.

Senator Long obtained legislative consent to his theory that: "This parish should have about the same form of government as the District of Columbia, where the national capital is located." The city of Baton Rouge is a little Washington. The state of Louisiana has $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 worth of property in the city of Baton Rouge. We have built a great capital; we have built a great university.

"The state should run this parish and this city, because the entire state is interested in the proper conduct of its government. We want to see that all money collected from taxes is properly expended, because the entire state is interested. We own everything around here except the tanks, etc., of the Standard Oil company. That is the only thing that amounts to anything that we ain't got and we'll probably take that over too before we're finished with it."

Immediately after the bill giving Senator Long authority through the governor over the city and parish of Baton Rouge had been favorably reported from committee, the senate passed it, with his 31 other bills. Those survived out of the 35 as first introduced.

Always Anti-Long Section.

The city of Baton Rouge and the parish of East Baton Rouge ever since Senator Long has been in public life have returned tremendous majorities against him every time he has offered for office. It has also returned sweeping majorities against every candidate in the district and parish that he has endorsed.

Among other things the senate gave Senator Long authority to operate a radio broadcasting station from Louisiana State university, using the 50 cent increase in the corporation franchise tax for this purpose.

On that station's wave length will be offered medical and educational talks, concerts and speeches by Senator Long.

Joe Threatens Educator.

While the senate was in session today a diversion was created by the threats of Joe Massina, a bodyguard of Senator Long, to arrest A. A. Fredricks, president of the Louisiana Normal college. Having announced his resignation some time ago as state senator, Fredricks did not intend to take his seat today. Massina gave him the alternative of arrest.

Long has been busy cutting the tax revenues of the city of New Orleans. "We'll make that gang cut its pay roll like nobody's business," said the senator. "You can't maintain a political organization without money and plenty of jobs."

U. S. HEARS HUEY WOULD CORNER STATE'S LIQUOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Warned by liquor interests in the south, the federal government is on guard against an attempt by Senator Huey P. Long to corner the liquor business in his "empire" of Louisiana, it was learned here today.

Word has reached the Federal Alcohol Control administration that Kingfish Huey and his friends plan to set themselves up in the wholesale liquor business. Retailers who come before the Kingfish's state liquor board to get permits will discover permits are not forthcoming unless they buy their liquor from Huey's wholesale house, according to the alleged plan.

Beginning on Jan. 1, however, all wholesalers in the country will have to obtain licenses from the FACA in order to continue in operation. Huey and his friends, therefore, would have to pass in review before the FACA itself before they could set up their wholesale business. The FACA is depending on established liquor interests in the south to tip it off if and when the Kingfish sets up his company.

VON STROHEIM ALMOST BROKE, SO HE ASSERTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Once among the highest paid film directors, Eric Von Stroheim is not only without a job but is overdrawn by two dollars at his bank, nonchalantly he confessed at a city attorney's hearing on a charge of failure to provide.

The charge was preferred by his first wife, Mrs. May Von Stroheim. The director also stated he has virtually no equity in his Brentwood Heights home, against which there are three mortgages totaling $20,750.

But the monopolized screen celebrity has prospects, in view of which he agreed to pay his former wife $5 weekly toward the support of their son, Eric Jr., 18.

His former wife charged Von Stroheim paid her $100 last July 25, and before that nothing since May 19, 1933. The director pleaded he had had only three film jobs this year, netting him $4,000.

TOMAN URGES NEW BUILDINGS FOR ROAD FORCE

Sheriff John Toman urged new buildings for the county highway police of the Willow Springs and Homewood stations after he received yesterday the annual report of Chief William Collins of the county highway department. Terming the present inadequate buildings "disgraceful," Sheriff Toman said he would instruct Eric Hall, county architect, to draw up specifications and estimates of the cost of the new buildings. These, Toman said, he would lay before the county board with a request for a 1935 budget allotment. He estimated both buildings could be erected for $15,000, by use of PWA labor, stones from the county quarry in Palos Park and lumber from the forest preserves. Both new buildings, he said, should have courtrooms like the modern headquarters at Morton Grove, and pistol ranges.

Where the Package is King

How well is it sold? Take those hundreds of thousands of New York families of better than average purchasing power. Is your product in their homes? Have you any greater sales objective than to place it there next year?

New York is a city of cities. The families who read the Herald Tribune actually outnumber the total families in every other American city of one million population or less. This tremendous concentration of buying power is all the more valuable to you because of the way in which they read the Herald

Tribune. It's the intense reader interest given to every copy that makes it so productive of direct sales response. (Over 380,000 reader inquiries in the first eleven months of this year.)

More than one product is "at home" throughout New York chiefly because of the way it was taken into better than average homes by the Herald Tribune. If it's tangible selling proof you want, before you make your 1935 decision, the Herald Tribune is prepared to give it to you. It's ready now, for the asking.

NOTED SHELTER PASTOR TELLS OF 40 YEARS' WORK

Reveals His Commission;
All Signers Dead.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
"It was just 40 years ago on Christmas day that I first crossed the threshold of this old cathedral and I have been here ever since, serving God and troubled humanity as best I can."

The speaker was the Rev. Canon David E. Gibson, pastor of the famous Cathedral shelter, Washington and Peoria streets, and the cathedral of which he spoke was that of St. Peter and Paul which was destroyed by fire in 1921. But even that disaster did not deter the shelter pastor from carrying out his commission "to the poor and needy" which he accepted a few months after his adoption of the famous west side church.

Signed by Noted Churchmen.
This commission Father Gibson made public for the first time yesterday. It was made and signed by noted church and civic leaders of whom now are dead. Among them are the late Bishop Theodore N. Morrison, of Iowa, who then was the rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Ashland avenue and Adams street.

Another was the late Dean William C. De Witt of Western Theological seminary, and the late E. P. Bailey, a former official of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

A portion of the famous commission follows:
"Let it be the policy of the diocese to make this cathedral plant, not only a center of missionary work of the ordinary sort, but the center of all that peculiar form of missionary effort in this city, which is or may be demanded in similar localities. Let us have here a plant in which may go out into other districts, workers fitted to grapple with the hardest and most desperate conditions of human society."

Formed as Mother Institution.
"Let it be a model as well as a mother institution. Let it stand as a living witness—one needed by our church in Chicago—that she is not only trying, but that she is competent, to reach the poor, the miserable, the degraded, and to save them."
Young Gibson had arrived in Chicago shortly before the 1933 World's Fair where he had gained employment. Later he was partner in the Gibson Art galleries, and the founder of the firm of Gibson, Sykes and Fowler, photographers. For many years, as what many supposed was David Gibson's hobby, he handled all unemployment, and other sorts of problems for Dean Walter T. Sumner of the cathedral. Dean Sumner later became bishop of Oregon. He also was head usher at the old cathedral. Although his study became widely known, and their chief officer accounted a success in business, yet it was soon discerned that David Gibson's business was a side issue and his real vocation that of Christian helpfulness.

Becomes a Priest.
When his business interfered with this vocation, he quit his business.

In 1921, he became an Episcopal priest. But long before that time the fame of his helping hand had spread. When the depression of 1914 struck it was David Gibson who was called by civic leaders to combat its misery. A committee composed of Julius Rosenwald, J. L. Graves, James B. Forgan, J. A. Goddard and others, appointed him general chairman of the city's "bundle day," probably the largest charity appeal ever held in the city up to that time.

How the 1934 commission has been discharged by Father Gibson may be seen in that he has helped a million persons in a material way, baptized a thousand, and conducted funerals for 900.

Calls Shelter Great Help.
When fears recently were expressed that diocesan changes in social service program would eliminate the Cathedral shelter, a committee of churchmen was appointed to investigate the shelter's work in relation to the Emergency Relief act.

Said S. H. Olmsted, head of the service bureau for men of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission:
"It would be disastrous, a calamity, to close the Cathedral shelter."

Although the famous property now is for sale, Bishop George Craig Stewart, of the diocese of Chicago, has declared the work of Canon Gibson will go on with unabated vigor.

A revolver was found beside her pajama clad body.

STREET CAR CO. HEAD REPLIES TO BUS ASPERSIONS

Upholds Efficiency of Trolley System.

Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, issued yesterday a spirited rejoinder to a transportation statement made public earlier in the day by John A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Coach company and chairman of the board of the Fifth Avenue Coach company of New York.

Commenting on the substitution of 77 buses for 69 street cars on the Fourth and Madison avenue line, in New York, Mr. Ritchie declared in his statement that on completion of New York's motorization scheme, only 241 street cars would be operating on the surface rails of Manhattan island.

"The street car cannot possibly hold its place in the general scheme of modern transportation," the bus official summarized.

Mr. Richardson defended the street car by pointing out that there are only 200 miles of street railways on Manhattan island, as compared with 995 in greater New York City. Chicago, he said, has 1,111 miles of street railways.

Cites Bus Travel "Curve."
"If all the 200 miles of track on the island were abandoned in favor of bus service, it would not be of significance as to the comparative suitability of rail and bus operation in city streets," Mr. Richardson said.

"It might be interesting to have Mr. Ritchie explain, if buses are so much better than street cars, why the Fifth Avenue Motor Coach company of New York reached its peak of riders in 1925 and since then has had a loss of more than 46 per cent in business."

"The Chicago Surface Lines did not reach its peak until 1929 and at the lowest point in the depression lost only 23 per cent of its business. The Fifth Avenue Motor Coach company carries only one and one-half per cent of the local transportation load of New York City."

"Anyone who has used bus service in congested areas in Chicago and compared it with street car service can answer Mr. Ritchie's statement as to whether street cars are an impediment to street traffic, or slow and uncomfortable as compared with buses."

Compares Transfer Situation.
Mr. Richardson cited the portion of Mr. Ritchie's statement dealing with a suggestion for five cent fare on the replacement buses proposed for New York, with a two cent transfer charge. The seven cents charged on the Chicago Surface Lines provides for free transfers, he declared, and virtually as many transfers are issued as there are fares. The average ride for seven cents is much longer than that on the proposed Manhattan buses, even with the transfers.

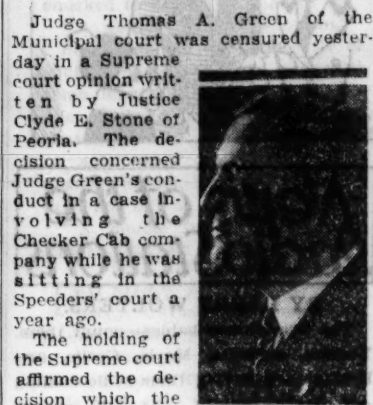

"The management of the Chicago Surface Lines has nothing against buses," the traction president asserted. "This system has the largest group of trolley buses in the world. But on the basis of performance of the Chicago Motor Coach company it would require 10,000 buses in Chicago to do the work now being done by 3,000 street cars, and any motorist can tell you what would happen in that event."

"The Chicago Surface Lines is now pioneering in the development of a new type of street car, which we hope conditions will soon permit us to purchase and install."

SUPREME COURT CENSURES JUDGE THOMAS GREEN

of Municipal Bench.

Judge Thomas A. Green of the Municipal court was censured yesterday in a Supreme court opinion written by Justice Clyde E. Stone of Peoria. The decision concerned Judge Green's conduct in a case involving the Checker Cab company while he was sitting in the Speeders' court a year ago.

The holding of the Supreme court affirmed the decision which the Appellate court handed down last summer declaring that the Municipal court is a court of limited jurisdiction, similar to the justice of the peace courts.

Superior Court Denies Writ.
The case was carried to the higher courts by officers of the cab company including Michael Sokol, president, who had been ordered to appear in Judge Green's court to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court in connection with the arrest of a company chauffeur, Iver Swenberg, on a charge of reckless driving.

The officers refused to obey the contempt summons and sought a writ of prohibition in the Superior court. When the writ was denied by Judge Joseph B. David an appeal was taken to the Appellate court through the law firm of Samuel A. and Leonard B. Ettelson.

Judge Green had attempted to investigate the cab company in his hearing of the charge against Swenberg. Of this action the high court said:
"Acceptance by Judge Green of the amicus curiae information and his public statement that he proposed to conduct a thorough investigation of all matters relating to the taxicab business in the city of Chicago, the alleged monopolies relating thereto, and alleged violation of state and federal statutes in relation to restraint of trade and concerning wages of drivers of the Checker Cab company, that he intended to have subpoenas duces tecum issued for the books of the company, show an attempted prostitution of the purpose and functions of courts of justice and a perversion of judicial power so grossly incompatible with the most elementary principles of the administration of justice as to tend to subject courts to ridicule and to bring them into disrepute."

Up to Higher Courts.
Pertaining to the jurisdiction of the Municipal court the decision declared that "it would be lamentable if courts of superior jurisdiction were impotent to prevent such flagrant misuses of judicial power."

Judge Green did not appear in his court yesterday. It was reported that he was ill. He could not be reached at his home for a statement.

HUNGARIAN ROW HERO HEADS NEW SERBIAN CABINET

BEIGRADE, Jugoslavia, Dec. 19. (AP)—Bogoljub Yevitch, popular hero of Jugoslavia's diplomatic victory over Hungary at Geneva, today assumed the task of providing his country a new cabinet.

The former foreign minister's withdrawal from the old cabinet precipitated a crisis which concluded with the resignation of the entire membership. Yevitch presented before the house of nations council the Jugoslav charges that Hungary was guilty of complicity in the assassination of King Alexander. The league's report on the critical dispute was interpreted here as a Jugoslav triumph. Yevitch's colleagues in the cabinet, however, politically hostile, failed to share the general enthusiasm for his services at the league session.

CHINA BEHEADS 4 FOR SLAYING OF CHICAGO COUPLE

Rescuer Tells Own Story of Saving Baby.

(Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.)
WUHU, Anhwei province, China, Dec. 19.—Helen Priscilla Stam, 2 months old and an orphan, ate and slept contentedly today in the Wuhu General hospital.

Outside the quiet institution Chinese authorities began the process of legal retribution against the Chinese communists who killed Helen's missionary parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stam of Chicago. They captured five alleged communists and beheaded four at once.

Dr. C. K. Lo, a Chinese Christian pastor, told his fellow Christian workers how he and Mrs. Lo had saved the child from death when the communists raided the Stam mission at Taingho on Dec. 7. He told how Chinese women nursed the child to keep it alive while he and his wife brought her 70 miles on foot from the ravished mission.

Baby Starved 24 Hours.
Dr. Lo said he arrived at Taingho the day after Mr. and Mrs. Stam had been executed and learned that Helen Priscilla was still alive.

"The townsfolk were afraid to give information," he said, "but finally an old lady pointed to a deserted house. I entered and heard the crying of an infant. It had been there at least 24 hours without care or food."
"I took the infant and found a Chinese mother among a group of sympathetic persons. She volunteered to nurse the child."
"I got my wife and our own baby and the Stam infant and placed the two children in a rice basket. Then we began the seventy mile walk to the nearest town en route to Wuhu.

"We carried the basket containing the infants, and mothers along the way nursed Helen Priscilla."
"At the end of the forty mile hike we entered a village where my wife found a tin of powdered milk, which she purchased. Her own baby was born in the Wuhu General hospital and while there my wife learned how to prepare powdered milk."

"With this knowledge she put little orphaned Helen on a schedule of three hour feedings and Helen thrived."
"That the Stam infant suffered no ill effects during its abandonment within the cold, deserted house and on the week's trip here is a miracle. It is the will of God that this baby shall not die."

U. S. Missionaries Safe.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 19. (AP)—Eight American missionaries of the Reformed Church in America arrived here today in a Chinese junk, completing a journey which lasted eight days. The Americans had evacuated their mission station at Shenchow, West Hunan province, and traveled here by way of Changteh and Yochow.

The party consists of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Hilgeman, Detroit; the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Snyder, Akron, O.; the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Bucher, Lancaster, Pa.; Miss Helen Brown, Chambersburg, Pa.; and Miss A. K. Zierdt, Philadelphia.

A group of Roman Catholic fathers and sisters of the American Missionist Procurement mission of Shenchow also arrived here. They left behind in Shenchow Bishop Cuthbert O'Gara and the Rev. Father Quentin Olwell, who decided to remain at their posts despite the dangers.

France Blames Engineer for Wreck Fatal to 200

MEAUX, France, Dec. 19. (AP)—Lucien Daubigny, a railroad engineer, was charged by police today with responsibility for the deaths of the 200 persons who died in a train disaster at Lagny last Christmas eve. Daubigny was the pilot of the speeding express which crashed into a standing train. He was charged with homicide by "imprudence" in failure to heed a warning signal. The authorities accused him of running past four signals in the fog the night of the tragedy.

CRITICS STORM AT HANGING OF BRITISH WOMAN

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A storm of criticism was roused today throughout England about the hanging this morning of Mrs. Ethel Lillie Major, 42, for the murder of her husband, Arthur, 43, by poisoning with strychnine. She was the first woman hanged in England since 1928.

Humanitarians who made desperate efforts to get her reprieved were bitterly critical of the hanging, but feminists thought she ought to have been hanged "so long as capital punishment, which is a relic of barbarism and a blot on civilization, remains."

Visited by Children.

George Bernard Shaw, who is an opponent of capital punishment, approved the hanging on the same ground.

"She has been hanged," Shaw said. "Well, that is all right. I have no fault to find with it. There was not the slightest reason for reprieve. If it had been a man no one would have suggested that he be reprieved. It is all nonsense to talk about Mrs. Major being a woman and a mother. Women and mothers are not exempt from ordinary law."

He added that he is against all punishment as "it is nonsensical to try to make two blacks make a white."

Shaw Approves.

Mrs. Major was hanged in Hull prison at 9 a. m. while women knelt in the streets outside and workers' families gazed at the prison from windows gaily decorated with Christmas holly and mistletoe. Shortly before the hanging Mrs. Major was visited by her 15 year old son. Her daughter, who is 19 years old, was a recent visitor. The hanging went off without a hitch and there were no incidents. A small black flag above the prison announced the execution.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy at Home

No Cooking! No Wasteful Real Saving!
You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief if money refunded.

is back again!

IT TOOK FOUR YEARS to make this Christmas gift—four years of patient waiting, while this treasure of famous Pennsylvania Rye lay quietly locked in bonded warehouses, and gathered the rich ripe flavor and exquisite bouquet which only years can give.

You will read the story on the U. S. Government bottled-in-bond seal. "Made—Spring 1930"—"bottled Fall 1934"—and what a story that tells!

For this particular stock was deliberately held through an extra summer. It not merely complies with bonding requirements, but is five summers old, and as experienced whiskey men can tell you, summer is when aging in wood yields the richest rewards.

So now, you can get bottled-in-bond Old Overholt—that fine old Pennsylvania Rye first made by A. Overholt a century and a quarter ago—and we hardly need to add that it flatters the taste of the man who gives it as well as the man who receives it for a Christmas gift.

E. R. BLACK DIES; GIVEN PRAISES BY ROOSEVELT

Reserve Board Chief in Critical Months.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and other government officials expressed their regret today for the death of Eugene R. Black, former governor of Alabama and a militant leader of the south. He died of a heart attack early this morning at his home in Atlanta, Ga.

"He was a great person and a great soldier," President Roosevelt said of Mr. Black, who had worked with him for more than a year.

Praised by Morgenthau. "I am greatly relieved," said Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury, "his ability and unflinching good will endeared him to all who were associated with him."

"In directing with wisdom and judgment the federal reserve system during a period of severe stress and uncertainty, he performed services to the nation which will long be remembered and appreciated."

Mr. Black, who was 61 years old, had been slightly ill for the last three days. He was to have gone to Washington on business yesterday, but had postponed that trip.

His wife, Mrs. Gussie Grady Black, daughter of Henry W. Grady, a well known southern journalist, was with him when he died. He was survived by his widow, the other survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Walter H. Wellborn of Atlanta, and two sons, Eugene Jr. of New York, and Henry of Atlanta.

Heads Reserve Board. Mr. Black was called to Washington by President Roosevelt on May 10, 1923, to become chairman of the federal reserve board.

Even after Mr. Black returned to his old post as governor of the Sixth federal district in Atlanta last June he maintained a close contact with the national administration. He acted as special liaison officer between the White House and bankers at the request of the chief executive.

Mr. Black was considered one of the more conservative influences in the federal financial field. Though he led the federal reserve system opposition to the President's plan of surrendering its stock of monetary gold, valued at more than $3 billion dollars, there was no break in the friendship between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Black.

A graduate of the University of Georgia, Mr. Black practiced law for a time in Atlanta, but changed to banking in 1923 when, as he humorously said, he "noticed that banks closed in mid-afternoon."

He had been critically ill but two days. Dean Ketchum was born Jan. 26, 1872, at Burns, Ill. He received his bachelor of arts degree in engineering at Illinois in 1895.

During his career he was contracting manager of the American Bridge company, dean of the University of Colorado college of engineering, administrative director of the 6 million dollar government powder plant at Nitro, W. Va., and professor of civil engineering at the University of Pennsylvania. He returned to the University of Illinois in 1922 and was dean of the college of engineering and director of the engineering experiment station until last year when he retired.

SPORT NOTABLES WILL ATTEND BOY CRIPPLE'S RITES

There will be more than a few notable in sports and aviation at the funeral tomorrow of Stephen [Duke] O'Connor, 15 years old, who died Tuesday in his home at 1049 North Laramie avenue.

Nine years ago Duke fractured his hip, a bone malunion, and he became a cripple. But Duke participated in sports to the full extent of his capabilities. Through his father, Stephen J., editor of an aviation magazine, he met and flew with such widely known aviators as Jimmy Doolittle, Frank Hawks, Lon Yancey and the Hunter brothers. His love of sports drew famous athletes to his circle of friends, among them Babe Ruth, Max Baer and Dizzy Dean.

The Rev. J. P. O'Reilly, pastor of Our Lady Help of Christians church, will say a requiem high mass for him at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Classmates from the parish school whom he had coached in sports will carry his body to a grave in Calvary cemetery.

Chicago's Best Performers at Mayor's Party

Needy Children to Benefit from Proceeds.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Fifty thousand children will call Mayor Kelly Santa Claus next week as a result of last night's gala benefit performance in the Chicago Stadium, which was organized under his direction. The proceeds were $200,000, a sum considerably in excess of the takings from last year's Christmas show, which brought new winter clothing to 32,380 shivering youngsters.

This entertainment, which brought out an audience that filled the stadium almost to its capacity [about 20,000], was the second in Mayor Kelly's series of superlatives. Called "A Night of Stars," its copious program contained the cream of Chicago's amusement life. The bill was a four hour parade of celebrities before the footlights and the microphone.

Here are a few statistics to indicate the scope of the affair. The program contained thirty-five separate numbers, many of them given by large groups of performers. Eight orchestra directors functioned in the pit. Thirteen masters of ceremonies kept the show moving briskly and the audience informed.

The cabarets were the heaviest contributors. Almost all of the first class floor show cafes were represented, either by their dance bands or by their current stars and dancing girls. Johann Strauss III, Viennese music master from the Casino, was the first to appear, leading his orchestra in the famous waltzes on his family tree.

Then came George Olsen and Ethel Shutta, plus their band, from the College Inn; Don Pedro, Mexican singer and marimbist; Kay Kyser from the Bluehawk; Stan Myers from the Terrace Garden; with dancing girls; Earl Hines from the Grand Terrace; Ted Weems from the Empire room; with the Abbott ballet, and Art Kassel from the Walnut room.

One could have surveyed Chicago's extensive cabaret life at one sitting last night, and thus saved several hundred dollars in entertainment expenses.

Radio was represented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, with Lawrence Salerno as soloist; the WLS barn dance troupe; Lum and Abner of W-G-N; Amos 'n' Andy, and Charlie Agnew's band.

The Aragon ballroom sent Wayne King, who proved his talent as a saxophone soloist. The Trianon ballroom contributed Jan Garber and his orchestra.

From the Palace theater came the Parisian revellers of the "Folies Bergeres" revue. From the Chicago theater [and also the Joseph Urban theater] came Cherniavsky, impetuous orchestra leader, with his musicians.

About midnight George M. Cohan, with his "Ah, Wilderness!" makeup freshly washed off, put in an appearance. If the program kept in with the late stayers, and Moe, Eugene Leontovich, star of "Romance," also arrived to represent the drama.

The choir singing minutes were superior. Prof. James Mundy's colored chorists chanted in spirituals. Father O'Malley's Paulist choir evoked the solemnity of the Christmas spirit with an enchanting interpretation of "Holy Night."

Altogether, it was a benefit of the first magnitude.

Harold F. McCormick

Opens His Home for Italy America Tea

Harold F. McCormick's handsome brownstone mansion, one of Chicago's near north side landmarks, made such an effective picture in yesterday's snow as members of the Italy America society mounted its brown steps that cameramen lingered to photograph the residence rather than the guests. Chauncey McCormick, president of the society, suggested the picture would be pleasantly appropriate for the host's Christmas greeting cards.

Inside the guests found the house with its high ceilings and lovely tapestry walls as much of an attraction as the program which included songs by Coo Glade and Giuseppe Bentonelli. It was the first time in several years that Harold McCormick had opened his residence to any of the several groups in which he is interested.

Unfortunately, however, Mr. McCormick had to be an absent host, for he was confined to his bed with a severe cold.

Front Views and Profiles By June Provinces

THERE are several humorous but fictitious tales that point Mrs. Roosevelt's indefatigability and omnipresence. One you may have heard concerns the father Secret—determination—used to tell his child a bedtime story, and, choosing Robinson Crusoe, built up an exciting narrative. When he got to the footprint in the sand on the desert isle he paused dramatically before he asked whose footprint did the little boy think it was. And the little boy answered promptly that he knew. It was Mrs. Roosevelt's.

Then, too, there was the magazine cartoon showing two miners flat on their tummies working in a remote corner of the mine, and a caption reading "Here comes Mrs. Roosevelt."

These are mentioned by way of preamble to a true story Louis Skidmore tells in connection with a visit to the Norris dam near Knoxville, Tenn. He stood looking at the great engineering job, and the cables, some 300 feet in the air, with a six yard bucket carrying the concrete from the mixer to the dam. A police officer stood beside him as he watched the bucket in operation. The officer spoke musingly:

"Mrs. Roosevelt went across in that bucket," he said.

The small daughter of the John Lawsons of Kenilworth was taken downtown by her nurse to see Santa Claus in one of the loop stores.

"Tell Santa what you want him to bring you for Christmas," suggested the nurse.

The child stretched on her toes and whispered in Santa's ear in so low a whisper the nurse was unable to hear her. Since that time she has not divulged her Christmas wish, not even to her parents. Every time they ask her what she wants for Christmas she tells them that Santa knows. The Lawsons are getting pretty upset about it.

Mason, Hackett Triumphant in 'La Traviata'

"La Traviata" opera in four acts by Verdi, presented by the Chicago Grand Opera company at the Civic Opera house Wednesday, Dec. 19.

THE CAST. Edith Mason Violetta Valery. Janet Fairbank Flora Bervoys. Charles Hackett Alfredo Germont. Carlo Morelli Giorgio Germont. Carlo Morelli Gaston. Giuseppe Cavatore Baron Douphal. Wilfred Knudsen Dr. Grenvil. Teodor Lovich Annina. Gustav Paul. Dances in Act 3 by Harriet Lundgren, Bentley Stone, and corps-de-ballet.

BY EDWARD MOORE. "La Traviata" rates as one of the rather extraordinary performances of the Chicago Grand Opera company this season. Presented earlier in the series it presented Miss Mason as one of the artists of the generation who is especially fitted by voice and nature to sing the rôle of Violetta. Repeated last night, it clinched the previous opinion of her; it also presented such first raters as Mr. Hackett and Mr. Morelli in the rôles of the junior and senior Germonts.

The junior Germont was the identical Charles Hackett as he used to be when he was at his best in the days of a former Chicago Opera, a voice that won by sheer quality, an actor of ability, a personality that vitalized his rôle, and in addition a more than customarily good looking artist. In other words, the part of Alfredo Germont was being treated by an expert of the operatic stage, and the treatment projected itself definitely, accurately, and pleasingly across the footlights.

The rôle of Giorgio Germont was no less ably handled. It may be that there were a few in the audience who remembered when Mr. Morelli made his first appearance at the Auditorium. He was then a student at the University of Michigan, and he appeared as a chorus girl—I mean girl—in one of that great school's musical shows. If you ask him, he will recall the incident with a smile of pleasure. But it is also true that since then he has grown to be one of the generation's astonishingly good artists of the baritone persuasion, a singer who reflects in his voice quite what the composer wrote into the score, a personality who makes a character vivid.

There was likewise Miss Fairbank in a small part, counting the total number of notes she sang, but who knew what it was all about and projected her knowledge more accurately than many another artist of this and former seasons in a larger rôle. But most of all one remembers Miss Mason's voice, not only its lovely quality but the eloquence with which it portrayed one of Verdi's most appealing characters.

Miss Bradley to Make Bow at Tea Today

Will Be Guest at Many Holiday Parties.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT EDWIN BRADLEY and their daughter, Miss Alice Bradley, who have met all sorts of exciting adventures on their several safaris in Africa, this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock will receive their friends and acquaintances at the Casino at a tea that will introduce to society Miss Bradley.

One of the loveliest looking young girls in society, with great charm and poise, Miss Bradley's Christmas vacation from Sarah Lawrence college will be a gay whirl of good times, just as the holiday season will be for the other half a hundred girls who officially are "out" this winter.

Assisting will be some of Miss Bradley's college mates, including Miss Barbara Bersbach, Miss Taylor Hanna, Miss Marjorie Kelly, and Miss Heath Horton. Also Miss Nancy Freund, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Freund, who is entertaining at luncheon for Miss Bradley tomorrow at the Arts club, and Miss Martha Borland, Miss Nancy Doering, Miss Frances Jeffery, Miss Louise Parsons, Miss Laura Bartlett, and Miss Betty Babson.

Fortune Teller at Luncheon.

Miss Freund, who is arriving this morning from Dobbs Ferry, is a bit younger than Miss Bradley, but they are intimate friends and neighbors on the south side, so Mrs. Freund is allowing her subde daughter to go to some of Miss Bradley's debutante parties.

Mrs. Freund is going to have a fortune teller entertain the thirty-five girls who will be her guests at luncheon tomorrow, and, since they are just starting their adult life, we can think of nothing that would delight them more than to hear predictions of happy futures.

Mrs. Freund herself is feeling very happy and pleased these days, for the Christmas Merry-Go-Round held the first week in December at the Hotel Sherman for the benefit of the Chicago Living in hospital netted about $10,000. Mrs. Freund is president of the woman's board which staged the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker are giving a supper party for Miss Bradley on Sunday and the Bradleys are giving a dinner-dance for their daughter on Christmas eve at the Casino.

Another Party for Subde Set.

Another gay Christmas party for the girls just under debutante age and their beaux is one that four of the Countess Bolognesi's old friends, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. Ezra J. Warner, Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, are giving on Saturday night at Christmas at the Racquet club for 17 year old Caterina Bolognesi. It will be a dinner-dance.

Lieut. Edward Schull of Fort Sheridan, Ill., has arrived to visit his parents, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herman Walter Schull at the Westchester.

Caterina and her younger sister, Marianna, who go to the Sacred Heart convent in Lake Forest, will join their mother in Chicago for the holiday season. The countess, who was Rose Garibaldi of Chicago before her marriage to the Italian who used to represent his country as consul in Chicago, has been visiting Mrs. Swift since she came here from the family's farm in northern Michigan. The count is in Europe just now.

Dinners to Precede Harris School Dance.

It is seldom that groups of various ages meet at a dance, for usually a party definitely is for one group or another; but the Christmas dance that the pupils of the Harris school give annually always is attended by subdebs and their schoolboy beaux, debas and their young men.

Kay Francis, Dietrich Visit Chevalier Set

BY GEORGE SHAFER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—The afternoons on the set where Maurice Chevalier, with a new, and spiky little mustache, is humming and smiling his way through the hearts of various ladies in "Folies Bergeres de Paris" have been enlivened all week because of the girl friends from other studios dropping in to watch how Maurice does it professionally.

On Monday afternoon it was Kay Francis who dropped in on the French light comedian and flashed the full force of the dazzling Francis smile at the Frenchman. On Tuesday it was Marlene Dietrich who drove from her studio, while Chevalier was visiting Loretta Young dropped onto the set another day.

Miss Dietrich's appearance yesterday in her imported, battleship gray sedan created the big buzz of the week at United Artists' studio, where Chevalier is appearing in both English and French versions of "Folies Bergeres de Paris" for Twentieth Century pictures. Marlene tripped onto the set and effusively greeted Princess Natalie Paley, who is the leading woman opposite Chevalier in the French version. While Chevalier went through boudoir scenes with Merle Oberon, who is his leading woman in English, Marlene dismissed Princess Paley's maid and herself fixed the hair and applied the makeup to Miss Paley.

While Marlene fussed with the princess' hair both girls turned their necks this way and that to peek at Maurice through the open door of the princess' portable dressing room, although Marlene could see better because the princess had to watch the winning Frenchman by his reflection in her mirror.

Marlene made a great do-do about visiting the set to see Miss Paley, but Maurice and everybody else just smiled. Marlene had a dispute with her director and patron, Joe von Sternberg, at Paramount one day this week and she and Joe aren't speaking except on business.

Miss Oberon, whose engagement to Joe Schenck, co-owner of Twentieth Century pictures, is as cold as ice, appeared in the scene in which she tries to confess an indiscretion to her husband [Chevalier] and the latter laughs it off. Miss Oberon's light brown hair was caught at the back loosely but was brushed back so tight in front the forehead assumed unusual height and prominence. Dark penciled eyebrows, a touch of color beneath the cheekbones and big pearl earrings completed an exotic makeup which was accentuated by Miss Oberon's form fitting negligee of horizontal pink and metallic-looking silver stripes.

The negligee was caught with box pleats at the center front and broken at the back of the waist with a bow of the same pink and silver with the back carried long in "one of the stylish new trains." The shoulder line of the negligee was accentuated with a pointed shoulder yoke of sable and the sleeves were long and tight fitted with subtle cuffs. She wore sandal pumps of rose petal pink with silver heels.

Metro has found a man to play Lord Kitchener in "Vanessa." He's John Morse, middle-aged extra. The same studio, however, is still hunting for impersonators of the Kaiser, Lord Tennyson, and Oscar Wilde.

Baron von der Asten Will Speak Before Blind Group

Baron von der Osten, who was brought up as a page in the court at Saxony and who later worked his way through New York University, will speak at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind on West 22d street. While this still young man, who fought in the world war, has traveled all over the world, he will tell the blind at the Lighthouse about his travels in Turkey.

New Hat Helps Shopper Face the Final Rush

Flippant Pill Boxes Return to Favor Again.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shopping under high pressure these last few days of rush and scramble to find proper gifts for persnickety people does take the starch out of any hardened shop hound. The thing to do in this state of mind and soul is buy a new hat to perk up the weary wardrobe. There are some knockout new models that will renew all your enthusiasms.

For instance, the bonnets the stylists have been talking about, very brief and fetching trifles that will make a plaster saint out of any person stressing enough of the deviltry to make, then, interesting. There's a black felt winner with the brim faced with snowy white. This brim divides at the ear region and ends in a demure little white bow under the chin. Devastating on the right headline.

Tiny flippant pill boxes are in again, or rather on again. You'll find them in felts, corded silks and satins. Pill boxes are even smaller this time than last year. They cover just the top section of the skull, but they are grand for heavy fur collared winter coats.

Other small flirtatious toppers are of velvet, tiny scraps that are twisted and turned and tied into nothing more or less than bows with the sharply pointed ends standing up like bunny ears. These perky affairs also slant rakishly, sometimes almost tipsily, right on the topmost crop of curls.

Tiny satin turbans cleverly rolled and fashioned to wear well down over the side of the head have flattering wisps of veiling. Veiling and still more veiling is wound about the newest midseason hats. Some of them are filmed over the eyes with veils and then more of the stuff is tied in his chin bows, making the most effective afternoon creations that have been seen in years.

All-Illinois Art Society Offers Splendid Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring a delightful exhibition of landscapes, portraits and still life in the Florentine parlors, Congress hotel. The landscapes are the product of Martin Lundgren's fertile brush and the portraits and still life are by Carl Olsen.

Mr. Lundgren has many previous successes to his credit. He paints landscapes in a friendly and unassuming manner, telling his story of mountain or meadow in clear color and with direct line.

For the current exhibit he has gone as far west as Colorado for picturesque material and returning has found more places of great beauty in the dunes and woods of Michigan and Wisconsin.

Mr. Lundgren is a member of the Palette and Chisel club, the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts, the All-Illinois and the Swedish American Art association. His work has been seen in various scattered shows and is invariably remarked for its freshness and vigor.

Carl Olsen contributes the larger part to the present exhibition. His group of portraits is extraordinary fine. They are human interpretations, warmly painted, of men, women, and young people. Mr. Olsen has an instinctive sympathy with his sitter that carries him a long way.

His still life arrangements are among the most beautiful found in some time. He has a keen grasp of the differences in texture of petal, cloth and glass, and paints each with exquisite skill.

The exhibition will continue through December and is well worth seeing.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A gardenia, a wild rose and a heavenly honeysuckle compose a perfume garden offered for Christmas.

All the gentle, fragrant charm of a walk in a moon drenched southern garden has been captured in one of green and silver boxes containing three facons of unbelievably true floral scents.

There are more than half a dozen perfumes from which to choose your assortment of three, but our favorite trio is gardenia, wild rose and a hauntingly lovely honeysuckle. You might substitute jasmine for one of these, or a bouquet that's a richly dreamy blend of rose and honeysuckle, but the gardenia and the rose of this maker are old and proven pets of ours—and the honeysuckle, which is new, is one of the perfume achievements of the year.

Many of you will know the gardenia; we discovered it last summer and promptly told you that we considered it one of the best ever made. It has a lightness that many scents of that name miss lamentably; for verity of fragrance and for lasting qualities it is outstanding.

The wild rose is newer. Rose, you know, is rated about the most romantic perfume in the world, and this version of the wild rose queen of all flowers is an enchanting love story in itself. No one could resist its endearing whispers.

We'll admit to a strong personal weakness for honeysuckle. It may be a little heavy for some tastes but if you've ever known the peaceful joy of sauntering along a road where it tumbles on all sides you'll love it. And if you haven't this is your chance to get a glorious idea of it because this honeysuckle as captured in a small bottle is amazingly true.

Perfect fidelity to the scent of the actual flower characterizes all the fragrances of this maker, who never markets a perfume until it passes a blindfold test with flying colors. You couldn't mistake her violet, her gardenia or her others for anything else.

The garden ensemble, in any odors you prefer, or individual bottles, will be found in two Chicago shops. They're not high priced.

THEY LONG SEEK SHAUGHNESSY AS COACH

PAD MUTUELS AT TRACK, BOOKIES LOSE $100,000

Coups Revealed at Charles Town.

BY FRENCH LANE.
A band of race track sharpshooters operating out of the Charles Town track in West Virginia have beaten bookmakers in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and a number of other cities out of more than $100,000 during the last few weeks, it was revealed yesterday.

Their game was the rather old one of "padding the mutuels" at a track where the betting was light, the crowds were small and where the horses seemed to run to orders when the bets were down.

How They Do It.

Horses quoted at even money and 8 to 5 when the fields were dispatched paid off at 6 to 1 and 8 to 1 when the official mutuel prices were hung out. A half dozen bookmakers in Chicago are reported to have been hit so hard they were forced to go out of business.

Odds in mutuel betting are determined by the amount of money wagered on each horse. The Charles Town snipers entered a horse in a race in which he seemed to be a certain winner. They would bet thousands of dollars on the horse in the race. Their representatives at the track course wagered four or five hundred dollars on another horse in the race. The betting pools were small at Charles Town and the $5000 wagered at the track would often be the price against the favorite five or six points. In other words, even money shots paid off at 5 to 1 or better.

Pergola in Coup.

Some of the horses running at the Charles Town track on which country-wide cleanups were made were Kingbird, Royal Lassie, and Simple Singer. The last big coup came in the last race yesterday when Pergola, quoted at even money and on which thousands of dollars had been wagered, paid off in the mutuels at $6.80 for a $2 ticket.

Following the Pergola killing a race track news service which furnishes track information including a description of the races, advised its clients—clients for the most part bookmakers—to pay off on future races run at the Charles Town track only at house odds.

House odds are the odds a bookmaker is willing to lay against a horse. "Open betting" is to pay off at whatever the pari-mutuel betting ticket calls for.

Kingbird Pays 4 to 1.

The two biggest killings that extended into nearly every city in the country where betting on the horses prevails were made, according to the bookmakers, on Kingbird and Royal Lassie. Kingbird generally regarded by the bookmakers as a 6 to 5 shot, paid off at more than 4 to 1 when the money was scattered in all parts of the country to be wagered on him.

Royal Lassie, another one of the bookies thought would not pay more than 7 to 5 in case she won, returned a two dollar mutuel ticket payoff of nearly $15.

The build-ups came almost daily and even before the warning was issued by the race track news service to bookmakers yesterday many Chicago bookmakers had for the last week refused to accept bets on horses running at the Charles Town track.

Reports from surrounding cities indicated similar action had been taken by bookmakers in those betting centers.

Find On at Houston.

The mutuel paddlers have confined their work to the Charles Town track, except in one instance. Toward the close of the Epson Downs meeting at Houston, Tex., they hoisted the price on the selling plate We Did It.

In the early betting We Did It was quoted at 8 to 5. The final payoff on the horse in the mutuels was $17.80 for a $2 ticket. Chicago bookmakers, not suspecting that anything was going on at the Texas track, are reported to have lost more than $25,000 on this race.

The most interesting incident in connection with the build-ups in Chicago had to do with two widely known race track characters, Joe Allen, the Cincinnati plunger, and Jim Hovey, veteran odds layer here. They had been close friends for a life time.

Allen Places a Bet.

A friend of Allen's on the build-up at Charles Town asked Allen to place a wager for him with a reliable bookmaker. Innately Allen agreed to do it, and thinking he was picking up a little soft money for his old friend Hovey, placed the wager with the latter.

When the bet was made the horse was at even money. "That's soft money, Jim," Allen told his friend. "That Buckwheat favorite won't win." The horse did win and instead of paying off at even money Allen was forced to collect several hundred dollars for his friend at odds of 5 to 1. Hovey, thinking this old friend had put one over on him, ordered Allen out of his sight. This insulted Allen.

They're still glaring at each other down around Van Buren and Clark streets like a couple of strange bulldogs, and so far refuse to speak to one another.

Dizzy Dean Best of 1934; Berwanger Is Big 10 Star

Lawson Little Ranked Jay Wins All-Around 2d to Cards' Pitcher; Max Baer Third.

New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The selection of Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, Chicago's one man football and track team, is the outstanding all-around athlete of the Big Ten for 1934.

The 19 year old star from Duquesne, Pa., won the honor with 22 votes in the second annual poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Duane Purvis, Purdue's football and track star, who won the poll last year, was second with 14, with Willis Ward of Michigan third with 12.

Others receiving votes in the conference-wide poll were Jack Beynon, Illinois; Charles Hornbostel, Indiana; Francis (Pug) Lund, Minnesota; Stan Kostka, Minnesota; Carl Owen Hubbell, southern, the New York Giants, was voted the outstanding athlete of 1933.

Oddly enough, Hubbell failed to get a single vote in this year's poll, although he had another fine season and turned in one of the most dramatic achievements of 1934 when he struck out Gehr, Gehrs, Fox, Simmons, and Cronin in a row in the major league all-star game last July. However, the fact that the Giants lost to the Cardinals in the pennant race, with Hubbell showing signs of strain in the stretch, influenced the experts throughout the country to favor Dean, who led the pitchers of both leagues with 30 victories this year and won two of his three world series starts.

The elder Dean brother dominated the voting by sports editors and writers. Asked to list the outstanding three performers of the year, amateur and pro in any sport, 78 out of 114 put Dizzy Dean at the head of the list.

Lawson Little Second.

On points, for all places, Dizzy led with 274, more than double the total of his nearest rival, W. Lawson Little Jr., who scored a great "double" by winning both the British and American amateur golf championships this year. Little, rated the outstanding amateur, received eight votes for first place and totalled 115 points.

Rated in order were Max Baer, the new world heavyweight boxing kick; Fred J. Perry, England's world champion tennis player, and Glenn Cunningham, holder of both the indoor and outdoor world records for mile running. Perry and Baer each received five votes for first place and Cunningham three.

Lund Gets 2 Firsts.

Minnesota's football captain, Francis (Pug) Lund, was put at the head of the list by two observers. Ranked first place ball also went to Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers; Bill Cummings, winner of the 500 mile Indianapolis auto race; Ben Eastman, 440 and 880 yard foot racing record breaker; Bronko Nagurski, full back of the Chicago Bears; Wilmer Allison, runner-up to Perry in the American tennis championships, and Jack Lovelock, New Zealand runner who formerly held the one mile running record.

The tabulation of leaders in the poll, including points (3 for first, 2 for second, 1 for third), follows:

Jerome H. (Dizzy) Dean, baseball	274

HAWKS HOPE TO INCREASE LEAD IN RANGER GAME

Play in New York Tonight; Hear from Abel.

New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks arrived today to battle the New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. It will be the first meeting of the National Hockey League rivals in New York this season. Victory for the Hawks, who defeated the Rangers, 4 to 0, in Chicago recently will give them a game and a half lead over the Boston Bruins in the United States division.

The Bruins will be idle tomorrow.

It will be an exceedingly busy week end for the Blackhawks, who are booked for three games in four days. After tomorrow's game the Hawks will return immediately for Toronto to play the Maple Leafs Saturday night. Then they will return to Chicago to meet the Montreal Canadiens Sunday night at the Stadium.

ABEL ASKS FOR SKATES.

Pleasant news came to the Blackhawks' headquarters yesterday. Taffy Abel, the giant defense man who has been a holdout, telephoned from Salt Lake City, Utah, to say he was ready to get into playing condition at once.

Abel, whose playing weight last season was 233 pounds, weighs 243 at the present time. He will arrive in Chicago next Monday and is expected to take his place in the Hawks lineup in the Montreal-Maroon-Blackhawks' encounter, which is scheduled for New Year's afternoon.

It also was announced yesterday that Leroy Goldsworthy, right winger, who was sent to the London club of the International league a few weeks ago, had been loaned for the balance of the season to the Montreal Canadiens.

RENEWAL of football relations between Nebraska and Chicago's next fall recalls that the late Walter Eckersall, the Midway's all-time All-American quarterback, closed his collegiate career against the Cornhuskers, Nov. 24, 1906.

Eckie dropped-kicked five goals to help the Maroons roll up a 38-to-6 victory. . . . In those days field goals counted 4 points. . . . Bernie Masterson, Bears' quarterback, won first place last spring in the Big Six 50 yard free style swimming championships with the record time of 24.8 seconds. . . . Jimmy Powers, news sports editor of the New York News, is a graduate of Marquette. . . . It was Grantland Rice who named football's most famous back field the Four Horsemen. . . . Mel Ott, at 25, is a ten year man in the major leagues. . . . Walter Hoyt, vacationing in Bermuda, has gone in for cricket. . . . Walter Hagen will be 42 years old tomorrow. . . . Bob Zuppke's mother learned to swim when she was 56.

Chester Davis of Holton, Kas., whose father was an All-American at Illinois, is a freshman at Kansas State.

Keith Hantress, half back at Connecticut Wesleyan, is a pitcher on the varsity nine, editor of the school's magazine, secretary of the student body, and a nominee for a Rhodes scholarship. . . . Howard Jones attributes the poor showing of his Southern California eleven to the loss of Aaron Rosenberg, running guard. . . . Cliff Probst is the only outstanding veteran remaining for next year's team. . . . Seniors on Pacific coast eleven are enthusiastic about the possibilities of another game in Chicago between the College All-Americans and the Bears. . . . They still are talking about the scoreless tie played before 80,000 at Soldier's field last summer. . . .

Connie Mack is definitely set on using Jimmy Fox as a catcher next season. . . . He thinks Fox as a catcher will be more valuable to the club than as a first baseman. . . . Mack hopes a rookie named Hooks from the Western league will be good enough to play first base regularly. . . . Coach Charles Butler's Glenbard High school eleven of Glenn Ellyn, Ill., have won six western suburban championships in the last nine years. . . . Gene Tunney's physician says it was not social aspiration that prompted Tunney to retire from the ring. . . . The doctor explains that in the Dempsey fight at Soldier's field Tunney took a body punch that almost ruined one of his kidneys. . . . A minor operation was performed and Tunney was advised to give up the game because a repetition of the blow might prove fatal.

John Seys, vice president of the Cubs, who always has gone to Catalina with the team, next spring will not be a member of the party. . . . He intends to make the trip by boat through the Panama canal. . . . Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, will use the same route to the training camp at Pasadena. . . .

The reason you can't get a pass-out check during events at Chicago Stadium is because of the protests of the concessionaires, who want you to buy your hot dogs and soda pop inside the place. . . . A barber offered $10 and a shave for a mile sprint in the New York six day bicycle race. . . . Willie Grimm won the sprint, took the $10, and gave his partner, Freddie Spencer, the shave. . . . Tommy Tomb, Columbia's quarter back, played 472 out of a possible 480 minutes this fall. . . .

In the WAKE of the NEWS

SOMEWHERE IN ARKANSAS, Dec. 19.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, you ought to be back in Chicago by this time. No, Arch, I don't mean that. I mean you ought to be still on your vacation for a long time yet after all the hard work you do, just like I do, but you are so conscientious, just like I am, that I suppose you are back on the job.

Now I'd like a little intervention on your part. It's a small matter and it isn't the money, but it's the principle of the thing. My expense account as turned in for the Yale-Princeton game was 35 cents short when I received the reimbursing check.

Well, I want over my carbon copy which I always keep until the thing's paid and I don't see any mistakes in addition in figuring it up. The only possible place I can see for 35 cents reduction is in cab fares.

I charged seven rides at Princeton at 35 cents each, which is the zone rate. I thought I was pretty square not to charge 60 cents, which is the usual rate at most places, and besides I usually tipped the driver, for which I didn't charge, although I should, because most all the drivers looked like retired English professors, and maybe they are for all I know.

One in particular reminded me of James Weber Linn—only we old friends call him Toddy; and he's mighty active and not retired. What reminded me of him was that the caddy was talking of a poker game, perhaps faculty, the night before when he was bluffed out of a pot. Perhaps James Weber doesn't like to be reminded now, but back in dear old college days Toddy held the intercollegiate record on a circular track—43.35, all he had in front of him, and a pair of treys showing and another student laid down king-back to back in the shell house stud game. At least, that's the story I tell.

But I am digressing. I charged seven cabs. Really, I rode only six times, but how did the auditing department know that? You see, it was this way: After the game there were not any cabs, so I had to walk more than a mile from Palmer stadium to Princeton inn, carrying my typewriter. Reivers cost me more than 35 cents.

Even if I hadn't needed revivers, I wouldn't charge you, because I overslept the morning of the game and delayed the maid in making up my room. She looked so tired and wan I tipped her four bits. Maybe you think I should have charged the four bits and not the extra cab ride which I didn't have, but from past experience I've found auditors always attach something sinister to tipping a maid, although you can get by on bellboys and red caps.

Well, Arch, this maid was not of the sinister type. She would classify as streamline model, capable and efficient, but no Ziegfeld body nor any frumpiness, so I'm still glad I gave her the four bits. She was so grateful I was sorry I could not afford to make it a buck. Thus, instead of being out only 15 cents as I planned, I'm shy four bits and that isn't right, Arch, and I'm sure you'd feel the same if it happened to you. So please intervene and see what can be done. As I told you, it's the principle of the thing.

Now, Arch, eventually we'll arrive in California and I expect to do a lot of hard work for you whenever you want. But let's establish a precedent. Of course, I don't expect you to pay any of my expenses except when I'm working on stories for the department. But when I am, do I tip the room maid and get it passed in my expense account or don't I? Please consider the problem in a calm dispassionate moment so you won't arrive at any hasty or unwarranted judgment. Then let me know. I'm sort of worried about room maids. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

But I am digressing. I charged seven cabs. Really, I rode only six times. HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

REVEAL TONES WANTED TO QUIT L. S. U. IN 1933

No Offer Received, Says U. C. Leader.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long announced today that he was trying to open negotiations with Clark D. Shaughnessy, football coach at the University of Chicago, with a view to inducing him to accept the post made vacant by Capt. Lawrence Jones, who resigned as head coach at Louisiana State university rather than allow the senator to dictate how he should run the team.

"Shaughnessy's a great coach and I want him as Jones' successor," the senator said.

It is said that Senator Long also is considering seeking the services of Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr of Colorado if nothing comes of the Shaughnessy negotiations. Bierman was a successful coach at Tulane and Kerr's team lost only one game, including Tulane, in its list of victims.

Determined to Beat Tulane.

Long's greatest ambition in life is to beat Tulane because he feels he has suffered affronts by that institution. For years he has bent his energies toward humiliating Tulane, not only in athletics, but in educational fields as well. Those who profess to know do not believe Shaughnessy will listen to any overtures made by Senator Long.

When Lester Lautenschlager, Shaughnessy's famous quarter back on the Tulane team that beat Northwestern university in 1925 and who is now back field coach at Tulane, was offered by Long the head coachship at L. S. U., Shaughnessy, it is reported, advised Lautenschlager not to accept the post. It is said he went even further and told his former quarter back that Senator Long could never keep his hands off a football game in which he was interested.

Jones Threatened to Quit in 1933.

Capt. Jones has had more than one run-in with Senator Long. It developed here today. The situation was so bad in the middle of the 1933 season, when Louisiana State was in the midst of a winning streak, that Jones tendered his resignation. His friends persuaded him to continue.

Jones had warned Long before the game last Saturday that he must stop interfering with the conduct of the team. Long didn't stop, and Jones resigned.

It was learned today that every effort was made to get Jones to reconsider his final resignation, but that he absolutely refused. He said to a friend: "I have no apologies to make to Senator Long. I have no regrets about a promise by him and President Smith of the university that I could run the team. Senator Long has repeatedly broken that promise."

Long Discovers a Play.

When the present season began, Long came into a meeting of the coaching staff and threw down a diagram of a play. The senator never played football.

"There's a play that will win some games for you," Huey said. Jones looked at the play. It was the antiquated optional pass on a field goal formation.

We discarded this play two years ago," Jones told Long.

The senator went out fuming. As the Tigers continued their winning streak, the senator again returned. He wanted to hire some press agents and send them to New York to boost L. S. U. From this proposal resulted the arrangement which found a press bureau bombarding the newspapers of New York with L. S. U. publicity. Senator Long was featured in all the publicity.

Makes Wild Claim.

One of the wildest claims Long made in behalf of the Tigers was that they could "whip Minnesota and Pittsburgh in one afternoon." Comparisons of the records of the L. S. U. and Alabama football teams were offered to prove the Tigers superior to the Crimson Tide.

Long thought he could talk the Tigers into the Rose Bowl game by underestimating Alabama. When this failed he signed to play Manhattan university in New York.

The senator's ambitions in this direction, however, were blocked by Jones, who knew he didn't have a national championship in R. S. Bowl team and so told New York newspapers.

"We've got a good team, but not a national championship team," Jones told the New Yorkers.

So the game was canceled by Jones. And again Long failed. But he was told that Jones and Arthur Hays Sulzberger were the only L. S. U. authorities arranging games and schedules.

Shaughnessy, whose Maroon team have brought a football renaissance to Chicago, said:

"I have not been approached with any offer to coach at Louisiana State. Senator Long is a good friend of mine, so possibly he just mentioned my name in a conversation and thus gave rise to the rumor."

ALABAMA WILL TAKE SQUAD OF 35 TO PASADENA

Entire Coaching Staff Will Make Trip.

University, Ala., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Every member of the University of Alabama football team—whether he be a regular, a first string reserve, or just a plain, ordinary substitute—is going to spend the holidays in California. This became known today when the official list of thirty-five Crimson players who will make the trip to Pasadena for the Rose bowl game on New Year's day was announced.

STANFORD LIKES ODDS. Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 19.—[AP]—Reports reached Coach C. E. Thornhill of Stanford today that University of Alabama followers were willing to wager money that the team would be 18 points better than the Indians in the Rose bowl game New Year's day.

"If true, it is the best news I've had in weeks," Thornhill said. "The boys should react nicely to such barbs. It has been a long time since Stanford was the under dog."

The information reached the Stanford coach through a student who received a letter from a friend attending Alabama. It related the southern boys were giving eighteen points on their team.

Final examinations kept some of the Indians to their desks, but the bulk of the squad turned out for practice. Steady signal drill and passing plays were stressed.

Coach Thornhill reiterated he was especially pleased with the practice performance of Bobby Grayson, who romped through an hour and a half workout yesterday. The full back carried the ball many times.

East Eleven Leaves to Play West on Coast

With cries of "California here we come," 22 football players comprising the all-star East team rolled out of Chicago last night en route for San Francisco where they will meet a similar aggregation of western stars in the annual Shrine hospital benefit game on New Year's day. Coaches Dick Hanley and Andy Kerr were in charge of the group.

The team held its first workout on the snow mantled field at Dyche stadium yesterday afternoon. Practicing under such conditions was not pleasant and the players, who hail from 15 different colleges and universities in the east, middle west, and south, were unanimous in their desire to reach the sunny clime of the west coast.

Coaches Outline Offense. Both coaches addressed the players in a lengthy blackboard session at Dyche stadium in which they outlined the type of offense that will be used. Since Hanley and Kerr are devotees of the Warner double wing back system, this is the attack that will be employed.

The fact that most of the players were drilled in varied styles is not expected to prove a handicap, according to the coaches. With two weeks in which to drill after they reach San Francisco they expect to mould a smooth working combination.

Two Elevens Work Out. In yesterday's brief workout the players were divided into two elevens. One back field consisted of Pug Lund of Minnesota and Duane Purdie of Purdue, half backs; Westminster of Pittsburgh, full back, and Munjas of Pitt, quarter back. The line was composed of Bengston, Minnesota, and Brooke, Colgate, tackles; Harwitz, Pitt, and Barclay, North Carolina, guards; Ford, Michigan, center, and Larson, Minnesota, and Bodganski, Colgate, ends.

ERSKINE QUILTS AS COACH AT LOYOLA OF NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 19.—[AP]—Robert (Doc) Erskine, who succeeded Clark Shaughnessy as head football coach at Loyola university here two years ago, resigned today.

His resignation was accepted by the university athletic council with an expression of regret, accompanied by a statement from the Rev. P. A. Roy, faculty chairman of athletics, that it was solely Erskine's action and was not prompted by the university.

However, the Loyola coach has been subjected to a steady fire of criticism from alumni who were dissatisfied with the team's showing during the campaign just ended.

Yankees Sell Sam Byrd to Reds for Cash

New York, Dec. 19.—[Special.]—The hope that Samuel Dewey Byrd some day would fill the gap in right field when Babe Ruth definitely steps down ended today with the announcement that the Yankees had sold the outfielder outright to the Cincinnati Reds for cash.

No mention was made of the amount involved in the deal, which required the waiving of all the seven other clubs in the American league, but it is generally believed to have been not much above the waiver price.

Hug Liked Sam. Byrd, a product of baseball in the south, began his career with Jonesboro in the Tri-State league in 1926 and, after advancing to Knoxville in 1927, where he hit .331, he was purchased by the Yankees and regarded by Miller Huggins as one of the best prospects to come up from that club since Earle Combs.

He was farmed out to Albany for 1928 and, when he turned in a batting mark of .371 for that season, was immediately recalled. However, though he proved himself an accomplished fielder, his hitting never came up to expectations.

Field Is Too Big. A right handed batter, he always appeared under a great disadvantage in the stadium, with its spacious left field, and, though he reached .312 for 62 games in 1929, he never approached that mark again.

Last season, with Babe Ruth dropping out of the lineup more frequently, Byrd saw considerable steady service. But, though he took part in 106 games, his hitting fell off to .246.

His disposal is seen as further indication that Manager Joe McCarthy soon will swing a major transaction that will bolster the hitting strength of his 1935 outfit.

Loyola Faces Duquesne Five Here Tonight

Loyola university's inexperienced basketball team will play its first inter-sectional game tonight when Duquesne university meets the Ramblers in the first game of a home and home series. Duquesne brings a strong, well balanced squad in contrast to the green Loyola five, which has not shown its full strength despite victories over Arkansas State and Ripon this season.

Duquesne went through its 21 game schedule last year with only two losses, tying with the University of Pittsburgh for the city championship. In total points Duquesne outscored its opponents 955 to 552. The defeats stacked up against them were by scores of less than three points each.

Capt. Paul Birch and Frank Serany are both seniors at Duquesne, the other three starters being sophomores. Among the reserves, however, are eight veterans. Loyola's only veteran starter is Capt. Joe Schuessler. Bud Ash and Ned Youngs are the only other veterans on Chicago's list of thirteen men. Ash was a monogram winner last year.

Each team holds a victory over the other, Loyola winning 29 to 12 in the Chicago game during the 1929-30 season, and Duquesne taking an 18 to 16 overtime battle at Pittsburgh. The return game of this year's series will be played Jan. 15.

MOON MULLINS—MEET MR. M'JITTERS

Rickey to Keep Cardinal Job Without Stock

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 19.—[Special.]—Branch Rickey's sale of his holdings in the world's champion St. Louis Cardinals does not mean that he will terminate his connection with the club as vice president and general manager. Both Rickey and Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, denied that the sale of the Rickey stock yesterday to Clarence Howard Jr. of St. Louis was an indication of Rickey's quitting the club.

Rickey pointed out today that he still has a three year contract with the Cardinals club and has no intention of leaving it. He said further that he has no other job in mind. He is understood to have received about $85,000 from Howard for his stock. The latter said today that he had no designs on acquiring a controlling interest and bought Rickey's shares merely as an investment.

Yesterday the Cardinals declared a dividend of $10 a share on all stock, their first since 1921, as a result of their world series victory over the Detroit Tigers and profits from player sales in their minor league system.

Mostly About Dogs By Bob Becker

BALANCED DIET.

Judging from letters that came in every day, the question of feeding dogs is one that puzzles many dog owners. No matter where you go you find arguments about various food items for dogs, and any number of theories about what is beneficial or what is harmful to dogs.

Because of this interest in the proper feeding of dogs there will be at least one discussion of the subject in this department every week. As an example of the questions received about how to feed a dog, here is a letter from G. W. F. of Wilmette, regarding the diet for a wire haired terrier, one year old. He writes:

"We have arguments in this household continually about feeding our wire haired terrier, one year old. I fear he will be much overfed and I maintain he should have bread, vegetables, a little meat, both raw and cooked, a little milk. Should it be condensed milk? Should he have raw eggs? How about sweets? About how much food should he get per day?"

In this case the error in feeding the dog seems to be in the amount of meat given the terrier. Rearranging the food items mentioned in the order of their prominence and importance they are: meat, which means a nutritious, prepared dog food containing good, clean meat; or pieces of meat from the table such as beef and lamb; occasionally raw meat; mashed vegetables, such as peas, Brussels sprouts, tomatoes, etc., or even some raw chopped cabbage or lettuce occasionally; toast (I would rather give my dog a nourishing dog biscuit); and milk because it has nourishment and vitamins. Raw eggs, yes. But not every day. Sweets not as a regular

Thompson Is New Leader in Nassau Golf

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Jack Thompson of Youngstown, O., today took a two stroke lead over the field at the halfway mark of the $5,000 British colonial open tournament with a 36 hole score of 132.

Joe Turneen, Hartford, Conn., professional who broke the course record yesterday and held an edge at the first 18 holes, slipped back ten strokes today to a 72 and went into a tie with Bobby Cruikshank, Richmond, Va., for second place at 134.

Six Best Par.

Cards generally jumped upward and only six players were able to beat par 68 today, as compared to 10 in the first round.

Thompson was off to a great start as he trimmed three strokes from perfect figures on the first nine, but ran into difficulties coming in and finished with a par card. He equaled the old course record yesterday with a 64, and was in a tie with Ralph Stonehouse of Indianapolis for second place as play began today.

Shooting a 36—33—69, Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., was next with 135. A stroke behind in a tie for fourth were six players, including Leo Malory of Noroton, Conn., whose 33—32—65 was the best score of the day.

Others in the 136 group were Leo Fraser of Saginaw, Mich., with a 69 today; Tony Butler of Harlingen, Tex., with a 66; Archie Hambrick of French Lick, Ind., with a 70; Stonehouse, with a 72; and L. O. Schalk of Hamilton, O., with a 69.

Minkley Leads Amateurs.
Bruno Minkley of Buffalo, N. Y., continued to pace the amateurs competing for the governor of the Bahamas trophy, carding a 77 today for a 38 hole total of 157.

A poor 95 virtually put Gov. Bode Clifford out of the running with a 153. The final 36 holes are to be played tomorrow. Top award of $500 awaits the winner and the other $4,000 will be divided among the next 40 finishers.

RICKARD WIDOW SPENDS $14,050 IN 4 YEARS ON CHILD

New York, Dec. 19.—(AP)—In the last three and a half years, Mrs. Maxine Rickard of Chicago, widow of the late "Tex" Rickard, sports promoter, spent $14,050 for the maintenance and education of her 7 year old child, Maxine Texas Rickard, it was disclosed today in surrogate's court.

Surrogate James A. Foley granted Mrs. Rickard's application that she be permitted to take $2,628.92 from the child's income in reimbursement for her expenditures. He also allowed her additional income of $700 from the child's estate, to be used for its support in 1935.

Mrs. Rickard said in her application that she "is presently without any income whatever, and finds it almost impossible to maintain the infant in the state to which she was accustomed in Rickard's lifetime."

STEEL OUTPUT
MAKES NINTH
WEEKLY GAIN*Production Rises 2.5
Points to 35.5%.

For the ninth consecutive week steel production and scrap prices have advanced, according to Iron Age. The production rate gained 2 1/2 points last week to 35 1/2 per cent of capacity, the highest since the end of June, while scrap rose to the best level since the middle of May.

The magazine's scrap index advanced from $11.35 to $11.55 a ton, following an increase of 75 cents a ton in Chicago. Part of the output increase is attributed to replenishment of raw steel stocks, but in one important center mills have been forced to run on cold steel to meet urgent needs of the automobile trade.

Long delayed production on new model automobiles is under way in earnest, the journal says. There is also a broadening in demand from farm implement and tractor plants as well as a wide variety of miscellaneous sources. Tin plate output has advanced again, contrary to the seasonal trend, from 45 to 47 per cent of capacity, while sheet and strip mill operations are holding close to 40 per cent.

Push Mill Schedules.

The review says that mill schedules are being pushed this week preparatory to shutdowns of three days through Christmas, but resumption is planned for Dec. 26, with some mills scheduled to run through the New Year period. A recession of any extent in ingot output is now uncertain, since it is known that a number of producers intend to make early additions to their present inventory.

"Contracting for the first quarter has been disappointing," the journal states. "Uncertainty as to the new policy of NRA on price control is causing many buyers to withhold long term commitments which would otherwise be made as a matter of convenience. Orders for early shipment are piling up, and, while they undoubtedly reflect a gain in actual consumption, they may also indicate renewed apprehensions regarding the labor situation."

Heavy Steel Demand Subnormal.

Demand for heavy rolled steel products remains subnormal, the review continues. Structural steel awards at only 10,650 tons, however, most double those of a week ago. New projects of 8,600 tons compare with 8,100 tons in the preceding week and 11,590 tons two weeks ago. The navy has made additional awards of 6,674 tons of plates, sheets, shapes and bars for vessels to be built in its own yards. Steel operations during the week rose 3 points to 24 per cent at Pittsburgh, 1 to 36 1/2 in Chicago, 4 to 41 in the valleys, 4 to 54 in the Cleveland-Lorain district, 16 to 25 at Buffalo, and 5 to 62 at Detroit. In the south operations were 4 points lower at 29 per cent.

The magazine's composite prices for pig iron and finished steel are unchanged at $17.90 a ton and 2.24 cents a pound, respectively.

NEWSPAPER "AD"
TOTAL SHOWS
SHARP UPTURN

The trend of newspaper advertising turned sharply upward in November, overcoming four-fifths of the usual seasonal loss from October levels, according to Editor and Publisher, newspaper and advertising publication. The lineage index compiled by that weekly rose from 85.4 for October to 94.4 for November. The previous 1934 high had been 91.1 in August.

November advertising measured in the daily newspapers of 32 leading cities by Media Records amounted to 106,938,808 space lines, which was 7.2 per cent higher than in November, 1933. This gain was enough to push the eleven month figures for 1934 up even with those for 1932, and 10.8 per cent ahead of 1933.

The sharpest November gain was made in retail advertising, which reversed the seasonal trend and rose 3 million lines. Merchants in general increased their advertising more than the department stores. National, automotive, and financial advertising were less active, automotive lineages running 64.5 per cent of that of a year ago. Classified advertising, after an October setback, again exceeded 1933 levels.

'Love Feast'

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—A couple of bad boys from the American Federation of Labor yesterday broke up what President Roosevelt had planned as a love feast between the nation's steel barons and their workers, it was learned here today.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and Michael Tigue, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, were the obstreperous persons who balked just as Roosevelt had arranged to win himself another laurel wreath by healing the age old enmity between the steel industry and union labor.

Labor Refuses to Sign.

To the disgust of the steel magnates, represented by Myron Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel, and Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, to the chagrin of the President, Green and Tigue said they had no authority to sign a peace pact.

For weeks the national steel labor relations board had labored so hard to bring the steel industry and the unions together that Judge Walter T. Stacy, chairman of the board, was bundled off to a sickbed as soon as the negotiations climaxed. The board had devised a formula which it understood to be satisfactory to both labor and the industry.

To add the fitting gesture and to shift the spotlight to the White House, President Roosevelt summoned Taylor, Grace, Green, Tigue, Stacy, and others to the White House yesterday for the final love feast. Opening remarks were made about the benefits of labor peace and the need for recovery in heavy industries, but when asked to sign on the dotted line Green and Tigue positively announced that they had no authority and would have to refer the whole question back to their constituent unions.

Conference Blows Up.

With the pulling of that heavy union labor crack, Grace and Taylor, as well as the government's negotiators, blew up and postponed the President's love feast indefinitely. The peace pact which organized labor refused to sign provided for arbitration of disputes by the steel board and for recognition by the steel companies of the A. F. of L. as the union of their workers.

Despite yesterday's disappointment President Roosevelt announced at his press conference today that he is hopeful of an early settlement of the steel labor problem.

BANK RECEIVER RENTS SPACE AT 7 S. DEARBORN ST.

Executive offices of William L. O'Connell, receiver for closed state banks in the state, will be moved about Jan. 1 from the Cosmopolitan State Bank building at Chicago avenue and North Clark street to 7 South Dearborn street, the old Tribune building. O'Connell has closed a two year lease with an option of renewal for one year, on the second, third, and fourth floors of the building which were formerly occupied by the Chicago Bank of Commerce.

The receiver some time ago announced that he proposed to consolidate all his activities in the West Town State Bank building at Madison street and Western avenue, but decided in favor of the loop location largely because of its accessibility. Shortly after the first of the year O'Connell will start moving receiver offices in the various closed state banks in Chicago to the downtown location and after this is completed will bring in the offices of other banks in the county. The receiver now has several hundred employees—a number which will be reduced when the various offices are moved to the downtown address.

Members of Mr. O'Connell's staff last night were engaged in signing checks for the 10 per cent dividend payment which will be made to depositors of the Chicago Bank of Commerce and the checks will be mailed out soon.

EXPENDITURES OF OIL INDUSTRY
SET AT 4 1/2 BILLION

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Expenditures of the oil industry in the United States during 1935 for equipment, leaseholds, royalties, labor and taxes were estimated by the Oil and Gas Journal at $4,561,669,000 after a nationwide survey of new year budgets.

The expenditures were distributed as follows: Purchases of majorities from other industries, $1,512,000,000; leases, bonuses, and royalties, $201,545,000; pay roll, $2,045,000,000, and taxes to federal, state, and municipal governments, $1,004,824,000.

An expected expenditure of $374,000,000 will go to railroads alone for transportation of crude oil, by-products, supplies, and equipment, an amount equal to 11 per cent of all rail car lot business, the survey showed. Since September, 1933, the survey says, the oil industry added 309,000 persons to its pay rolls.

REORGANIZATION IS REQUESTED BY ZION INDUSTRIES

A plan for reorganization of Zion Institutions & Industries, Inc., of which Wilbur Glenn Voliva is the head, under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy law was filed yesterday in the United States District court before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who set Jan. 21 for a hearing on the plan. The Zion institutions have been in equity receivership since May, 1933, and voluntary proceedings in bankruptcy have been pending in Federal court since July 7. According to the plan, filed by Attorney J. A. Miller, 75 per cent of the concern's profits will be allotted each year to pay off creditors. Net profits last year, Attorney Miller said, amounted to $110,000, and it is estimated creditors will receive at least $75,000 each year under the plan. Total debts of the institution aggregated $1,135,000.

INCOME TAX
ATTORNEYS HIT BY NEW RULING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Prompted by recent disclosures in income tax cases, the treasury department today said it had promulgated more rigid regulations governing legal practice before it. The orders were aimed particularly at lawyers operating on a purely contingent basis.

The orders included one prohibiting collection of a contingent fee more than double an amount otherwise "deemed reasonable." Attorneys must notify the department when they propose to take a case on a contingent basis. The orders said:

"The treasury department recognizes the propriety of making the payment of a fee contingent upon success in saving the client from additional taxes or in recovering a refund where the financial status of the client is such that otherwise he would be unable to obtain the services of an attorney, but no contingent fees shall be estimated solely on the basis of a percentage of the amount recovered or saved for the client."

Boston, Mass., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Liquidation of the Hamilton Woollen company, Inc., of South Bridge, was recommended today by directors. The only ray of hope for the 16,000 residents of South Bridge, where operations of the mills is vital to the town's prosperity, is a speedy adjustment of their differences with the mill management by textile union leaders before a liquidation meeting of the corporation's stockholders, to be held soon. Directors blame "outsiders" for causing the mill's labor troubles and accused the United Textile Workers of America of bad faith in violating agreements by calling the latest of several strikes in recent months and "an increase in violence and intimidation."

U. S. GOLD HOLDINGS
$8,195,367,244; FIFTY
NATIONS', 21 1/2 BILLION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Gold held by the United States government on Dec. 17 totaled $8,195,367,244 on the basis of $35 an ounce adopted when the dollar was devalued on Jan. 21, as compared with $4,034,000,000 just prior to devaluation, when holdings were calculated on the basis of $20.67 per ounce, treasury figures showed today.

Federal reserve statistics give the gold reserves of central banks and governments of 50 countries at $11,951,000,000, calculated at the old price of $20.67 per ounce. On that basis the United States was the heaviest holder with $4,034,000,000. France held $3,021,000,000 and England $229,000,000.

At the end of September total value in the 50 countries was estimated at $21,549,000,000, of which the United States held $7,078,000,000; France, $5,468,000,000, and England, $1,582,000,000; these calculations on the new gold price of $35 a ounce.

The following table shows the holdings of central banks and governments of the 50 countries and those of the United States from the end of February to the end of September, as calculated by the federal reserve board:

GRIP ON CREDIT

New York, Dec. 19.—(Special.)—The dollar rallied somewhat today. At the same time the Italian government tightened its grip on foreign exchange transactions, prohibiting exports for any reason and under any form of bank bills, drafts, checks, or bonds drawn in lire and payable in Italy or to the Italian colonies.

In the New York market the franc receded 1/2 point, against a rise of 1 1/2 points yesterday. It closed at 6.60 1/2 cents. The belga was off 3 points to 23.42 cents; Swiss francs were 22.42, off 4; guilders were 67.69 cents, down 6 points. Sterling closed at $4.94 1/2, off 1/2 cent.

At the closing quotation on the French franc the dollar was worth 29.32 cents, based on the old par of the franc, compared with 29.25 cents yesterday. Calculated on the new par of the franc, the dollar was valued at $1.045, against $1.033 yesterday.

Bullion brokers in London raised the price of gold 1/2 penny to 140 shillings, 1 1/2 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.83, based on the opening of sterling at $4.94 1/2. Bars valued at $643.175 were purchased.

With the engagement abroad of $1,000,000 more gold the total of gold purchased by this country since Nov. 1 was raised to $200,000,000 and the total of gold imported or engaged abroad since revaluation of the dollar on Feb. 1 reached exactly $1,000,000,000.

STATES BOOST
INCOME TAX
RATES SHARPLY*Three Methods Used to Lift Levies.

Assessments on income in the United States during the last two years were increased by sharp boosts in state income tax rates, according to a survey released yesterday by the interstate commerce commission. Thirty states have applied such a tax.

The report, prepared by James W. Martin, research director for the commission, showed that income tax rates have been increased in three ways, by increasing the maximum rates, by lowering the exemptions so that the tax more frequently applies to incomes of "lower middle class" citizens, and by making the graduation steeper.

New York Collects Most.

Of the thirty states taxing income New York collected the most money during the fiscal year ended June 30. There the revenue from the personal income tax and the franchise tax amounted to more than $70,000,000. The lowest aggregate yield was in New Mexico, which received less than $85,000. The highest yield per person was in New York, $5.60. Arkansas received only 11 cents per capita.

The report showed that it cost 2 1/2 per cent of the revenue to administer the personal income tax and 1 1/2 to 2 per cent for corporation taxes. Corporation income taxes have been increased in the same way as the personal tax in some cases, it was stated, but more frequently the corporate income has been subjected to a flat rate which has gradually been increased. This rate on the whole has been higher in the new corporation tax statutes than in those enacted several years ago.

Study of Collections.

The survey pointed out that from the revenue point of view income taxation was most feasible in states with high per capita wealth. In Delaware the per capita yield of personal income taxes was seven times as great as in Virginia, although the rate was approximately 20 per cent lower.

It was also pointed out that the credits for dependents allowed in laws passed during the last four years were lower on the average than those enacted before 1930. The lowest exemption was found in Iowa.

State's Investigation of Edison to Cost Company $500,000

The cost of the Illinois commerce commission investigation of the Commonwealth Edison company's financial structure as a result of the commission's rate reduction order was estimated yesterday at $500,000 by John Jirgal, an accountant for the utility. That expense, under provisions of legislation passed recently by the general assembly, must be borne by the company and will be paid over a period of three years.

Taxes Half of Net.

The witness also testified that the company has paid $12,160,000 in various kinds of taxes for the year ending Oct. 31, 1934, and that its net earnings for the same year were $24,265,630. He pointed out, however, that this does not include depreciation of the company's property, a factor that would slightly reduce that figure.

Another witness, F. L. Smith, vice president in charge of accounting for the company, testified in response to queries made last week by Harry R. Booth, assistant counsel for the commission, that shrinkage totaling $67,483,000 occurred in the security investments of the Commonwealth Edison subsidiary corporation between the original cost and recent value of the securities.

Invest Without Approval.

According to Attorney Booth, of $55,000,000 invested by the Commonwealth Edison company as of March 31, 1932, $1,800,000 was invested with approval of the Illinois commerce commission, the difference of $53,200,000 being invested without approval.

In other hearings the utility officials took the position that no approval was necessary inasmuch as the investments were in the subsidiary of the company, even though the money was used to buy securities of other companies.

Recently the commerce commission law was amended to require approval for the investment of any funds in the subsidiary.

WEEK'S POWER OUTPUT HIGHEST

Production of electric power last week reached a new high level for the last four years, with an increase of 1.4 per cent over the preceding week and 7 1/2 per cent above a year ago. Output in the Chicago area was also the greatest in almost four years, gaining 1.7 per cent over the preceding week and 6 per cent over 1933.

The national total was 1,767,419,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,743,427,000 in the preceding week, when there was an increase of 7.7 per cent above a year ago, according to the Edison Electric Institute. This was the highest since the week ended Dec. 20, 1930.

Production Rises Here.

Output in the Chicago area totaled 111,463,000 kilowatt hours, against 109,583,000 in the preceding week and 105,191,000 a year ago. Commonwealth Edison company announced. With the exception of the Thanksgiving period, this was the fifth consecutive week in which production in Chicago showed an upward trend.

The good showing was attributed to increased demand of the electric transportation companies as a result of continued cold weather. Following are the output and percentage comparisons for the Chicago district:

Week ended—	1934.	1933.	Pct. increase.
Dec. 15—	111,463,000	105,191,000	5.9
Dec. 8—	109,583,000	101,962,000	7.5
Dec. 1—	101,028,000	95,672,000	7.9
Nov. 24—	105,845,000	100,703,000	5.1

Detail Regional Changes.

The middle Atlantic area, which consumes the largest volume of power, reported a gain of 6.2 per cent over the corresponding 1933 period, compared with a 5.2 per cent gain last week. New England scored a 4.1 per cent gain, increasing the percentage from 3.5 per cent.

The central industrial area leaped ahead 8.3 per cent, compared with a 7 per cent gain the previous week, while the west central area reported a 5.1 per cent gain, against 6.2 per cent.

The largest percentage improvement again appeared in the southern states, which scored a 10 per cent increase, against 8.3 per cent last week, and the Rocky mountain area, which reported an 11.1 per cent gain, against 12.2 per cent last week. The Pacific coast showed a 5.4 per cent improvement.

STOCKS BREAK ON U.S. THREAT OF COMPETITION

Utility Group Is Hit Hard; Selling Heavy.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Dec. 19.—Stocks were bowled over afresh today by new threats of government competition, increased taxes and rate reductions in the public utility field. The chief item of the "bad news" summary came out of Washington in the form of an account of the White House discussions looking to the creation of a municipal utility plan, which would "vandalize" to bring down New York City rates.

President Roosevelt's reported authorization of such a project was taken in brokerage house circles to mean that the proposed plan would mean the administration and the power industry has been torn up and that the war is on in earnest.

Average Falls Sharply.

Today's decline brought the average of 50 stocks to $32.22, the lowest close level since the 1929-30 winter election year. The decline which began Dec. 6, has carried the average down from $37.71. Some brokers declare that the sweeping Democratic victory has proved a bullish development, although for a time the market rose sharply on the election news in the belief that it indicated an inflationary trend in the new Congress.

Consolidated Gas, the big time leader of the group, bore the brunt of the attack. It was called upon to withstand a veritable deluge of selling orders in the earlier dealings and was battered down to a new low of 20 1/2, which compares with its 1934 high of 47 1/2. Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Gas, North American, Peoples Gas, American Waterworks and in fact the whole utility group, came under degrees of liquidation and the close found the group anywhere from a good solid fraction to two points below the previous level. American Telephone gave up 2 points without much of a struggle and other communication issues followed it to lower ground.

Larger Losses Elsewhere.

Even sharper losses were scored elsewhere in the market on substantially lighter selling. Allied Chemical tumbled nearly 4 points on a few sales. Industrial Bank of America dropped 3 1/2. S. S. Smeltz, 2, and a whole host of preferreds gave up two and three points or more each.

Trading picked up somewhat on the decline, as traders waved aside such bullish effects as the new developments as reports of further improvement in industrial barometers.

One of the few advances was provided by Eastman Kodak, which managed to buck the trend for a net gain of 1/2 a share, thanks to the good holiday business the corporation is reported to be enjoying just now. A few scattered underbids also succeeded in carrying on for the bull cause.

Among the heavy losers, the American Can, Atchafalpa, and Montgomery Ward each slipped nearly a point lower. Railroad shares were generally a fraction to a point lower. Motors and farm stock slipped fractionally and so did the oil.

SIX RAILROADS REPORT HEAVIER FREIGHT TRAFFIC

Six additional carriers reported yesterday that freight traffic last week was heavier than in either the preceding week or the corresponding week of last year.

Pennsylvania railroad's car loadings were 32,316, against 76,729 and 90,502, and the New York Central 95,353, against 86,730 and 90,321.

Others were as follows: Baltimore and Ohio, 38,015, against 37,901 and 36,993; Chesapeake and Ohio, 25,709, against 23,821 and 25,012; Nickel Plate, 12,424, against 11,166 and 11,297, and the Pere Marquette, 9,054, against 8,404 and 7,923.

EGG FUTURES GAIN 1/2 CENT;
BUTTER CLOSING LOWER

Egg futures recovered towards the close and ended 1/2 cent per dozen higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter ended 1/4 cent per pound lower.

Eggs opened under pressure, but buyers were encouraged by stormy weather conditions and the market worked higher in the last hour. Stock news held somewhat unfavorably.

For the first time in several weeks the movement of butter from storage totaled less than last year, the four markets reporting 180,000 pounds less. At this time last year movement of heavy government holdings started. The Land of Lakes reported production 24 per cent less than the previous week, 13 per cent greater than the previous week.

Montreal Light, Heat and Power

Investors' Guide: I shall be very glad to receive a copy of the report on Montreal Light, Heat and Power, Inc., of Montreal, Quebec, Canada, which is a public utility company.

Answer: Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated is both a holding and operating company. It supplies all the gas and practically all the electricity in Montreal, Canada. The company is well situated, having access to abundant, cheap hydroelectric power. Public relations are reported to be good and rates are considered low.

Reflecting the general improvement in industry in Canada, Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated has reported an average of 4.2% increase in 1933 over 1932. In 1932, the company reported a 3.1% increase in 1931 over 1930. Current position of the company is strong. Current assets are more than four times current liabilities.

The $28,320,000 first and refunding collateral trust bonds, due 1951, are equal in security with the company's bonds of 1930, by a first mortgage on all assets of the company and pledge of securities of certain subsidiaries. Although they are in effect subject to approximately $1,500,000 of subsidiaries, strong lien position and ample coverage of charges entitle them to a sound rating. They are callable at 104 until Oct. 1, 1936, the call price decreasing one point each five year period thereafter.

Atlas Tack

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Atlas Tack—H. P. Answer: Atlas Tack corporation was formed in 1920 as a merger of 18 manufacturers, some of whom had been in business for 100 years. It manufactures tacks, brads, rivets, eyelets and similar products. In 1933 it commenced manufacture of beer bottle caps. Its plant is at Fairhaven, Mass. After sustaining losses for three years the company finished 1933 with a profit. For the first 9 months of 1934 net income was $28,000, or 20 cents a share, against net of $74,000, or 74 cents a share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

Net sales for 1933 were $1,100,000, against $1,080,000 for 1932, $1,378,000 for 1931 and $1,571,000 for 1930. Net income in 1933 was $80,000, or 80 cents a share. The company has $71,000 in 1932, $137,000 in 1931 and $169,000 in 1930.

Current assets on June 30, 1934 totaled $648,000, and current liabilities were $50,000. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 94,551 no par shares on which nothing has been paid since 1920. The stock is a speculation.

RESERVE BANKS SEEK TO PROMOTE FINANCIAL STABILITY

Plans Strong Campaign to Aid Industry.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—The federal reserve banks will press their efforts to promote advances to industries under the loans to industry act, despite the fact that a treasury committee headed by Mr. Jacob Viner has recommended that this work be concentrated in the future in the Reconstruction Finance corporation or new government agency.

This was made clear in a statement issued today by the chairman of the industrial advisory committees appointed by the reserve banks, which, although it did not mention the Viner report, called for a vigorous campaign, and was generally regarded as a reply to the treasury expert's findings.

Will Continue Efforts.
Conferences held Monday and yesterday by the advisory committees' chairman had been arranged long before the Viner survey was completed, and the statement of the reserve banks program adopted provided for continuance of the earlier efforts.

The statement also contained a summary of loan activities which showed that up to Dec. 12, $1,857,000 in loans had been approved by the committees, and of these loans $325,000 involving $44,124,000 had been approved by the federal reserve banks.

On loans approved actual advances of $1,076,000 had been made, while $7,120,000 in commitments were outstanding which the reserve banks were prepared to meet if called upon to do so by participating commercial banks.

Says Business Is Aided.
The advisory committees statement reviewed the authority granted to the federal reserve banks by the Industrial Loan act, and contended that as a result of the reserve banks' service banks to grant commitments to take over such loans an increasing number of businesses in need of working capital are finding it possible to get the desired credit through their local banks.

"This is a hopeful condition," it said, "and since the provision of the law authorizing the federal reserve banks to make commitments to banks and other financing institutions limits the risk that needs to be assumed by the latter and gives to the advances a liquid character, it is to be expected that an increasing number of applicants to whom advances may be made on a sound and reasonable basis will be able to obtain their requirements from their local institutions."

HOGS AGAIN PUSH HIGHER AS RUN FALLS SHARPLY

The hog market yesterday resumed the advance which was interrupted by liberal truck shipments from nearby farms Tuesday, and new high prices for the last ten weeks were established in all weights as receipts fell sharply. The market closed 10 to 15 cents above Tuesday's average.

Both the top and average prices were the highest since Oct. 9 and showed a 40 to 50 cent advance compared with the price of last week. Light weights led the market, with Prime 24 pound butchers sold to Swift at $8.55, the extreme top, including the $2.25 processing tax to the federal government. The average at $8.25 indicated only 15 cents higher than compared with $7.75 last Saturday.

Cattle developed a two way price trend. Yearling steers that shared the full strength on the recent upturn weak to 15 cents lower and some sellers reported sales as much as 25 cents. Swift and eastern buyers paid the $10.25 top for 1,330 pound steers, which equals the highest price paid here for regular market cattle since September. Almost 8,500 steers averaging 1,050 to 1,300 pounds reached $10.00. Local packers obtained the bulk at $5.50 to $2.25.

Calf receipts were light, but there was no change in prices. A new five months' high of $7.55 was established in the lamb trade city buyers paying this price for handpicked natives.

Delay Court Jurisdiction Hearing in Trustees Case
